Armed With Names, U.S. Moves to Cleanse Unions of Communists

Loyal Labor Leaders Risk War Within Ranks to Help Effort; Mediation Board May Be Given Statutory Status to Aid Drive

By Alfred Friendly
Copyright, 1941, by The Washington Post

In a wide-ranging program to cut subversive influence out of the American labor movement the Administration has set on foot immediate steps to:

1. Authorzie the Army and Navy to take a direct hand in firing Communists, Bundists and fellow travelers from jobs in defense industries;
2. Prepare a plan of cooperation with "responsible" leaders of the C. I. O. and A. F. of L. in an intraunion purge of reds;
3. Arrange the revision of the recent Selective Service order which canceled occupational deferments of striking workers to limit its effects to those participating in outlaw and subversively led strikes;
4. In addition, Administration leaders may recommend a legislative foundation for the National Defense Mediation Board, whose existence now depends on an executive order;
5. Defense leaders are also discussing the advisability of setting up a labor advisory agency to review and formulate patterns of the labor and economic policy during the emergency.

These steps, particularly the first three, it was learned yesterday on high authority, are the outgrowth of a policy concurred in by the President and agreed to by the OPM, Justice and other defense and labor agencies. The objective is to prevent the recurrence of strikes which officials are convinced have been instigated or prolonged, not to achieve legitimate labor union goals of higher wages and better working conditions, but to obstruct, delay and sabotage the defense program.

Done With Half Measures

Despairing of half-way methods, and convinced that patriotic labor leaders need support in cleaning house, the Administration will, for the first time, declare open war on the groups it believes responsible for such "outlaw" strikes as those in the North American Aviation Co., the Northwestern lumber mills and logging camps, the machinists' dispute in the San Francisco area, and the die casters' walkout in the aluminum fabricating industry.

Aimed primarily at a group of 100 or more known Communists and "labor Fifth Columnists", the first step, it was learned, will be for Army and Navy representatives to instruct defense contractors to discharge any such employes on their rolls.

Backed by dossiers on individuals, long since compiled by the services and the Department of Justice, the Army and Navy officials will ask that the specified individuals be discharged under terms of clauses in defense contracts which permit such firings at the Government's behest.

In these cases, it was emphasized, the employer will in no way risk prosecution from the National Labor Relations Board ban against firing of employes for union activity, since the discharges will be at the Government's request and for another cause.

At the same time studies are now under way in the Justice Depart-

ANNIVERSARY

Eight years ago today The Washington Post announced that Eugene Meyer had become owner and publisher. The new publisher stated:

"It will be my aim and purpose steadily to improve The Post and to make it an even better paper than it has been in the past. It will be conducted as an independent paper devoted to the best interests of the people of Washington and vicinity, and hopes to have their interest and support."

The improvements made in The Post speak for themselves. Here are some indications of the extent of the progress:

2d Aluminum Strike Leader An Ex-Convict

6 Convictions Revealed For Martin; Balint Faces Another Charge

By Edward T. Folliard

A second C. I. O. leader in the Aluminum Co. of America strike in Cleveland was unmasked as a former convict yesterday.

The Dies Committee was told that Paul Martin, president of Local 33, C. I. O., Die Casters Union in the Aluminum Co.'s plant, had been convicted six times for felonies, the last time for "robbery with firearms."

According to information given to R. B. Barker, committee agent, by the clerk of the criminal court of Cuyohoga County, Ohio, Martin was sentenced to serve from 10 to 25 years for the robbery, but was paroled after serving seven years in the State Penitentiary at Columbus.

The Ohio State Parole Board, Agent Barker told the committee, had just revoked Martin's parole and issued a warrant for his return to the penitentiary to serve the remainder of his term.

(A United Press dispatch from Cleveland said that Martin, alias

L.W.Conant Chosen Typical Father

Washington's typical father, chosen in The Post's second annual Father's Day contest, is Lawrence W. Conant, a Social Security Board executive, of 3063 Ordway Street Northwest. The winning letter was written jointly by the three children of Mr. and Mrs. Conant—Peggy, 11; George, 12, and Bill, 15.

Dies Termed These Leaders Of C.I.O. 'Red'

How strong is the Communist Party in the American labor movement? How many Communists are there in the C. I. O. and the A. F. of L.? Who are the leaders?

Earl Browder, general secretary of the Communist Party in the United States, now in prison, told the Dies Committee in September, 1939, that there were 50,000 Communists in American trade unions—two-thirds of them in the C. I. O. and the other third in the A. F. of L.

Asked how many of these were C. I .O. leaders, he said they would be "numbered in hundreds." Browder said these men would conceal their Communist Party membership if they thought it necessary.

Chairman Dies, whose committee records now are being combed by Army and Navy intelligence officers, last March called on Philip Murray, president of the C. I. O., to rid his organization of Communists. He caused to be printed in the Congressional Record a list of C. I. O. leaders "who have records of following the Communist Party 'line' on important questions of national defense." He said they were either card-holding members of the party or fellow travelers whose records show that they follow the party line.

Stone Named Chief Justice, Bench Filled

By Hedley Donovan
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt yesterday named Harlan Fiske Stone, New Hampshire-born Republican, to be the twelfth Chief Justice of the United States.

At the same time he sent to the Senate the nominations of two stanch New Dealers, Attorney General Robert H. Jackson and Senator James F. Byrnes, of South Carolina, as associate justices of the Supreme Court.

All three appointments were received with enthusiasm at the Capitol. The Senate, following its tradition of immediate action on appointments from its own membership, took only a few seconds to confirm Byrnes' nomination. Approval of the other two selections, probably week after next, was regarded as a formality.

Biddle May Move Up

Speculation on Jackson's successor as head of the Justice Department centered on Francis Biddle, now Solicitor General. Jackson, who left town last night on a brief trip, designated Biddle as acting Attorney General in his absence. Most likely successor to Biddle, if he is moved up to Attorney General, was thought to be Charles Fahy, now Assistant Solicitor General.

Mr. Roosevelt's selection of Justice Stone to succeed Charles Evans Hughes, whose retirement was announced last week, was seen here as a bid for national unity comparable to the appointment last year of two Republicans as Secretaries of War and the Navy.

Justice Stone, though never prominently associated with the Republican Party, served as Attorney General under President Calvin Coolidge, received his appointment to the high court from Coolidge in 1925, and was a close friend of President Herbert Hoover. He is 68.

Joined in Liberal Dissents

He joined Justice Brandeis and the late Justice Holmes in many of their famous dissenting opinions when the court's "liberal bloc" was a minority, and in recent years has sided with the majority in most of the historic decisions upholding the constitutionality of New Deal legislation.

Yesterday's nominations bring to a climax the series of appointments which in less than four years have completely transformed the political complexion of the court.

With the average age of the "new court" only 56 years, President Roosevelt's latest appointments appear to assure for years to come virtual unanimity on the tribunal for a broad interpretation of the Federal Government's power to regulate the Nation's social and economic life.

When the court—which the President only six years ago said was taking the country back to "horse

Reich's Demands Reported Increased; Moscow Won't Bow, Sources Declare

BULLETIN

Helsinki (Friday), June 13 (U.P.). Well-informed sources here expect an important announcement to be made today regarding relations between Germany and Finland.

[A dispatch from Stockholm Wednesday quoted advices from Helsinki as saying that about 10,000 German troops had arrived in Finland and had established headquarters.]

By the Associated Press

Helsinki, Russia (Friday), June 13.—It is understood here that Germany has enlarged certain far-reaching demands on Russia.

(The telephone connection through Germany to Bern, Switzerland, was cut as this dispatch was being relayed from Finland, and the remainder was not received.)

Reports of new German demands on Russia have circulated for several weeks in foreign capitals in this order—Vichy, Ankara, London, and now Helsinki.

Troop Massing Confirmed

London, June 12 (U.P.)—Russia was reported in diplomatic advices reaching London tonight to be frantically fortifying her Balkan frontier, and Soviet quarters admitted that it is "probably true" that Germany has massed a formidable army along the borders facing Russia.

These Soviet quarters insisted, however, that Germany will neither attack Russia nor succeed in any attempts to frighten Moscow into yielding important military, political or economic concessions.

The reports of Russian military activities along the Soviet Bessarabian frontier with Rumania served to heighten interest in earlier reports of a German concentration of from 75 to 100 divisions—between 1,200,000 and 1,500,000 troops—massed along the Russian frontier from the Baltic to the Black Sea.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden conferred during the day with Britain's Ambassador to Moscow, Sir Stafford Cripps, who returned to London yesterday to report on Soviet-German relations.

At the same time a foreign embassy in London received a report that 75 German divisions were massed on the Polish-Soviet frontier and another 25 in Rumania, in Sub's Insignia?

"LAUGHING COW"—Is this the "laughing cow" survivors of the torpedoed Robin Moor saw on the conning tower of the submarine that sank the American freighter? The picture, mailed to The Post from "International Photo Reports," Berlin, Germany, on August 10, 1940, shows Lieut. Commdr. Prien, Nazi submarine ace, on the conning tower of his U-boat: At a distance, the snorting bull could well have been mistaken for a "laughing cow." Prien was recently reported missing by the Germans. U-boats of his squadron might all have had the same insignia.

U. S. Orders Auto Firms Not To Raise Prices

Federal Price Control Administrator Leon Henderson last night requested five leading automobile manufacturers to "immediately withdraw" recently announced price advances for their cars.

The request, which is tantamount to an order, was made in telegrams sent to the Ford Motor Co., Chrysler Corporation, Nash-Kelvinator Corporation, the Studebaker Corporation and the Hudson Motor Car Co.

Henderson also announced steps would be taken to "control" used car prices, but that such control probably would not be established until the next new-car model season, when pressure on the used car markets will be increased, because of the scheduled reduction in new car production.

Henderson, declaring cooperation of the industry was needed to resist inflation, said:

"Recent price advances are inconsistent with favorable earnings positions of the industry as a whole during recent periods."

Henderson sent assurances, however, that "in event of specific hardship, prompt adjustment of this request will be made."

In a second action the Government asked a curtailment in production of sheet and strip steel used by auto makers and manufacturers of other nondefense products

46 on Robin Moor Were Given 30 Minutes to Abandon Ship; U-Boat Captain Failed to Keep Promise to Call Help to Scene

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

The United States carefully prepared last night to treat the U-boat sinking of the American freighter Robin Moor as a German challenge to "freedom of the seas," after making an official charge that the ship was "undoubtedly" sunk May 21 by a German submarine whose commander was "fully aware that the vessel was American."

Eleven sun-parched survivors, whose 35 shipmates are still missing, told the State Department that a German submarine, after giving them only 30 minutes to abandon ship, sank the Robin Moor with shellfire and one torpedo and then set crew and passengers adrift in four lifeboats on the South Atlantic, more than 300 miles from the nearest land.

United States Consul Walter J. Linthicum, after talking with the 11 survivors when they were landed at Pernambuco, Brazil, by the rescuing Brazilian steamer Osorio, telegraphed to the State Department a "comprehensive summary" of their testimony that "there is no doubt in the minds of the survivors that the commander and submarine were German."

The only visible markings on the submarine, said Linthicum's report, were the name "Lorricke" or "Lorickke" and a figure painted on the conning tower that was described as a "laughing cow."

A promise by the submarine commander, who spoke "poor English," to radio the position of the lifeboats so they could be rescued never was carried out, apparently, and one of the three boats finally made for the Brazilian coast and was found by the Osorio, after 18 days.

The White House made it plain that President Roosevelt would hold Germany to account.

Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early told reporters "there seems to be no longer any reason to reserve judgment" on the responsibility for the sinking of the Robin Moor. Earlier, he had asked the public to withhold judgment until all the facts were established.

A "War Incident"

The American Government found itself confronted with a "war incident," the first of its kind since World War I.

The Government was prepared to act against alleged violation of the doctrine of "freedom of the seas" and, technically, violation of the rules of "humane warfare."

The text of the statement follows:

The American Consul at Pernambuco, Mr. Walter J. Linthicum, reported to the Department of State at 11 a. m. today (Pernambuco time) as follows:

"I boarded the Osorio before it docked in Pernambuco last night and with full cooperation of the local authorities privately took the individual depositions of the American survivors; a comprehensive summary of their testimony follows:

"At 6 o'clock (Greenwich time), May 21 last, the Robin Moor was ordered to stop by the use of a blinking light signal and to 'send a boat with papers'; upon inquiry what ship, the reply was just submarine. The Robin Moor then lowered a lifeboat in charge of the chief officer which proceeded about a mile and a half. No ship's papers taken. Submarine commander asked as to

British Encircle Biblical Port In Lebanon

Rapid 20-Mile Drive By-Passes City; Battle In Damascus Suburbs

By International News Service

Cairo (Friday), June 13.—British and Free French troops were stated in official military advices to Cairo early today to have reached and surrounded the ancient Phoenician port of Sidon and to have penetrated into the southern outskirts of Damascus, capital of Syria.

An Australian mechanized column driving up the Lebanese coast and a British motorized force a few miles inland were declared to have encircled Sidon, storied harbor of Biblical annals.

French "75s"—the artillery made famous in World War I—and machine guns, planted in the orange groves and apricot, banana and lemon gardens that surround Sidon, fired at the British and Australian troops as they fought their way into the environs and sought to converge on the center of the seaport, to clear a path to Beirut 22 miles north.

Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, jr., wife of the Secretary of the Treasury, selected truck driving as her third choice for volunteer service as she registered yesterday on the final day of the city-wide drive by the District Defense Council which drew more than 17,000 persons willing to offer their time for home defense.

Plant Seizures Approved

Senate Votes, 46-25, to Condemn Defense Strikes and Lockouts

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

The Senate yesterday condemned strikes or lockouts delaying vital defense industries and voted President Roosevelt authority to take over plants where mediation efforts fail.

Weighted with amendments conditioning the authority and modulating the antistrike declaration, the bill reinforced the Army's seizure of the North American Aviation plant with specific statutory powers.

Sent to the House with a message, the bill will be referred to the House Military Affairs Committee which is preparing to report a companion bill.

The House group, meanwhile, approved a modified measure providing Government protection to any defense worker wishing to pass through a picket line.

House committeemen said they were not through with the bill. Sections of the Senate-passed measure may be combined with it or offered

House Votes to Forbid $4,400 Salary to Lasser

By the Associated Press

The House yesterday adopted an amendment to the $886,000,000 relief bill to prohibit payment of any of the appropriation to David Lasser, $4,400 WPA investigator who formerly headed the Workers Alliance. The amendment, approved by a vote of 131 to 88, was offered by Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois. Charges were made and denied that Lasser was a Communist.

Approaching a final vote on the bill, expected today, the members rejected attempts by Representative Taber (Republican), New York, to cut the proposed fund in half and by Representative Casey (Democrat), Massachusetts, to raise it to $1,250,000,000. The votes were 97 to 24 and 156 to 114, respectively.

The House overruled, 96 to 66, an Appropriations Committee recommendation that $50,000,000 be diverted to the Agriculture Department to extend the food stamp plan.

President Orders Post Booklets About His Speech

President Roosevelt yesterday sent to The Post for 10 copies of his May 27 speech, taking up The Post's offer of a free 28-page booklet reprinting the speech, the proclamation of national emergency, and editorial comment on them.

Mr. Roosevelt tore out of his copy of yesterday morning's Post an announcement inviting readers to "send for reprint of President's talk" and asked his secretary to send for 10 copies of the booklet.

House Action Today

D. C. Lists 'Must' Improvements Boosting Budget $6,000,000

A "must" list of civic improvements involving a total estimated expenditure of $6,000,000 and—if approved—an addition by that amount to the city's 1942 budget, last night was prepared by the District Commissioners for Chairman George H. Mahon, of the District Appropriations Subcommittee.

Preparation of the estimates was a rush job for the purpose of having them in Mahon's hands by the time he takes a record District appropriation bill onto the House floor today.

The Commissioners went to work immediately after they and Congressional leaders met yesterday in the office of District Committee Chairman Jennings Randolph and conferred for 45 minutes over financial problems of the defense emergency and how revenues are to be found to meet them.

The conference was closed, but after it was over reporters were admitted and Randolph dictated the following statement:

"In a 45-minute discussion of financial problems of the District in view of the National emergency, the commissioners have agreed to prepare immediately a list of the most pressing items which they felt should have immediate attention.

"We have in mind the fact that the appropriation bill is shortly to come before the House and also the possibility of additional legislation in this connection being presented through the District Committee."

Randolph pointed out that members of his committee have been considering a measure to increase the realty tax here from $1.75 to $2.00 per $100 and the gasoline levy one cent a gallon. He disclosed at the same time that Representative Everett M. Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, ranking minority member of the committee, indicated at the conference a willingness to "go along" on a proposal to link tax increases with a $1,500,000 boost in the annual Federal payment.

Commissioner John Russell Young told reporters that receipts of tax increases would be used for capital improvements—streets, schools, sewer extensions, water works, etc.

U. S. Convinced U-Boat Sank Robin Moor

identity of ship and was told that 'American Robin Moor, New York to Capetown.' The first mate was then ordered into the submarine reappearing about ten minutes later when the submarine commander was heard by the men manning the lifeboat to give the command to abandon ship within 20 minutes which upon request was extended to one-half hour from the time the lifeboat returned to her vessel. Upon the return three other lifeboats were lowered, one containing 11 seamen, another with 12 seamen, another with 10 seamen and 1 passenger, and the fourth contained 3 married couples, a child and 5 seamen.

"After abandonment of the ship the submarine fired a torpedo amidships then some 30-odd shells until the Robin Moor sank sternmost in about 23 minutes. Her position at this time was latitude 6:10 north, longitude 25:40 west and the hour was 8:05 (Greenwich time). Afterwards floating wreckage was destroyed by gunfire.

"After the sinking of the Robin Moor the submarine circled by the lifeboat carrying the survivors interviewed and its commander remarked, 'I have given some food to your captain,' and then left the scene of the sinking remaining on the surface until out of sight. There is no doubt in the minds of the survivors that the commander and submarine were German although the latter had no visible markings other than the name Lorricke or Lorickke and a figure described as a laughing cow both painted on the conning tower. The commander spoke to the men in poor English.

"The lifeboats remained together at the scene of the sinking for about 24 hours because the commander of the submarine had said that he would wireless their position to expedite their rescue. Finding that this was useless the captain instructed all boats to proceed to Saint Paul's Rock or the Brazilian coast. They all remained together until May 26 when the survivors interviewed were given permission to proceed on their own which they did in the direction of the Brazilian coast. Survivors were picked up by the Osorio at latitude 0:46 north, longitude 37:37 west.

"The evidence also reveals that the Robin Moor had the American ensign and U. S. A. painted on either side and an illuminated flag flying from her stern at the time she was sunk and when stopped she was instructed not to use her radio."

The United Press said that local radio listeners reported hearing a broadcast yesterday, apparently from Italy, stating that a German ship had docked at an Italian port with five men, three women and a child who were described as Robin Moor survivors.

Linthicum had reported that one of the Robin Moor's four lifeboats carried three married couples, a child and five seamen.

Linthicum's first report, based on interviews with the survivors who docked at Pernambuco aboard the Osorio Wednesday night, was paraphrased by the State Department, and then made public at 11:30 yesterday morning, by Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles, with the caution that it was a preliminary report. It read:

"Robin Moor undoubtedly sunk by a German submarine at 6 Greenwich time on the morning of May 21, at latitude 6.10 north and longitude 25.40 west. The commander of the submarine was fully aware that the vessel was American. All survivors in good health.

"Depositions of the survivors have been taken and comprehensive summary will be telegraphed as soon as coded."

Seven hours later Linthicum's "comprehensive summary," carrying fuller details of the tragedy, was released at the State Department.

Laying the basis for stern action against the German government, Welles declared that the Robin Moor carried a general cargo ranging from steel rails to brassieres, that the ship's manifest shows she had on board no military equipment and nothing inconsistent with President Roosevelt's proclamation of May 1, 1937, listing materials of war that must be licensed for export under the Neutrality Act.

Further, Welles pointed out that the ship was bound for ports outside the combat area: Lorenco Marques, in Portuguese Africa; Port Elizabeth, Capetown, and East London, South Africa; and Port of Natale.

Officials said that the position of the Robin Moor when sent to the bottom placed it just outside—20 or 30 miles beyond—the boundary of the Pan-American "safety belt," the zone defined October 3, 1939, at the Pan American conference in Panama as an area within which the republics of this hemisphere would not tolerate any belligerent activity.

Those who officially plotted the vessel's position said that when torpedoed the Robin Moor was about 630 nautical miles from the nearest point in Africa, Portuguese Guinea; 700 miles from Dakar, the French West African base; 320 miles from the Portuguese-owned Cape Verde Islands, and 900 miles from the nearest point on the South American Continent, Cape St. Roque.

This placed the scene of the incident inside what geographers commonly regard as the Western Hemisphere, but outside the "safety belt" zone.

Congress displayed grave interest in the sinking, but first comments were cautious.

Chairman George, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, declined to comment pending further study of the details. Other observations on Capitol Hill ranged from a declaration by Chairman May (Democrat), of Kentucky, of the House Military Affairs Committee, that "we ought to convoy with battle fleets and let the shooting start" to the hope expressed by Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, isolationist leader "that this is not one of those incidents that the interventionists have been saying the President is looking for to get us into war."

In deciding what action to take, the fundamental question, said a highly placed official is to determine whether the United States will claim a violation of the policy of freedom of the seas, reasserted May 27 by President Roosevelt in his "fireside chat."

Technically, it was indicated that a violation might be charged of the London Naval Treaty of 1930 which requires a belligerent warship when sinking a merchant ship to place crew and passengers in "a place of safety."

The treaty does not define ship's boats as a "place of safety" unless the safety of passengers and crew is assured by the proximity of land or the presence of another vessel nearby that can rescue them.

Germany five years ago gave formal adherence to the treaty's rules intended to humanize warfare. The United States was one of the first to sign the treaty, which was also adhered to by Italy, Japan, Great Britain and many other countries.

Officials expected a controversy over whether the Robin Moor carried contraband. Though Welles took care to point out that the vessel carried no munitions of war as defined by the Neutrality Act, it was known that the belligerents hold as contraband any material that might be helpful to an enemy.

Authorities on international law said that the United States Government could prepare a case of two kinds:

One a broad charge based on a challenge to the doctrine of freedom of the seas.

The other, a more technical case based on alleged violation of the rules of sea warfare as they affect neutral ships in neutral waters.

Speculation on action that the United States might take included these possibilities:

The German government might be told in a stiff note of protest, demanding compensation for the loss of the Robin Moor, that the United States will not tolerate further attacks on its shipping.

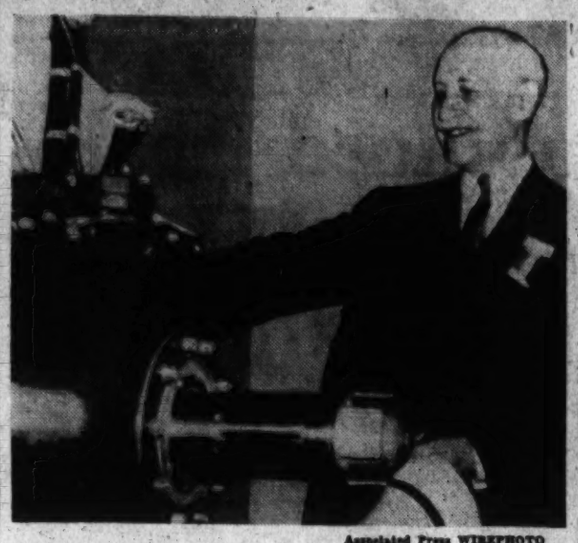
President Roosevelt might order the Atlantic naval patrol, now acting as "eyes" for the British fleet, to "shoot on sight" any Axis submarine, surface or air raider.

The President might order arming of American merchant ships, as did Woodrow Wilson.

One great unanswered question last night was: From what base did the submarine operate?

Officials generally suspected that, if the U-boat did not operate from a "mother ship" at sea, it was based on Dakar, French West Africa, a point that President Roosevelt regards as a possible jumping off place for an invasion of the Western Hemisphere.

Wright Plant Opens—to Make 1,000 Plane Motors a Month



Associated Press WIREPHOTO

A FAR CRY—Orville Wright, co-inventor of the airplane, took part yesterday in the dedication at Cincinnati of a huge new Wright Aeronautical Corporation plant. Here, he inspects a new cyclone motor, first built at the new factory

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, June 12.—William Knudsen today dedicated the Wright Aeronautical Corporation's $37,000,000 airplane motor plant and told workmen that "every time you make another motor, you put another airplane in the air."

"You know why we need it," said the director of the Office of Production Management. "We want our American way of living to go on long after this show is over."

The plant today turned out the first of 1,000 aircraft motors it is expected to produce monthly.

A special train brought officials of the Wright Aeronautical Corporation and its parent company, the Curtiss-Wright Corporation, from Paterson, N. J.

Orville Wright, of Dayton, co-inventor with his brother Wilbur of the airplane and six years later, in 1909, an incorporator of the original Wright Co., forerunner of the present one, was a guest of honor.

Production lines on the 2,120,000-square-foot area of the plant began turning out engine parts on April 14, only 142 working days after award of the plant contract. Ground was broken at the 219-acre site 13 miles northeast of the Queen City business district last October 23.

About 3,000 of the 12,000 workers the plants will employ at maximum production are already busy on the "pilot lines" now operating.

Portugal Sees Sovereignty Of Isles in Peril

Portugal, despite assurances from Secretary of State Cordell Hull, still is not satisfied that President Roosevelt has no hostile intentions toward their Azores and Cape Verde Islands and will send a second formal note to the United States demanding clarification of the President's May 27 speech, it was learned last night.

That the Portuguese will make this new protest, perhaps destined to complicate American relations with that strategic country, was learned as it became known that Portugal's first protest centered on the allegation that Mr. Roosevelt's references to Portuguese possessions contained "not the slightest reference to the fundamental principles of respect for the sovereignty of others."

After the President in his speech said the Azores and Cape Verdes must not fall into Nazi hands, the Lisbon government protested and was told in reply that the United States "harbors no aggressive intentions" against any country.

Hull's response insisted, however, that the United States must exercise the right of self-defense and reminded Portugal again that the Portuguese islands would be a danger to this hemisphere in the hands of the Axis.

The Portuguese first protest note, released yesterday, said such references to the islands as those made by Mr. Roosevelt were "involved with the expounding of the thesis that it devolves on the United States to define and decide" where and when it was threatened and "in expounding such a thesis there is not the slightest reference to the fundamental principle of respect for the sovereignty of others exercised and maintained without prejudice to anybody."

The note, delivered May 30, added that, unless there is clarification, "it might be interpreted as conducting to the admission that in order to defend other countries or for its own defense, a great nation would be at liberty to commit a violation similar to those the threat of which is said to exist from third states."

Word of the preparation of the second note brought into the open a situation that has been smouldering beneath the surface for several months.

The United States' determination to protect itself against attack and keep Germans out of the islands of the Atlantic has run afoul of Portugal's policy of strict neutrality.

It has been impossible for the State Department to make any arrangement for the safeguarding of the Portuguese islands in event of a German invasion of Portugal.

The question of what will become of the islands is prominent in official circles here, but so far no formula has been found to keep the islands out of danger without committing a breach of international law.

The Portuguese, it was learned, refuse even to discuss the question through diplomatic channels, deeming any such references to their islands to endanger Portuguese neutrality and sovereignty.

Navy Trying Out Gliders, Expert Reveals

The Navy Department is building experimental gliders capable of carrying either troops or supplies, such as the Germans used in their attack on the island of Crete, Commander Ralph S. Barnaby, assistant chief engineer of the naval aircraft factory at Philadelphia, revealed yesterday in testimony before the House Naval Affairs Committee.

During a discussion of the Navy's program for training glider pilots, Commander Barnaby said that two types of gliders were being developed, one a seaplane, but gave no details.

His testimony was preceded by a statement by Col. Edward S. Evans, Detroit industrialist, who emphasized the growing importance of gliders in military conflicts. He gave the number of German gliders as at least 28,000 to 30,000 small ships capable of carrying bombs, with a possible total of 200,000.

During the committee hearing yesterday, a member of the House asked Commander Barnaby, who is the Navy's outstanding authority on gliders, about Navy experiments with its glider pilot training program, and whether he was in charge of glider construction.

"Yes, sir, I am now in charge of constructing two types of gliders, capable of carrying troops or cargo," he replied.

"Can you give us anything about these gliders?" he was asked.

"One is a seaplane," he started to reply, when a Representative interrupted to ask if the information was confidential. When he was told it was, the commander was excused from answering the question.

Commander Barnaby stated, however, that the training project was on a small scale, and of an experimental nature. Earlier he testified that the troop-carrying gliders would be particularly useful to the Marine Corps as an "expeditionary tool." A marine officer is working with him as an observer for the Marine Corps, he said.

Col. Evans said that both Germany and the Soviet Union were far ahead of the United States in the use of gliders and in training pilots for motorless craft. Asserting there were rumors that the Germans had as many as 200,000 small gliders equipped to carry bombs, he said it was well known that they had at least 28,000 to 30,000.

He contrasted this with the situation in the United States, where he said that there were only 500 glider pilots, of whom only 100 were licensed. Gliders can be produced at a fraction of the cost of planes, and are easily operated because they have a landing speed of 15 miles per hour, he continued.

Nye Thinks British May Have Sunk The Robin Moor

New York, June 12 (AP).—Referring to the sinking of the American freighter Robin Moor, the Committee to Defend America by aiding the Allies tonight advocated policing of the Atlantic by the United States Navy, while Senator Nye (Republican), of New York, suggested that Britain might have engineered the disaster.

In a statement issued by the former the sinking was described as "an act of war" and "a violation of the freedom of the seas which our Government has declared essential to the maintenance of American security."

Nye's remarks concerning the Robin Moor were made at a press conference at which he also expressed belief that Britain might have been responsible for the recent Dublin bombings, adding that "it wouldn't be wholly impossible for the British themselves to engineer little programs of that kind."

The President's Day

By International News Service

HOMEWORK: The day was drear and drizzling; the executive office barnlike and gloomy; so the President stayed home yesterday.

All callers were rerouted from executive offices to the oval study of the White House. Secretaries General Watson, Early and others sprinted back and forth by way of the roofed portico.

MOMENTOUS MORNING: Before noon the President announced his bets for the Supreme Court, sent to the Senate recommendations for boosting Justice Harlan Stone to be Chief Justice and for putting loyal little Senator Jimmy Byrnes and Attorney General Jackson on the bench. Mr. Roosevelt also received Congressman Jack Nichols and Col. Robert Olds, who reported on their investigation into recent aircraft accidents; also saw hoss-trading REC's Jesse Jones and Senator Guffey.

Most important morning's work was Presidential reception of official reports of the Robin Moor torpedoing placing responsibility for sinking of the first United States vessel in the war on a German submarine.

TEA TABLE FOR TWO: Gaunt, tousled John G. Winant, United States Ambassador to Britain, conferred once again with the President on the severity of the situation in England—this time over lunch in the oval study and off a small, lace table-clothed tea table.

SILENT NIGHT: No guests last night at the White House and a tete-a-tete early dinner for Mr. Roosevelt and No. 1 house guest Harry Hopkins. After an hour's wait the President, accompanied by "Doctor Mac" McIntire, retreated downstairs where Mr. Roosevelt had his first swim since his illness, in the tiled basement pool, was checked over and weighed.

Paul Menringer, was convicted of a grocery store hold-up in 1931, and paroled in 1938. Martin was in the city jail last night, pending an investigation to determine whether he had left the State legally and whether his changing his name from Mehringer to Martin was accomplished legally.)

Alex Balint, C. I. O. regional director in Cleveland, who admitted Tuesday before the Dies Committee that he had served 11 months for auto theft, also was threatened with another charge. The committee was notified that the United States commissioner in Cleveland had issued a warrant for Balint, a Hungarian, charging him with false registration under the Alien Act.

Not only that, but the acting chairman of the Dies Committee, Representative Joe Starnes (Democrat), of Alabama, announced that he would recommend that the Attorney General take action against Balint for perjury.

Starnes made this announcement after C. B. Cowan, of Cleveland, who said he was a former Communist, identified Balint as a Communist who once went under the name of "Al Barry."

Balint, in his appearance on Capitol Hill on Tuesday, admitted that he was an alien and a former convict, but he indignantly denied that he was a Communist and charged that he and his organization were being "smeared."

Picture Identified

Cowan, who said he was expelled from the Communist Party in 1936, identified a picture of Balint in The Washington Post and said there was no doubt in his mind that it was the man he knew as Al Barry. Not only was Barry, or Balint, a Communist, the witness said, but he was an important Communist, entrusted with such tasks as investigating men for the Communist International.

Cowan also testified that Edward T. Cheyfitz, international secretary-treasurer of the C. I. O. Die Casters, was a Communist. He said he had attended Communist meetings with him. He testified further that Cheyfitz's mother, Fay Stevenson, was a Communist.

Representative Starnes noted that Cheyfitz, back in March, sent a telegram to President Roosevelt urging that the Federal Government "take immediate possession" of the Harvill Aircraft Die Casting Corporation, in Los Angeles.

Starnes said that he was convinced that the Communists, far from being worried by the President's recent action in California, must have welcomed it. The earlier Cheyfitz telegram, he said, indicated as much.

Radden Called Communist

John Mosberger, of Cleveland, who, like Cowan, said he was a former Communist, testified that Edward Radden was a Communist. He said he had often accompanied him to Communist meetings.

Thus, on the basis of testimony given to the Dies Committee, three of the C. I. O. negotiators who came to Washington to appear before the National Defense Mediation Board in connection with the wage dispute at the Aluminum Co. plant in Cleveland, allegedly were members of the Communist Party. They were Balint, Cheyfitz and Radden.

Acting Chairman Starnes noted this fact yesterday, and also the fact that the North American workers were represented here by Elmer Freitag, a registered Communist in 1938. He noted also that two of the leaders of the C. I. O. aluminum workers—Balint and Martin—had served prison terms.

Starnes read a report issued by the Dies Committee a year and a half ago warning that the Communists were committed to a rule-or-ruin policy that would disrupt American labor and "which might in time of stress lead to sabotage and espionage."

"No longer is this committee charged with red-baiting, witch-hunting and destroying labor," Starnes said. "The scoffing is over. Belatedly, Government officials are moving to clean house. The chair feels that American labor leaders ought to move heaven and earth to rid themselves of these Communists; otherwise the American people will hold them in contempt. It is a sad commentary when alien Communists wtih prison records are able to lead American workers into strikes at such a critical moment as now confronts the Nation."

ment, it was learned, to devise means of aiding and supporting national union leaders in an imminent civil war against those officers of the unions who are known to be Communists or Communist followers, but who cannot be reached by the first method since they do not hold jobs in defense plants.

These plans are still in the formative stage and the details or methods of support have not yet been determined. They are being worked out in collaboration with several defense agencies, it was indicated.

Purpose of the modification of the "work or fight" order, it was believed, is to sharpen its effect against subversive groups and to correct what Administration leaders feel is an injustice to legitimate strikers. C. I. O. President Philip Murray yesterday issued a bitter complaint against this phase of the order.

As now written, the order, issued Monday by Selective Service chief, Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, instructed draft boards to reclassify for active Army service all strikers who had been deferred by reason of their employment in defense industries. Conceding that the right of strike should not be abridged and that strikes, of themselves, may be justified, the revision will narrow the order and point it up to call for reclassification only of those who are striking in defiance of a Mediation Board request, or in a strike classed as outlaw or subversive.

Behind the discussion of giving the mediation board a statutory basis is the objective of assembling a larger full-time staff of investigators, of giving the board subpena powers, and of enforcing its findings with greater authority.

The prospective legislation is now being studied by a committee of the Mediation Board, Labor Department and NLRB. It will be discussed, along with other mediation proposals, with Chairman Vinson (Democrat), Georgia, of the House Naval Affairs Committee, in connection with his bill to establish cooling-off periods in labor disputes.

The proposals of an interdepartmental committee to act as an overall labor policy advisory board are still in the discussion stage and are far from materialization, it was indicated.

At the root of the discussions is the belief that many strikes stem from the lack of a clear-cut Administration labor policy and from the disruptive consequences of a Mediation Board wage award in a single plant which is only one of many in the same industry.

Without such a labor policy group to coordinate the economic and production aspects of union demands, it is argued that the Mediation Board trod on dangerous ground by recommending, for example, a 10 cents an hour wage increase in the General Motors plants, or a 12½ cent an hour boost in certain lumber and logging operations without knowledge of or regard for other similar and neighboring plants and industries.

A labor policy group, reviewing wage and working condition patterns on an industrial or regional basis might do much to stabilize the labor situation, it was pointed out.

In this connection it was said that the labor policy board might work on matters similar to an Administration objective suggested Wednesday by Navy Secretary Knox and OPM Director Knudsen for regional wage agreements in the aircraft industry.

Were such a group created—an act which is weeks or even months away, it was believed—it might be comprised of representatives of the OPM, Labor Department, Office of Price Administration, Mediation Board and other defense and labor agencies.

Direct Action Under Way

The more direct process of ending subversively purposed strikes by ousting Reds from defense factories and purging them when they appear as union officers is already under way, particularly on the West Coast.

Under Army occupation, the strike-ridden North American Aviation factory, at Inglewood, Calif., refused on Wednesday to permit eight union leaders to return to their jobs.

Although these workers have filed protests with the National Labor Relations Board their petitions are expected to be turned down, it was reported.

At the same time, as reported yesterday in The Post, certain C. I. O. union leaders, notably Richard Frankensteen, of the C. I. O.-U. A. W.; Jack Anderson, of the C. I. O. Textile Workers Union, and Leo Krzycki, of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, have been dispatched to the Los Angeles area in a "clean-up campaign" to break the control of the left-wing union elements.

It was learned yesterday that many other ace organizers, working with responsible and conservative union heads, are converging on the Pacific Coast to smash the domination of radical groups, lead and epitomized by Harry Bridges, C. I. O. California director.

In the meantime, a similar move was thought to be taking place here yesterday in C. I. O. offices, where Murray conferred with O. M. Orton, left-wing president of the International Woodworkers of America, and Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union.

Orton, who has prolonged the Seattle logging strike in defiance of the Mediation Board, is known to Government agencies as a fellow traveler and Communist voter. His recent raging denunciation of the board and refusal to indorse its back to work proposals was promptly commended in a public letter from Harry Bridges.

Curran has been characterized as a "marionette" of Communists who allegedly control his union.

None of the three conferees would comment on their discussion, except to say it concerned "C. I. O. business."

Leadership in the intra-union housecleaning, it was indicated, may be taken by officers and organizers of the more right-wing C. I. O. unions, such as the Amalgamated, headed by OPM co-chief Sidney Hillman. Hillman is known to favor outlawing the Communist Party by legislative action, although the effectiveness of such a step is doubted in Justice Department circles.

Tobin Under Attack

As an instance in the unions' civil war, it was learned yesterday that the organization of Daniel L. Tobin, president of the A. F. of L. Teamsters Union, has been recently subjected to violent attacks by radical labor groups, possibly in retribution for a letter Tobin sent to President Roosevelt expressing wholehearted support of the Administration's defense and labor policy.

The battle has centered in the famous "Trotskyite" local 544 of Minneapolis, which seceded from the A. F. of L. a few days ago and applied for a C. I. O. charter after a trial of its leaders on charges of radicalism. The charter will be granted, it was understood, by the C. I. O. construction workers organizing group headed by A. D. Lewis, brother of John L. Lewis, who, in turn, has been charged with being the chief support and mainstay of the left wing groups in the C. I. O.

Key figure in the impending union civil war, it was conceded, is Murray, who must risk the smashing of one local union after another and attack scores of his national officers if he is to succeed.

Murray is reported to be willing to undertake the fight but determined, at the same time, to prevent any weakening of the rights of legitimate organized labor.

Yesterday, in a militant mood, he issued a letter to all C. I. O. national and international unions and union officers, bitterly condemning pending legislation calling for cooling off periods, freezing of union relationships and establishing of compulsory arbitration. He said the bills were "vicious" and had as a purpose the destruction of organized labor.

Without mentioning the situation by name, Murray also attacked the use of troops in the North American strike and Gen. Hershey's "work or fight" order.

Amendment of the order, it was believed, was to meet Murray's objection. At the same time, it was indicated that Murray's condemnation of compulsory arbitration was not directed at the Mediation Board, although it has recently increasingly appeared in the role of making public recommendations which President Roosevelt has asked that all parties accept.

Murray's letter also included a declaration of opposition to "the subversive work of any group . . . whether corporate, communistic, Nazi or Fascist, that may be interesting itself in the promotion of selfish aims designed to undermine the interests of the United States in its national defense effort."

Japanese Seaman Held For Violating Defense

Tacoma, Wash., June 12 (AP)—Treasury Department agents today held Tyusaka Nichida, quartermaster of the Japanese ship Koei Maru, on charges of violating the National Defense Act.

Agents said he visited every drug store in Aberdeen on June 8 and purchased all available stocks of mercury with intent to export the substance, vital to national defense.

'Union Now' Opposed

George E. Sullivan, attorney and author of "Wolves in Sheeps' Clothing," will speak on the negative side of the "Union Now" proposal" before the luncheon of the Washington Round Table today at 12:30 p. m. at the National Press Club.

as amendments on the House floor.

First Congressional answer to the spread of defense strikes, the Connally amendment broadening the plant-seizure powers was adopted by the overwhelming Senate vote of 67 to 7.

Forty-eight Democrats, 18 Republicans and 1 Independent voted for it. Only 4 Democrats, 2 Republicans and 1 Progressive voted "no."

Action came after a two-day impasse was broken on the Byrd amendment denouncing strikes or lockouts which impede the defense effort.

Modified by the author, the declaration was approved 46 to 25. Leaders, after urging withdrawal of the amendment, voted with Byrd. Twenty-nine Democrats, 16 Republicans and 1 Independent voted "aye." Opposing were 21 Democrats, 3 Republicans and 1 Progressive.

Senator La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, opposing the strike legislation down the line, followed through with an amendment reasserting collective bargaining rights, "without interference through unfair or oppressive labor practices." By a vote of 72 to 0, it was included in the patch-work bill.

Surprise of the day came in successful amendment to the bill over leadership opposition by Senator Ball (Republican), of Minnesota, to provide that the President can step in only where mediation facilities have been refused or fail to settle a dispute.

Ball, liberal Republican appointee of Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, barely pushed his amendment through to approval, 36 to 34. The opposition vote was solidly Democratic, but a bipartisan count of 15 Democrats, 19 Republicans, 1 Independent and 1 Progressive put it through.

This vote was first announced as a tie, 35 to 35, and eyes turned to Vice President Wallace, who had the power to break it. Wallace hesitated. Then Senator Hollman (Republican), of Oregon, changed his vote from "no" to "aye" and the amendment was carried.

Overshadowed in the parade of amendments was the bill to which they were tied. This revised the Selective Service Act to permit the President to defer from active training registrants who reach their twenty-eighth birthday by next July 1, or the same date in subsequent years, without induction into the armed forces.

The bill itself was perfunctorily passed, with its heavy freight of amendments.

Byrds Amendment Changed

The Byrd amendment as revised and adopted made it "the sense of Congress" that tie-ups in defense industries throughout the country "are retarding and greatly impeding our efforts to build an adequate Army and Navy and to render effective aid to other democracies."

"The Congress hereby declares," it continued, "that strikes or lockouts in industries that impede or delay the national defense effort are contrary to sound public policy, and that strikes and lockouts in such industries in which either side refuses to recognize arbitration or mediation and to abide by the decisions thereof are hereby condemned."

Roll Call Vote On Two Defense Bills in Senate

The Gallup Poll

Organized Labor Has Lost Much Sympathy With Public in Past Year, Survey Indicates

By Dr. George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., June 12.—Organized labor in the United States has lost substantial public sympathy in recent months—and indeed has fewer friends than at any time in the past five years, including the period of the "sit-down" strikes a few years ago—a Nation-wide survey of American voters indicates today.

As part of its continuous studies of public opinion toward United States labor, the American Institute of Public Opinion has asked at repeated intervals since 1936: "Are you in favor of labor unions?"

Over the past five years the Institute's index has provided a running picture of the country's sympathies where the problems of organized labor are concerned. These surveys were the first to show, for instance, that approximately three Americans in every four thought of themselves as "in favor" of unions.

Even at the height of the sit-downs, when most Americans disapproved, the great majority continued to approve of labor unions in principle.

But a new examination of United States thinking on the same question indicates today that more than 3,000,000 voters have turned against labor unions during the past 12 months—months which have been marked by a series of strikes and stoppages in key defense industries.

Most Americans are still not antiunion. The present survey shows 67 per cent of those with definite opinions still favoring unions in principle. Yet the recent trend of public opinion will bring little comfort to friends of labor:

Trend	ARE YOU IN FAVOR OF LABOR UNIONS? Favor	Oppose
August, 1936 (Before sitdown strikes)	76%	24%
August, 1937 (During sitdown strikes)	76	24
June, 1939	70	30
December, 1939	74	26
May, 1940	67	33
TODAY	67	33

These tabulations do not include a further group, averaging about 10 per cent of the voters over the past five years, who have either had so little contact with labor unions that they have been unable to form any impression, or who are acquainted with the issues but remain "undecided."

The "Union Map"

If you were to take a map of the United States, you could mark out the sections of greatest pro-union and anti-union sentiment about as follows:

Most pro-union—the industrial East and the West, including the Rocky Mountain States.

Most anti-union sentiment—the Middle West and the South.

The survey shows that the greatest losses in public sympathy for the unions have occurred in the latter two sections over the past 12 months.

Whereas voters in these two sections were more than 2 to 1 in favor of unions a year ago, the survey now barely finds a majority favoring unions today:

Section by section the vote is:

	Favor Unions	Oppose Unions
New England) Mid-Atlantic)	74%	26%
East Central	70	30
West Central	55	45
South	51	49
West	72	28

Halt Shipyard Strike, Council Instructs Union

By the Associated Press

The executive council of the International Association of Machinists (A. F. L.) last night instructed striking West Coast machinists to call off the protracted shipyards walkout in deference to a "direct request" from President Roosevelt.

At the same time, the council denied responsibility for the strike in the San Francisco Bay area, blaming its continuance on failure of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Co. to sign a master contract for the West Coast negotiated in the shipyards last April 23.

Harvey Brown, president of the international union, who conferred with Mr. Roosevelt on Monday, sent the following telegram to Harry Hook, leader of the striking union in San Francisco:

"President Roosevelt has made a direct request of International President H. W. Brown to instruct our membership on strike against shipyards to return to work and present their grievance against the companies to the National Defense Mediation Board. The executive council now in session gave careful consideration to all phases of these disputes and our association's responsibility througout the national defense program. Therefore, pursuant to Section 4, Article 13, Grand Lodge constitution, we are instructing that the strike be called off and our membership return to work. You are herewith instructed to call a meeting immediately of the membership directly involved and proceed accordingly. Letter follows. By order of the executive council."

Curtiss Strike Called Off

This development in the brightening labor picture came as a propeller plant strike was called off, an aluminum dispute was settled, and a longshoremen's strike in New York presented some unusual angles.

Acceding to a request of the Defense Mediation Board, the C. I. O. Steel Workers Organizing Committee called off yesterday a strike set for midnight in two plants of the plane propeller division of Curtiss Wright Co., near Pittsburgh.

The Mediation Board intervened immediately after Secretary of Labor Perkins officially advised it of the prospective strike. It asked for continued production and arranged to begin hearings in Washington Monday on the union's demand for 10 cents increase in the present wage scale which provides for a minimum of 60 cents an hour and an average of 78 cents. In calling off the strike the union agreed to extend the existing contract until June 20.

About 1,000 are employed in the two plants which produce steel propellers for the Army.

Settlement of a wage dispute involving 3,400 workers making aluminum products at five plants of the Reynolds Metals Industries, Inc., was announced last night by the Labor Department.

The agreement, accepted after a week of negotiations under the auspices of the Federal Conciliation Service, provides, the department said, for an increase of 8 cents an hour, retroactive to June 3, and for an additional 2 cents an hour increase next January 1. Present wages were not disclosed.

Embodied in a one-year contract, the settlement also provides time and one-half for overtime work on defense production, including Sundays and holidays.

A dispute involving unusual angles was a strike of some A. F. of L. longshoremen in New York.

Joseph P. Ryan, union president, said it was in protest against Government acquisition of Morgan Line ships for the shipping pool being raised for national defense and aid to Britain. He charged the company had seized an opportunity to turn over its ships to the Government and thereby avoid its obligations to its employes. A total of 6,000 men in New York, Galveston, Baltimore and Houston would be thrown out of work, he said.

Ryan threatened strikes at these other cities, in addition to New York, but agreed to withhold a call for a walkout pending possible Government action to ease the hardship he said the longshoremen faced.

British Urged To Celebrate Fourth of July

By International News Service

London, June 12.—Believe it or not—the 165th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, whereby the American Colonies became the United States and freed themselves from British rule, may be celebrated in England itself July 4 with flying American flags.

In a lead article prominently displayed tonight by the London Daily Express, which is owned by Lord Beaverbrook, Britain's minister of state, C. V. R. Thompson, chief correspondent in America for the Express, outlines a special program for celebrating July 4 this year throughout England.

Thompson, author of two best-sellers on life in America, urges the rank and file in England to join in a national celebration of the great American holiday as a demonstration of the British people's gratitude to the people of America for their help and sympathy in the war.

His article states:

"You cannot celebrate the day entirely in the American manner. You cannot take the day off from work. There is too much work to be done. You cannot let off fireworks, there are too many fireworks already, but you can raise the Stars and Stripes, the flag which 165 years ago replaced the Union Jack in these United States, atop your houses and your flagpoles. . . ."

Pointing out that there are still misconceptions among the people of Britain and the United States about each other, which should be erased once and for all, he continues:

"After all, there are many of us in England who still think every other man in the street in New York is a gangster; that all American businessmen chew gum and wear horn-rimmed spectacles; that red Indians and cowboys whoop through the streets of many a thriving city. . . .

"A full understanding between our people and the people of America is going to be even more necessary in the world this war leaves us than it is now. So let's hoist the Stars and Stripes on July 4 to the tune of a verse or two of 'God Bless America.'"

'Katinka' to Open Watergate Events Next Thursday

A performance of the light opera, "Katinka," at the Potomac Watergate next Thursday night, will open the Community Center's summer events. It also will be the first event of the season at the Watergate.

The Columbia Light Opera Company will present the operetta.

Other programs in the series, in which the Playgrounds Department and the Office of National Capital Parks cooperate with the Community Center, will be staged at the Sylvan Theater on the Washington Monument Grounds.

Dental Bridge Taken From Man's Throat

Atlanta, June 12 (AP).—A 2-inch dental bridge that escaped X-ray detection for five weeks was removed today from the throat of T. B. Sims, 38-year-old Douglas, Ga., undertaker.

X-ray pictures taken after Sims swallowed the bridge five weeks ago failed to show it because it was made of plastic material which offers scant resistance to passage of the roentgen rays. When he became ill and grew steadily worse, more X-rays were taken and it was located finally through the tiny metal pins holding the teeth to the rest of the bridge.

Model Gives Tips on Posing For Camera

JINX FALKENBERG
Girl on the Magazine Cover

By Franklin Arthur

Hollywood, June 12 (the Special News Service).—Are you one of those people who'd as soon go to a dentist for a tooth-yanking as to a photographer for a portrait?

If you are, let it bother you no longer.

Jinx Falkenburg says it's the simplest thing imaginable—if you follow a few easy rules.

And Jinx should know. She's had her pretty profile on 56 national magazine covers in less than three years. Now she's taking a whirl at a different sort of camera, the movie variety, playing the lead in a little thing Columbia calls "Two Latins From Manhattan."

First of All—Eat Heartily

Suppose, Jinx supposes, you've just been elected president of the women's club. Your paper wants a picture and you want one that flatters you. You have an appointment with the photographer for this afternoon. What should you do?

First thing is sit down and eat a hearty lunch. You can't Jink says, look pleasant on an empty stomach.

Then go to your mirror. Look closely, turning your head from side to side, smiling and looking sober. If you can, settle on the angle you think does you the most justice.

Fix your hair yourself, making it look as natural as possible. Whatever you do, don't see your hairdresser in the morning and your photographer the same afternoon. If you want your hair done, make an appointment at least a day, preferably two, in advance. Then you crowning glory will look natural for the camera.

Dressing Simply Helps

Dress simply, picking the gown with the plainest neckline. If you're tempted to wear a corsage, don't. Forget a hat, too, unless you're young and look particularly well in a flaring off-the-face creation.

Make up as simply as possible. If you use eye shading, put just the hint of a shadow on the lower lid.

Finally, take a wet cloth, rub it lightly over a bar of soap, and soap the hairline and upper forehead. This keeps uneven hair in place and gives the forehead a desirable highlight that even a flash bulb can't equal.

Dad Gets Dead Sons' Medals

By the Associated Press

London, June 12.—The father of two young R. A. F. officers, C. P. Woods-Scawen, returned today from Buckingham Palace to the quiet of his country home with two Distinguished Flying Crosses in his pocket and an ache in his heart.

Pat and Tony were dead.

One day a letter came from Pat saying he was to receive the D. F. C. for destruction of six Axis planes. On the day the award was to have been made the father received another letter. Tony, a fellow officer in the fighter command, also was to receive the D. F. C.

Two hours later came a pair of telegrams announcing the boys had been killed on consecutive days, Pat while going for his seventh Axis plane, Tony on his seventh parachute descent from a wrecked plane.

King George also made a posthumous award of the Distinguished Service Cross to 3-year-old Valerie Warford whose father, Skipper W. D. Warford, lost his life on a minesweeper.

Valerie curtsied when the King patted her head. Clutching the case containing the medal she walked out into the crowd, bursting into tears.

U. S. Setting Up Invasion Strategy Units

By the Associated Press

The creation of Army Defense Commands to map actual war strategy for defense of the United States against military invasion was disclosed yesterday with the assignment of the first staff officer to such duty.

Lieut. Col. William F. Lee, of Amherst, Mass., was ordered to Governors Island, N. Y., effective June 20 for general staff duty with the Northeast Defense Command. He is now assigned to the office of the chief of Infantry here.

In addition to the Northeast Command, charged with defense strategy in the vital New England and Middle Atlantic States, it was learned there would be three others responsible for similar war plans for the Southern coastal area, the West Coast, and the Central States.

The plans developed would become the master strategy should any of the defense command areas become an actual theater of war. In formulating this strategy the commands will work in close touch with the Navy, which, it was learned, already has set up a similar war operations planning staff for the defense of the Northeastern States. It was named the North Atlantic Naval Coastal Frontier, and placed in command of Rear Admiral Adolphus Andrews, commandant of the Third Naval District with headquarters in New York. Navy officials were reluctant to discuss the subject, but said that similar staffs would be established for other coastal regions.

Army officials also were unwilling to discuss the new invasion strategy units beyond confirming their establishment.

It was thought likely, however, that the scope of the defense strategy developed by these staffs would extend beyond the boundaries of Continental United States to include offshore bases as well as possible operations in such vulnerable areas as the St. Lawrence gateway which lie outside the United States. One important part of the work will be correlating plans for the projected operations of land, air and sea forces in meeting any invasion attempt.

Byrnes Passed Up Many High Honors Before Accepting Supreme Court Berth

Fought Hard For Tribunal's Reorganization

By Edwin B. Haakinson
Associated Press Staff Writer

Senator James Francis Byrnes, nominated and confirmed yesterday for the Supreme Court, probably has refused more important honors than any of the leading figures of this Administration.

When Capitol corridors buzzed with the rumor that he would be the choice to succeed Associate Justice McReynolds on the high tribunal, the energetic 61-year-old South Carolinian was noncommittal for the first time.

Previously, the diminutive legislator had scuttled quickly suggestions that he be a candidate for Democratic leader of the Senate, President pro tempore of that body, national chairman of the Democratic Party, and Vice President of the United States.

At the same time, the indefatigable Byrnes had welcomed legislative tasks for his long-time friend, President Roosevelt, that most lawmakers have shunned.

He was in the thick of the battles over Government reorganization, revision of neutrality laws, conscription, the British-aid bills and scores of lesser controversies.

In the famous "court reorganization" struggle of 1936, Senator Byrnes gave some insight to his ideas of the Supreme Court and obligations of a justice.

Replies to President's Critics

Critics of President Roosevelt shouted that he was attempting to "pack" the high tribunal in order to reverse the court's decisions on unconstitutional phases of the New Deal.

Senator Byrnes observed that "if by packing the court, it is meant that he (President Roosevelt) would nominate only persons who agree with him as to fundamental interpretation of the Constitution, I hope that is true. Every President has done it."

In typical style, he also gave this view of members of the highest court:

"Now I do not like such matters to be mentioned. They prefer to believe that when a man is taken out of the field of politics and placed upon the Supreme Court, that he is thereafter to be regarded as having descended from on high, and they place a halo around his head and the cloak of infallibility around his shoulders. Without reflecting in any way upon the Supreme Court, I am forced to believe that the justices are still human and like all human beings will sometimes err."

Back in 1934, the Senator told a South Carolina audience the Constitution was "not a mere document, but a living thing into which has been breathed the spirit of a Nation."

Byrnes contended President Roosevelt's sweeping reelection victory in 1936 gave him a "mandate" from the people for interpretation of the Constitution in "common sense" terms.

Unlike some other Administration leaders, the Senator accepted the compromise-defeat of the court bill with good nature and sought to heal the deep scars it had caused within Democratic Party ranks.

When the tide of court decisions turned to favor the New Deal program, the Senator lauded these and observed that they reduced the danger of "hardening of the constitutional arteries that might be fatal to the body politic." This was in a speech before the American Bar Association.

Although Senator Byrnes has been an intimate of President Roosevelt many years and done yeoman service for Administration legislation, the South Carolinian has bluntly opposed his chief in some matters.

The powerful, industrious Byrnes was one of the Congressional leaders who backed the $2,000,000,000 bonus payment for veterans and then forced it through Congress over a Presidential veto. Similarly, he led the fight to repeal the "undistributed profits tax," pet measure of certain White House advisers.

Like most Southerners, Byrnes joined in effort to block Federal antilynching legislation several times. In one of these speeches, the Senator declared that the Negro had come into control of the Democratic Party.

Again, when President Roosevelt sought to defeat the veteran Senator "Cotton" Ed Smith (Democrat), of South Carolina, in the 1938 election, Senator Byrnes quietly and effectively supported his colleague through his many South Carolina contacts.

Byrnes openly opposed the Federal wage-hour program as a blow at small businessmen of the South and forced sharp revision of the vast Federal relief program after leading the fight for the multibillion-dollar appropriations.

Broke With President

During the relief dispute, the quick-tongued Senator commented that "some people believe that to be a liberal means only to be a liberal in spending the money of other people."

One of the first open breaks with the President came when Senate Democratic Leader Robinson died during the heated court reform battle. Senator Byrnes was urged as a successor. He withdrew and threw his support to his crony, Pat Harrison. The White House backed Senator Barkley, who won by a single vote.

Later, Byrnes led the move to elect Harrison president pro tempore of the Senate. When the McReynolds resignation from the high court was announced, Senators Barkley, Harrison and Glass hurried to the White House to join in asking Byrnes' appointment to the highest court.

It was a curious tribute to Byrnes' talents because both Harrison and Glass had differed frequently with the White House in bitter style while relations between Barkley and Harrison naturally had been strained many months.

Byrnes often has been rushed to the public sounding boards as the Administration spokesman to answer attacks.

When Charles A. Lindbergh dropped his usual shyness to attack foreign policies of the Administration, Senator Byrnes replied that Lindbergh was no more qualified in this field than "Wrong Way Corrigan, or any other aviator."

Byrnes was one of the leaders in the "third-term" campaign.

"I ask, if a second term, why not a third term?" was his pungent reply to criticism.

A loyal partisan, the Senator welcomed the chance to reply to Wendell Willkie, Republican candidate, in the last election. When Willkie criticized the President's "on hand and on order" review of national defense materials, Byrnes said Willkie was guilty of "inexcusable misrepresentation."

The Senator said the Republicans were asking a change of horses in midstream to a "three-legged, spavined, string-halted nag" that was trying to go "in opposite directions at the same time."

"Mr. Willkie does not straddle the fence, he just leaps from one side to another," was another Byrnes quip.

When other Democrats criticized President Roosevelt's selections of two Republicans—Knox and Stimson—for the Cabinet, the Senator reminded that politics were forgotten during the World War and said they must be again.

Colleagues credit most of Byrnes' accomplishments as a Senator to his uncanny judgment of men, his integrity on the constant agreements involved in legislative compromise, and his ability to operate behind scenes. For many years he has had a hideout office in the labyrinth of old corridors near the Senate chambers.

Most governmental leaders have visited there during the last eight years to learn exactly what could or could not be done in the Senate.

One popular Byrnes' axiom has been, "when you've got the votes, say nothing. When you haven't, talk."

Another is that Byrnes can look a speaker in the eye and quietly jot down every word said. He still retains his expert ability as a court shorthand reporter and frequently used it in Senate debate and committee sessions.

Both Senator and Mrs. Byrnes enjoy Washington's social activities. "Jimmie" belongs to numerous clubs and can join in harmonizing of the barber shop variety. Senate cronies expect him to avoid the traditional austerity that some Supreme Court Justices have followed.

Stone's Fight for Liberalism Astounded Erstwhile Critics

The new Chief Justice of the United States has worked and fought hard in the winning of one of the great Constitutional debates of American history.

Harlan Fiske Stone was appointed to the Supreme Court in 1925 by a Republican President, Calvin Coolidge. He confounded the progressives who had condemned him as a "corporation lawyer" by joining the great minority team of Holmes and Brandeis in their liberal interpretation of the Constitution.

Through the 1930's he saw the view of the dissenters transformed into the established position of the court—that the Federal Government holds broad powers to regulate the economic life of the Nation.

Now the choice of a Democratic President for the country's highest judicial office, Stone will preside over a court which faces few far-reaching Constitutional decisions and will find the bulk of its work in the next few years in "statutory interpretation." In this field his past opinions reveal a close interpretation of the law—that Congress must be specific in the exercise of its broad powers.

Stone is a 68-year-old Yankee of rugged physique, dignified in manner but somewhat less austere than his predecessor, Charles Evans Hughes.

He once observed, in a critical comment on the grandeur of the Supreme Court's marble palace, "I always feel we ought to ride in on elephants."

He disdains the doormen with megaphones who call up the cars of Washington notables when symphony concerts or embassy receptions are over. When he wants his car, he raises two fingers to his mouth and sends out a piercing whistle for his chauffeur.

Took Stump for Coolidge

Stone made a few speeches in behalf of Coolidge in the 1924 Presidential campaign, served as Attorney General under Coolidge and played medicine ball with Herbert Hoover, but he has never been active in the Republican Party organization. He discouraged friend who suggested him as a possibility for the G. O. P. Presidential nomination last year.

He came to Washington from New York City, where he had been a successful attorney in private practice and an outstanding legal educator as dean of Columbia University's law school.

Born on a farm in New Hampshire he started out to study scientific farming, for a time thought he wanted to be a doctor, later taught physics, chemistry and history and finally took his law degree from Columbia in 1898.

At Amherst College, where he was a classmate of Coolidge's, he was a star football player. Those days, he recalls now, were "the bone-crushing era in football." He is still a vigorous walker.

On the bench where he has sat 16 years Justice Stone is an imposing figure in his black robe. He asks questions in a pleasant manner when the answers are forthcoming, but he can get stern with attorneys whom he believes to be evasive.

Stone served as dean of the Columbia Law School from 1910 to 1923. Named Attorney General in 1924, he took his seat on the high bench March 2, 1925. He holds honorary degrees from a dozen universities.

On the court he has been outspoken in his support of social legislation. He once described law as "a human institution for human needs." He regarded it as anything but static.

Noted Opinions Listed

Some of his best-known majority opinions have held that:

Employes of the Federal Government are subject to State income taxes and employes of State governments are subject to Federal income taxes.

Labor unions are not subject to the Sherman Anti-trust Act unless their restrictions on interstate shipments "restrain commercial competition in some substantial way."

The Sherman Act and the patent laws do not sanction "the regulation of prices, and the suppression of competition among the purchasers of patented articles."

The justice married Agnes Harvey, of Chesterfield, in 1899, and the couple have two sons, Lauson and Marshall.

During the term that ended June 2, he wrote 25 of the court's opinions, the best known one sustaining the constitutionality of Federal wage-hour legislation.

Only 42-year-old Justice Douglas—with 27—outdistanced Stone in preparing opinions.

Stone will be eligible to retire at full pay of $20,500 annually on October 11, 1942, when he becomes 70 years old. It is not compulsory, however, for a justice to retire at that time. Chief Justice Hughes was 79 when he announced his retirement plans.

His best-known dissenting opinions disagreed with majority decisions invalidating the AAA and a New York law establshing minimum wages for women.

The justice saw his views on the minimum wage case triumph a few months afterward when the tribunal reversed that decision and sustained a similar law passed by Washington State.

On farm legislation, the court later sustained a law limiting the marketing of agricultural products. The original AAA act had limited production. Some observers contended the later decision amounted in effect to a reversal.

Maybank Silent On Byrnes' Seat

Gov. Burnet R. Maybank of South Carolina said today he was "proud and happy" that the State had been honored by the naming of Senator James F. Byrnes to the Supreme Court, but added it was too early to consider whom he might name as Byrnes' successor in the Senate.

Under South Carolina's law, the Governor's appointee could serve for only six months, during which an election would be held to name a successor.

Maybank declined to say whether he would be a candidate, "It's too early," he said.

'Congratulations, Dad . . .'

No Longer 'Nine Old Men;' Court's Average Age Now 56

The average age of justices of the Supreme Court will drop to slightly under 56 years when Attorney General Robert H. Jackson and Senator James F. Byrnes, of South Carolina, take their seats.

This compares with slightly over 61 when Chief Justice Hughes and Justice James C. McReynolds, each 79, sat on the tribunal. The average age in 1937, when elderly members began to retire, was just under 72.

The average took a decided drop when 49-year-old Jackson and 62-year-old Byrnes were named to succeed 79-year-old jurists.

Ages of the other justices are: Stone, 68; Roberts, 65; Black, 55; Reed, 56; Frankfurter, 58; Douglas, 42; Murphy, 48.

In Jackson, President Elevates One of MostTrusted Lieutenants

President Roosevelt's nomination of Robert Houghwout Jackson as an associate justice moves another of the New Deal's most trusted lieutenants into the country's highest court.

The 49-year-old Attorney General has been in the thick of nearly every major legal battle involving the Administration's program over the last seven years.

Jackson came to Washington from a highly successful law practice in Jamestown, N. Y., where his clients included both labor leaders and substantial business interests.

President Roosevelt, who had known him while Governor of New York, called Jackson here in 1934 as general counsel of the Bureau of Internal Revenue. In circles close to the Administration, Jackson's political philosophy has been described as closer to the President's than any other in the New Deal.

Jackson's swift advance up the rungs of the administrative ladder was accompanied by widespread speculation as to his availability for elective office. He is a polished banquet speaker and a hard-hitting, eloquent campaigner when he takes the stump—as he did for Woodrow Wilson, when he was still too young to vote, and as he has done for every Democratic Presidential candidate since 1912.

He was discussed as a possible nominee for Vice President in 1940. Like Justices Douglas and Murphy, his name is likely to figure in political speculation even after he takes his seat on the high court.

Jackson's first job in Washington was the prosecution of a $3,000,000 income tax recovery suit against Andrew Mellon and a group of his associates. He won the case.

Challenged Utilities

Defending the important registration provisions of the Utility Holding Act as SEC special counsel in 1935-36, he challenged the greatest of the great power systems, Electric Bond and Share Co., and won in the Supreme Court.

Appointed Assistant Attorney General in charge of the Tax Division in 1936, he moved to the anti-trust unit in 1937 and laid the groundwork, after talking with President Roosevelt, for the anti-monopoly campaign that so widely alarmed businessmen and is still underway.

Promoted to Solicitor General in 1938, Jackson argued the cases which sustained the Social Security and Labor Relations Acts and broke the long-established rule against State and Federal governments' taxing each other's employes.

Abolished Wire-Tapping

Becoming Attorney General in 1939, he dismissed cases against Detroit citizens charged with recruiting soldiers for the Spanish Loyalists, ordered an inquiry into charges by Senator Norris that the FBI had abused the defendants, and cautioned United States attorneys not to misuse their authority in dealing with "subversive" activities.

He abolished wire-tapping by Justice Department agents, decreed a strict enforcement of the Hatch Anti-Politics Act, started a civil service study of the department's personnel system, and, being as fond of courtroom law as ever, made the first appearance of an Attorney General before the Supreme Court since 1935.

Jackson tried his first case before he was licensed as a lawyer, defending a group of street-car strikers before a justice of the peace. After attending Albany Law School one year, he left without a degree and went to work in 1913.

War Boom Is Not Eternal, Wallace Says

Vice President Wallace warned that "the honeymoon of wartime prosperity will not last forever," last night, speaking before approximately 500 delegates at the closing banquet of the National Committee on Housing Emergency in the Mayflower Hotel.

"The dictators are continually at work among us trying to stir up discord," Mr. Wallace said. "National unity demands that the various housing agencies pull together as they have never pulled before, for every disagreement among ourselves is a free gift to Hitler."

John Green, national president, Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America, also addressed delegates last night. He said his organization's interest in housing was intensified by the problems of communities in which its members live and work.

But his organization, said Green, is not thinking "only in terms of a program that will solve the problems of its own members. We are concerned with the fulfillment of a program that will serve as the beginning of a permanent solution to the housing problem of the middle income group."

Defense housing offers the opportunity for the institution of such a problem, declared Green.

Colored Group Protests Byrnes' Appointment

New York, June 12 (U.P.)—The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People tonight protested to President Roosevelt his appointment of Senator James F. Byrnes, of South Carolina, to the Supreme Court of the United States.

In a telegram to the President, Walter White, secretary of N. A. A. C. P., said that persons who believe the court "should be kept free from racial and other bigotry are shocked" at the Byrnes appointment.

"As we have repeatedly pointed out to you," the telegram said, "Mr. Byrnes' record has been one of uncompromising opposition to any and every form of justice and equal treatment to the American Negro and to certain other minorities as well. It is a source of deep regret to us that you have seen fit to ignore the protests which have been made to you."

and buggy days"—convenes next October, seven of its nine members will be his own appointees and an eighth will be his own choice for Chief Justice. The ninth, Justice Roberts, was appointed by Hoover in 1930.

Mr. Roosevelt's record of appointments is surpassed only by that of George Washington, who appointed three Chief Justices and nine Associate Justices.

The President appointed Senator Byrnes to succeed Justice James Clark McReynolds, who retired in February, and designated Attorney General Jackson for the vacancy created by Justice Stone's elevation.

Byrnes, who is 62 and a veteran of 25 years' service in the House and Senate, has been regarded as one of the shrewdest strategists on Capitol Hill. The Administration has relied heavily on his appraisal of Congressional opinion and his wide influence in the upper house in carrying through the defense and foreign policy legislation of the past two years.

Attorney General Jackson, who is only 49 and will be the second youngest member of the high tribunal, had been widely discussed as the probable successor to Chief Justice Hughes.

Unity Was Aim

The desire to give recognition to Stone's long service on the court and his liberal legal philosophy and the opportunity to dramatize national unity at a critical hour are believed to have outweighed in the President's mind the advantages of appointing an eloquent spokesman for the New Deal.

Jackson, as Solicitor General, argued 24 cases before the Supreme Court in the 1938-39 term, winning 21 of them. He came to Washington in 1934 as general counsel of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, served as Assistant Attorney General in charge of the tax division, was then in charge of the antitrust division and rose from Solicitor General to Attorney General in January, 1940, when Frank Murphy was appointed to the Supreme Court.

Praises Choice of Stone

Jackson, in a statement to the press, promptly praised the selection of Stone as Chief Justice as one "so obviously fitting that it should meet with universal approval."

Of his own appointment as Associate Justice, the Attorney General said, "I am glad, the Senate willing, to turn to work of an exclusively legal character."

Byrnes' nomination, which has been predicted ever since Justice McReynolds' retirement, was no surprise to the Senate, but few had expected that the President would fill the court vacancies before midsummer, since the tribunal is now in recess and the Administration has been reluctant to lose Byrnes' services as a legislative leader.

Carter Glass, of Virginia, one of Byrnes' closest friends in the Senate, moved immediate consideration of the nomination of the South Carolinian. Minority Leader McNary, of Oregon, joined him in the motion.

Senator Van Nuys (Democrat), of Indiana, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, proposed immediate confirmation, declaring that Byrnes' appointment was "a severe loss to the Senate" and predicting that the new justice would be "as fundamentally sound as a jurist as he has been in his statesmanship."

Byrnes had left the chamber a few minutes before Glass had taken the floor and returned shortly after his confirmation to receive the congratulations of dozens of his colleagues.

To Remain Several Weeks

He is now eligible at any time to take the oath as Associate Justice, but he indicated yesterday that he expects to remain in the Senate three or four weeks more. He is serving as Acting Majority Leader, in the absence of Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, who has been ill.

Senator Van Nuys yesterday appointed two five-man subcommittees to consider the nominations of Stone and Jackson.

Nomination of Jackson, who has been in the thick of many New Deal battles and whose opinion upholding the legality of President Roosevelt's destroyer deal with Britain was severely criticized in some Congressional quarters, may touch off some debate, but no serious opposition is anticipated. Prompt confirmation of Stone was taken for granted.

The comment of Senator Van Nuys was typical of Congressional reaction. He called Stone "the natural nominee" for Chief Justice and added: "I think the President has done himself proud in all three nominations."

Stone Hopes To Be 'Worthy' Of High Office

By the United Press

New York, June 12.—Justice Harlan F. Stone said today that he was greatly surprised at his appointment as Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court and hoped he would be "worthy" of the high honor.

He added that the other two court appointments — Attorney General Robert H. Jackson and Senator James F. Byrnes—pleased him greatly.

Stone said he was going to Colorado and the West coast in a few days and toward the end of summer would return east to Maine for a "little quiet life before the grind."

He is to appear in Washington September 23 to preside over a conference of senior circuit judges.

Women's Council On Jobs Elects Dr. Shearon

Dr. Marjorie Shearon last night was elected president of the Women's Occupational Council at a meeting in the offices of the Washington Board of Trade.

In a report on activities of the council, it was stated that out of more than 400 women who have sought aid in finding jobs, approximately one third have found employment. The unit has held 30 weekly meetings since its organization November 12, 1940.

Other officers named were: Miss Edith R. Macauley, first vice president; Mrs. Robert A. McGee, second vice president; Mrs. Viola Miller, recording secretary; Miss Elizabeth J. Fisher, corresponding secretary; and Miss Jessie C. Boehlert, treasurer.

Ernest Hemingway Reports:

Arrival of U. S. Aid Stilled Incipient Peace Talk in China

By Ernest Hemingway

Copyright 1941 PM, Inc.

Rangoon—There are two things you can count on in the present Far East setup. By the present, I mean as of this spring and early summer with England holding out.

First: Japan has temporarily lost her chance of making a peace with China. Last year there was a big peace drive on in Chungking. It reached its high point last December. But the aid that China believes she will receive from America has killed the pro-peace movement off temporarily.

The United States can count on holding 37 of the 52 divisions of the Japanese army in China for six to ten months for a little less than the price of a battleship. That is to say that for $70,000,000 to $100,000,000 the Chinese army will keep that many Japanese troops tied up.

At the end of six to ten months, if past performances mean anything, the United States will have to furnish approximately the price of another battleship to keep the Japanese tied up in China for another equal period. In the meantime, the United States is arming. Insurance against having to fight in the Far East until the United States has built a two ocean Navy that can destroy any Eastern enemy, and thus probably never have to fight, is cheap at that price. Always remember that a powerful enough navy imposes its will without having to fight.

Meantime, the pro-peace groups in Chungking will undoubtedly bring all the pressure they can bear on Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek to have him attempt to disband all Chinese communist troops. The mechanics of this would be to order the eighth Route Army troops disbanded for failure to obey military orders. If they refused to be disbanded, as they undoubtedly would, they would be attacked. Since these tactics were successful against the other Communist army, the new Fourth army, there is every chance the Generalissimo will be urged to repeat them.

Since the United States is interested in having all political factions in China united to fight against Japan she can counter-act this move by the pro-peace groups by informing Gen. Chiang that the United States is not interested in backing a civil war in China. Grave friction between the Communist troops and the Central Government has been present for close to two years and for a year and a half the popular front has been little more than a fiction maintained for foreign consumption.

Chiang Firm in Course

Since the Central Government receives its principal financial backing from two powers, the United States and Soviet Russia, if those two powers both say they will not finance a civil war there will be none.

The Generalissimo wants to beat the Japanese. No one has to advise him or urge him on that score. As long as he is alive there will be no peace with Japan as long as he sees any human possibility of continuing the war. He can continue the war as long as he is adequately financed and communications are kept open so that supplies can be brought in.

There may be lack of food, there may be riots against the high cost of living due to the rise in prices under the effects of the natural inflation consequent on nearly four years of war. There will be innumerable stories of crookedness and graft in high places and there will be many proved stories of inefficiency. But the Generalissimo will continue to fight the Japanese under any difficulties that come up as long as he is financed and the war materials that he needs can reach him.

Germany Promises the Moon

Anyone who tries to foment civil war in China or to spread scandal saying aid to China will only be misused plays Japan's game.

At present Germany can give China nothing. She has not the money to finance her and she cannot send her supplies. But she promises the Chinese the moon after the war.

The Generalissimo's army was trained by the Germans. Germany was a good friend to China and the Germans are liked and admired in China. If the United States finances and helps China the Generalissimo will fight on against the Japanese indefinitely. If United States aid was ever relaxed or withdrawn the temptation for the Generalissimo would be to make a temporary peace with Japan relying on German aid to resume the fight when Germany would be in a position to give that aid.

The Generalissimo is a military leader who goes through the motions of being a Statesman. This is important. Hitler is a statesman who employs military force. Mussolini is a statesman who is unable to employ military force. The Generalissimo's objectives are always military. For ten years his munists. He was kidnapped under Communist auspices and agreed to give up fighting the Communists and fight the Japanese. Since then his objective has been to defeat Japan. He has never given this up. I think that somewhere inside of him he has never given up the other objective, either.

When you say a man is a military man and not a statesman there are all of his speeches to prove that you are wrong. But by now we know that statesmen's speeches are often not written by the statesmen.

There is much argument whether China is or is not a democracy. No country which is at war remains a democracy for long. War always brings on a temporary dictatorship. The fact that there are any vestiges of democracy in China after the length of time she has been at war proves that she is a country that we can admire very much.

The trouble between the Chinese Communists and the Central Government will only be settled when the Central Government and the Soviet Union agree on the exact boundaries and sphere of influence of what will then be Soviet China. In the meantime, the Chinese Communists will try to get as much territory as they can and the Central Government will always nurse the hope of never having to face the fact that a part of China will be Soviet. The Soviet Government backs the Generalissimo with money, planes, armament and military advisers. They back him to fight Japan.

The Chinese Communists are more or less on their own. Russia has two horses running in China against the Japanese. Her main entry is the Generalissimo. But the Russians know that it is never a disadvantage to have two good horses in the race. At present, Russia figures to win against the Japanese with the Generalissimo. She figures to place with the Chinese Communists. After this race, is run it will be another and a very different race.

German High Command Puts Losses in Crete at 5,839

By the Associated Press

Berlin, June 12.—The Nazi high command declared today that German losses in the invasion of Crete were 5,839 men, dead or missing—as against Allied losses nearly four times greater.

Specifically, it was stated, British and Greek officers and men killed aggregated about 5,000; British officers and men taken prisoner, 10,700; Greek officers and men taken prisoner, 5,000—this aside from Allied losses at sea.

(On Tuesday, Prime Minister Churchill announced in London that Britain lost about 15,000 men in killed, wounded or captured and that 5,000 Germans drowned and 12,000 more were killed or wounded in the Crete invasion.)

These figures were issued in a review which also covered the Balkan campaign.

In the Crete battle, it was declared, 592 Allied planes were destroyed—417 aground, 167 in air combat and 8 by antiaircraft fire—against aggregate German plane losses of 238.

The British were declared to have lost 23 warships about Crete.

In fighting in the Mediterranean generally between January 1 and May 30, it was added, 30 Allied warships were sunk, as were 103 merchant ships totaling more than 520,000 tons.

As to the campaign which conquered Greece and Yugoslavia—the high command asserted that a preliminary count showed that about 14,500 officers and nearly 560,000 men in Nazi custody.

These were thus divided:

Yugoslavs—6,290 officers; 337,884 men.

British—324 officers, roughly 10,900 men.

Greek—Roughly 8,000 officers, 210,000 men.

German casualties in Crete—Those of the army and air force were thus detailed:

Officers—135 dead, 117 wounded, 105 missing.

Men—1,228 dead, 1,802 wounded, 2,515 missing.

Reviewing the conquest of Crete briefly, the high command said that the German success was especially remarkable in that heavy German arms, munitions and equipment had to be advanced by human strength alone, there having been a lack of motorized equipment and horses, and added that the army "faces with full confidence the tasks which still remain."

British Encircle Syrian Port

northern Syria. Beirut is the seat of the French mandate administration and headquarters of High Commissioner Gen. Henri Dentz, in command of the army of the Levant.)

Sidon was placed under direct siege when the British column, moving up from the southeast, forced a second crossing of the strategic Litani River and captured Merdjayoun, establishing a bridgehead on the northern bank after reducing French artillery.

From Merdjayoun, the British made a rapid drive of 30 miles northwestward to reach the eastern edge of Sidon and swing around the port's northern limits to isolate its defenders, while the Australian coastal column pushed into the southern end of the city, supported by bombarding British warships offshore.

To the east, meanwhile, three columns of Free French and British troops pushed up into the Kissoue sector to reach the southern garden suburbs of legendary Damascus.

French infantry and artillerymen, entrenched in the sun-bathed environs of both Sidon and Damascus, admittedly offered resistance in obedience to orders from Vichy, but an official spokesman at Cairo branded as "grossly exaggerated" the Vichy announcements of "heavy fighting."

Royal Air Force bombers and fighters, a Cairo bulletin related, "gave full support to our advancing troops."

The big airdrome at Aleppo in northern Syria, said the communique, was raided intensively Tuesday night. The announcement added:

"Bombs fell on dispersed aircraft, runways and buildings, causing a number of fires."

British naval planes, taking off from warships patrolling the Syrian-Lebanese coast, were declared to have attacked shipping in the harbor of Beirut. In combat above the harbor, it was claimed, one French plane was shot down.

The Vichy forces defending Sidon and Beirut were shelled from the sea and strafed from the air.

Drive Halted, Damascus Says

Damiscus, June 12 (AP).—A British and Free French armored force has been checked after 48 hours battling at the very doorstep of this Syrian capital and French advance units have taken the offensive to drive them into retreat, it was announced tonight.

All day fighting described as fierce raged on the plains about Kissoue, 10 miles south of here, it was said, and at sundown the British and De Gaullists were reported just where they were at the beginning of the two-day battle.

The British were reported to have opened the day with tank charges, which were turned back.

Meanwhile, a proclamation by the government adjured Syrians throughout the nation to show "hospitality and generosity toward foreigners."

The reference to foreigners went unexplained, but it was understood that German planes have been giving assistance to the mandate's defense by attacking Haifa and Telaviv, important centers in Britain's Palestine-based offensive.

The proclamation urged the people to remain calm despite the warfare being waged at close quarters, and assured them that the government was vigilantly maintaining order.

Churchill and Allies Pledge Finish Fight to Smash Nazis

By the Associated Press

London, June 12.—Winston Churchill, joined by the representatives of 15 Allied governments in a vow to fight on against the Axis to death or victory, solemnly pledged today that for Hitler there will be "no peace, no rest, no halting place, nor parley."

They met—these agents of governments of the British Empire and of other governments exiled by the march of German troops across Europe—behind the scarred and gloomy brownstone walls of St. James' palace and promised to stand together in the war ahead and to work together after the peace for "economic and social security."

Their resolution to this effect, along with Churchill's keynote speech, was regarded as a new statement of Allied war aims and as giving the lie to rumors of a negotiated peace.

They gathered, as Churchill put it, not alone to express their mutual resolve, but to "cheer the hopes of free men and free peoples throughout the world——" to promise that the sword drawn in the Allied cause would never fall "till life is gone or victory is won."

Reading off a long catalog of Nazi "horrors and crimes," he told his strange, mixed audience:

Duce Hitler's "Lackey"

"It is upon this foundtaion that Hitler with his tattered lackey, Mussolini, at his tail and Admiral Darlan (the Vichy vice premier) frisking by his side, pretends to build out of hatred, appetite and racial assertion a new order for Europe.

"Never did an mocking a fantasy obsess the mind of mortal man. We cannot tell what the course of this fell war will be as it spreads remorselessly through ever wider regions.

"(But) it will not be by German hands that the structure of Europe will be rebuilt or union of the European family achieved. In every country into which the German armies and Nazi police have broken there has sprung from the soil a hatred of the German name and contempt for the Nazi creed which the passage of hundreds of years will not efface from human memory.

". . . We cannot yet see how deliverance will come or when it will come, but nothing is more certain than that every trace of Hitler's footsteps, every stain of his infected, corroding fingers, will be sponged and purged and, if need be, blasted from the surface of the earth!"

Again, he went on, Britain and her Allies pledged themselves to "that ceaseless and unwearying effort which must be made if the captive peoples are to be set free."

Britain, he said, had traveled far since the dark and "breathless" days of last June—when her Army was "almost weaponless" after the disaster in Flanders—and now:

"Our solid, stubborn strength has stood the awful test. We are masters of our own air and now reach out in ever-growing retribution upon the enemy. The Royal Navy holds the seas. The Italian fleet cowers diminished in harbor; the German navy is largely crippled or sunk.

". . . Food and arms from across the ocean are coming safely in. Full provision to replace all sunken tonnage is being made here and still more by our friends in the United States.

". . . Hitler may turn and trample this way and that through tortured Europe. He may spread his curse far and wide and carry his curse with him. He may break into Africa or Asia. But it is here in this island fortress that he will have to reckon in the end.

". . . This, then, my lords and gentlemen, is the message which we send forth today . . . to our allies and well wishers in Europe, to our American friends and helpers drawing ever closer in their might across the ocean, this is the message: Lift up your hearts. All will come right. Out of the depths of sorrow and sacrifice will be born again the glory of mankind."

Rrepresented in the resolution to go on and on against Hitler were the governments of the United Kingdom and Northern Ireland; of Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, Burma, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Greece, Luxembourg, The Netherlands, Norway, Poland, Yugoslavia and Free France.

'Held Up Along Whole Front,' Vichy Claims

By the Associated Press

Vichy, June 12.—The British and Free French invaders of Syria and Lebanon have been "held up along the whole front" despite heavy attacks supported by a "violent constant bombardment" by the British fleet, the French high command for the Levant announced tonight.

The French located their positions as on a height six miles south of Sidon, which lies on the Lebanese coast about 20 miles south of Beirut; just north of Merdjayoun, which is inland about 20 miles southeast of Sidon; and at Kissoue, which they still held, about 10 miles southwest of Damascus.

These positions were substantially unchanged since yesterday.

Negotiations Reported

Cairo (Friday), June 13 (U.P.).—Negotiations for the surrender of Damascus to spare the ancient city of Biblical fame from siege were reported under way early today.

Poles Pledge End To Anti-Semitism

Copyright by New York Times

London, June 12.—Assurance of equal rights for Jews in the future of free Poland has been given by the Polish cabinet which unanimously voted the following resolution:

"The Polish government pledges in execution of a democratic policy in future Poland equal treatment for all citizens regardless of nationality, race or religion. The policy is based on the principle of equal obligations—equal rights. The Polish government condemns all anti-Semitic moves as harmful to the Polish cause."

To Help Correct That "Half-Sick," "Tired," "All-Gone" Feeling
GIVE LIVER BILE FLOW A BOOST—
Do This Every Morning for 30 Days
Normally the liver should discharge about a quart of digestion-aiding bile juices a day. If it doesn't—a scanty flow—a slowing up may mean Sick Headaches, so-called Biliousness, Poor Digestion, with that half-sick, tired, all-gone feeling and most probably Constipation.
There's no need to take Calomel or other risky drugs. Just take a little daily dose of that world-famous Kruschen Salts—half a level teaspoonful in a glass of hot or cold water about half an hour before breakfast. This rouses the flow of bile with its gentle bowel action. Try it for 30 days and you too may shake off that "run-down" feeling and get a real "lift." But don't start unless you are willing to keep it up for 30 days. If then you do not feel 100% better see your money back.

The Conants— Presenting Washngton's ideal dad for 1941, winner of The Post Father's Day contest, and the three youngsters who jointly nominated him. He is Lawrence W. Conant, of 3063 Ordway Street Northwest, a Social Security Board engineer. Here he goes over the routes to be followed by sons George, 12 (left), and Bill, 15, on the bicycle trip to New England, which they will start when school ends. The daughter is 11-year-old Peggy who, in true feminine fashion, pointed out in the nominating letter that "another reason why we think he is so swell is that he is such a splendid husband for mother"

Ideal Dad for 1941— Lawrence W. Conant

After poring diligently over stacks of nominating letters, sifting them down to a survivors' list and then doing some door-knocking, the Father's Day Editor comes up with Washington's ideal dad.

He is Lawrence W. Conant—6 feet 1½ inches and 165 pounds of what Peggy, Bill and George say is "the nicest dad that anybody could have."

Together they put him in the race and together, with Mrs. Conant, they'll rejoice this morning when they read this. For this is how the family is being notified that the head of the Conant residence at 3063 Ordway Street Northwest came out on top in a contest that was as close as it was spirited.

Runners-up were George William Bruffey, 820 K Street Southeast, the father of three sons and a daughter; Ira K. Gruver, of Hyattsville, Md., parent of four sons and as many daughters, and Capt. David B. Willets, U. S. A., who is daddy to two sons and a daughter.

Conant is an engineer with the Social Security Board. Right now his office job is conducting a survey whose objective is to improve telephone communications. He has been with SSB since October, 1936. The Conant's moved to Washington in 1933.

Bettering father-son relations is the ideal dad's hobby. A baseball letterman at Exeter, when he was prepping for Massachusetts Institute of Technology, he coaches boys' baseball and football teams in season. The record of his diamond nine—the Cleveland Athletic Club—so far this spring is seven won and four lost.

Conant organized the Early Worms, a group of neighborhood fathers who meet regularly to work up recreational projects in which they can participate with their sons.

Twelve-year-old George, whose nickname is Por, plays both football and baseball. His brother Bill, 15, goes in exclusively for football. The Conant-coached gridiron team is known as the Cleveland Clippers.

Mother Conant shivers a little when she thinks of the bicycle trip to New England which her two boys are planning, when school lets out, but their father is confident they'll be able to handle themselves.

Taking them in alphabetical order, there being no ranking of the three runners-up, now meet—

GEORGE WILLIAM BRUFFEY. He is a Veterans Administration clerk, after 20 years' service in the Navy, 15 of them in the Navy Band. Working all day, he comes home in the evening to grocery-shop and cook dinner. As his 17-year-old daughter Betty explained in her nominating letter, mother is severely stricken with arthritis and it's up to her and her father to do most of the home chores.

In addition, she wrote, "he's always ready for a game of baseball . . . dad pitches in and does the washing . . . we often have family concerts, with dad and his saxophone, or clarinet, Bill with his harmonica and the rest of us on the vocals." Bill is the eldest son, 20. The other children are Albert, 12, and Bobby, 10.

IRA K. GRUVER. He is the eldest of the four finalists, 64 his next birthday. A retired truck farmer, he, his wife and daughter Elizabeth, 17, live in a modest little house on Queens Chapel Road in Hyattsville, Md.

"He was raised in a little white country church and he has been attending one of the suburban churches for 20 years," wrote Elizabeth, who will be a sophomore at the University of Maryland next fall. "Pop has set a good example before his four girls and four boys by neither drinking nor smoking. None of his children do either."

Finally, but only because his name begins with W, CAPT. DAVID B. WILLETS. Not until a Post photographer went to the Willets home, 1111 Oak Crest Road, Arlington, Va., Wednesday night did Capt. Willets learn that the daughter, 9-year-old Sylvia, had entered her dad in the Father's Day contest.

In a laborious pencilled scrawl, the youngster had listed 12 reasons why hers was the ideal dad. Not only could he ride a bicycle backward but he made grandma a wheelchair, fixes Sylvia's bike, built a room in the basement, "he is very handsome," he builds furniture—and others.

A native New Yorker, Capt. Willets' previous detail before coming to Washington last August was in California. Of the four finalists, he is the "baby" dad, being 34 years old. He is interested in Parent-Teacher work and his hobbies are taking the family on picnics and movie photography.

Winning Letter

Dear Sir:

We three children think that ours is the nicest dad that anybody could have. He goes to work at 8 instead of 8:30 in order to finish his work a little earlier so he can coach the boys' baseball team. Every year he has a baseball and football team. The baseball team is called the Cleveland Athletic Club and the football team the Cleveland Clippers. Daddy has taught us to swim, dive and do many other things. You might think that he never works, but he does, he works very hard. I don't see how he does it.

Some of the "many other things" that he has taught us are, perhaps, even more important. Among them are good manners (consideration of others), self-control, be self-reliant, and always a good sport.

Still another reason why we think he is so "swell" is that he is such a splendid husband for mother.

We all wish that every single child in this country could be as fortunate as we are.

Sincerely yours,
Peggy Conant, age 11.
Daughter of Lawrence W. Conant.

P. S. What my sister, Peggy, said about playing baseball and football is certainly true. Our father has spent more Dad-Son hours with my brother and me than any other dad. You see, we know because we've figured it up together! Having coached us, and other boys of the neighborhood in football and baseball for about seven years, he is trying to make himself and other fathers realize the importance of spending as much time as possible with their sons and daughters. Dad has even started a dad and son group or club of the boys on the athletic teams and their dads. As for us kids, all this is swell because the more we are with our dad, the more fun we have!! And that's the test!!! The Boys—

George Conant, age 12.
Bill Conant, age 15.

The Gruvers— Doing the dishes together is a favorite indoor sport of Ira K. Gruver and 17-year-old Elizabeth, the youngest of his eight children. "He is bald on the top of his head, but he likes to try to fool people by spreading a few long hairs over the bald spot," Elizabeth tattled on her 63-year-old dad, a retired Hyattsville, Md., truck farmer. Six of the eight Gruver children are college graduates

The Willetses— It was Sylvia, 9, shown here with her 7-year-old brother, Richard, and William, 3½, who wrote the letter which brought honorable mention for their dad, Capt. David B. Willets, U. S. A. Can't see much of him here because he's busy working the youngsters into his favorite hobby—motion picture photography. The family lives at 1111 Oak Crest Road, South, Arlington, Va. They came here last summer from California

Bill Cunningham's Column: About Hitler, Texans' Attitude Is 'Let's Go Get 'Im'

By Bill Cunningham

Fort Worth, Tex.—Col. Amon Carter, publisher of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram and the only Texan who can make a California Chamber of Commerce change the subject, hurled one of his mighty mass-barbecues at his Shady Oaks farm near Fort Worth the other night, and Gene Buck was addressing the gathering of perhaps 1,000 outdoor diners.

The Carter place is really a miniature ranch, with certain astonishing embellishments such as a bar as big as Sloppy Joe's, housed in a building all its own, an outdoor stage where full grown theatrical performances can be produced for the benefit of private audiences, a rodeo ring and other charactertistic Carter refinements.

This particular clambake was official entertainment for the notables here in connection with the United States Golf National Open. It was a mammoth outdoor buffet affair, the diners filing up to the trough and helping themselves, then taking their places at long banquet tables beneath a grove of noble oaks.

Amon presided when the presiding time came, and he did it with wit and authority. He stated that there'd be no speeches, but when he started introducing the coterie of celebrities present, Bobby Jones, President Harold W. Pierce, of the U. S. G. A., Clarence Budington Kelland, Francis Ouimet, Gene Sarazen, and so on, the no-speaking provision broke down in short order. The crowd began to clamor, "Speech—Speech —" after each name, and it became the accepted formality for each man "to say a few words."

When Texans Howled

Finally he came to Gene Buck, famed Broadway showman who produced all Ziegfeld's greatest shows, and currently president of ASCAP, the organization of musical composers and publishers now at odds with the radio industry, and Mr. Buck was telling how glad he was "to be here."

It was his first trip to Texas, he said, and that was thrill enough, but to be a member of such a party "with so many famous personalities, was more than any man had a right to expect." Specifically, at the moment, he was paying tribute to Francis Ouimet. Mr. Buck is an old-fashioned, or Model T, orator who reaches for the simile and flings the ringing phrase.

"This man, here," he said, pointing a bony finger at Francis, "who did the same sort of thing for golf when he defeated Vardon and Ray up there in Boston back in 1913, that another kid named Lindbergh did for aviation when he stepped into a plane and flew it across . . ."

The rest of the sentence was interrupted, even blanked out, in the back sections, by a volley of spontaneous boos.

For an embarrassing flash, it appeared they were booing the complimentary reference to Ouimet; then came the realization that it was Lindbergh's name the Texans were howling down.

"Let's Go Get 'Im"

This is Texas. It's New Deal and pro-Roosevelt. It likes a fight. Bitterly, later, several said, "Why did that nice guy have to spoil a good party by naming a traitor to his country in a complimentary fashion?"

That seems to be reasonably typical of Texas and the war. There's little pro-British sentiment, as such, down here, but there's plenty of anti-German. Instead of "Aid for Britain," it's "To Hell with Hitler."

AMON CARTER

It's not that Hitler has done anything to Texas. They're simply taking "Our President's word." If he says it, it must be so.

Strange is the way this vast district has turned on its own once leading citizen, John Garner, because he parted company with the New Deal. Instead of the honored statesman now, he's Texas' Forgotten Man. Ask a dozen well-informed citizens where he is or what he's doing and they can't tell you. They don't know or care. He simply stepped out of the parade and that's that.

Texas, among all the States, has the highest percentage of volunteers in the Army and Navy, or did have at last reports.

"Let's go get 'im," seems to be the general attitude.

Ask how or where, and they say that's "up to the President."

1,300,000 War Prisoners Toil In Nazi Fields and Factories

By Angus Thuermer
Associated Press Staff Writer

Berlin, June 12.—For more than a million soldiers who took up arms against Germany the path has been from the battlefield to the cornfield, an authorized military spokesman said today.

He said that at the end of April approximately 1,300,000 prisoners had been sent into German fields to plow, plant and harvest, or into industry to carry on work of the kind they did back home. Only 135,000 were still sitting in prison camps, he said.

For example, a French bricklayer probably finds himself laying bricks on one of Fort Builder Dr. Fritz Todt's various projects and an Australian shepherd may behelping some Bavarian farmer as a replacement for a drafted hired hand.

In the first part of 1940 Germany had 650,000 prisoners inside the Reich and about 95 per cent were cast into agriculture, but since the middle of 1940, the authority said, an organized effort has been made to find skilled laborers for German industry which lost man power through the draft. Many prisoners are employed in metal work, forestry and mining.

Besides war prisoners, Germany has been bringing many foreigners into the Reich. In 1940, the authority stated, approxmiately 670,000 foreign workers were in Germany, mostly from Italy and occupied regions in the west and Slovakia.

Posters everywhere warn of the attitude one must take toward a prisoner of war and of penalties for infraction of the rules.

Bioff Freed In $50,000 Bail; Denies Guilt

By the Associated Press

New York, June 12.—William Bioff, head man of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes (A. F. of L.), today pleaded innocent to charges of violating the Federal antiracketeering law and was released in $50,000 bail.

In releasing Bioff, Federal Judge John C. Knox warned that "if any one of the Government's witnesses is molested, in any way, shape or form, or any phone calls made of a threatening nature, the bail will be remitted and the defendant incarcerated."

Bioff was indicted with George Browne, president of the union, and charged with obtaining $550,000 from leading motion picture producers under threat of calling a strike of 35,000 men and women in the movie industry.

Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., Twentieth Century Fox Film Corporation, Loew's, Inc., and Paramount Pictures were named in the indictment as the victims.

Browne, now said to be in Chicago, has arranged to plead on June 20. Judge Knox filed trial for August 18.

Bioff, a convicted panderer, is also under indictment in California on Federal income tax charges.

SHOREHAM TERRACE GOES HOLLYWOOD. While the Shoreham Terrace has always looked like a Cecil B. de Mille setting, it's been dotted lately with so many famous movie faces that one expects to hear Barnee shout, "Lights! Camera!" any instant. Rosalind Russell, Vic McLaglen, Gail Patrick and Robert Stack have all been Terrace-ing in the last few days. Roz Russell wore dark glasses and was verra much incognito. But the others were right out in the open, giving autographs and chatting with all comers. Vic McLaglen parked regularly on the Shoreham cocktail terrace every afternoon during his Earle engagement and talked show business with his old friend, Billy Bray of the Shoreham revue . . . This reminds that the current Terrace show is one of the sleekest, will be held over next week almost in its entirety.

Star weekend event is the opening of Don Baker and his Musicomics in the Neptune Room tomorrow. They're all screwballs of the first water, should add mightily to Neptune's summer gayeties.

"CALIFORNIA NIGHT" will be celebrated in Glen Echo's Spanish Ballroom next Wednesday evening, June 18. Special guest of honor on the occasion will be San Franciscan Jeannette Campbell, now associated with WJSV. There'll be oodles of California musical novelties by Paul Kain's band and all native sons and daughters are invited to come out and have an "old home night."

RAINBOW FISH STORY. Maestro Milton Davis of the Rainbow Room popped up with the news that he'd caught 189 hardhead over the weekend. Then it turned out that ten other persons were with him on this angling excursion. But, most fascinating was Milt's assertion that using half a fried chicken leg as bait, he'd caught four hardhead.

THE MIDNIGHT CHOO-CHOO is off every night at Casino Royal via Omar who gives a perfect impression of a starting train by smacking and shuffling his hands and feet during a series of somersaults. It's a remarkable performance . . . Dance aces, too, are Bob and Betty Brown, especially in their graceful imitation of Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers . . . The new Chester Doherty Girls are pretty and fulla zing, every one of them stepping out in a nifty specialty . . . It all adds up to one of the summer's brightest shows . . . There's a reason for emcee Bob Preble seeming a bit tense these eves: He and his attractive li'l missus are momentarily expecting a blessed event.

Shawnee, the blue-gray fox terrier owned by Jimmy Summerville, leader of Hi Hat's Four M's, is one of the five of this rare breed in the country.. Shawnee's smart as he is goodlooking, knows dozens of tricks.

NEWS IN BRIEF. Mayfair's Manager A. G. Peterson is in Boston and will be present when his father, Dr. A. E. Peterson, noted scientist, receives an honorary degree from Tufts College . . . John Frazier, diverting graphologist and psychoanalyst, is now at the King Cole Room where he'll remain until he fills an engagement at White Sulphur Springs this fall . . . Madrillon's Valentina does not sing in Spanish as most people think. Her songs are in Afro-Cuban dialect, include some of the ritual songs of Nanigo, Cuban equivalent of Voodoo . . . Don't forget that you've only tonight and tomorrow to say your goodbyes to Jack Coffey and his lads and lasses in the Metronome Room.

THE GREAT STRICKLAND MYSTERY. Initials of Lotus' Bill Strickland are "L. W." and he admits that the "L" stands for a perfectly appalling first name which he balks at revealing. We've guessed everything from Lazarus to Llewellyn without raising a confessional flicker of guilt in his eyes.

DON BAKER, whose Musicomics open in the Neptune Room tomorrow

STAR AMATEURS. Those boys from the Georgetown Foreign Service School who with their girl friends have been putting on such amazing congas at Lounge Riviera that everyone stops dancing to watch. We'd call 'em American style congas, because they have more than a flash of the rug-cutter . . . Representative John White, of the Maryland House of Delegates, often steps up to the mike in the Anchor Room and sounds off in Chauncey Olcott style on the best Irish numbers . . . Ciro's Famous Village is headquarters for gifted amateurs. There's never a night that a couple of the customers don't join the midnight show . . . The Silver Fox clientele is a bit more bashful. They don't go to the mike. They just chime in with Virginia Joy or Helen Malcolm while they're sitting at their tables.

The ingenious Mayflower press department informs us that all of the hotel's mint is grown out in Bethesda by a man whose life is devoted to mint and parsley. The mint sprays are extra long. Twelve bunches, each holding 50 sprigs, are bought each day. That totes up to 600 juleps.

PRIZE RHYTHM BOYS. Sylvester Sprague, who pianos so dynamically with Dick Wilson's band on the Starlight roof in the evenings and does a solo chore in the afternoons in the Cafe Caprice . . . Marty Rubin, big and blonde, who not only thumps the bass to a fare-you-well with Bert Bernath's Pall Mall Room Orchestra, but sings a steamy torch song . . . Van Taylor, of Restaurant "823," who looks Pan-American but really hails from the Mississippi delta land. He gives a masterful polishing off to any number from "Irish Eyes" to "Maria Elena." But listen for his "Cuatros Vidas."

KAVAKOS KUT-UPS. The Kavakos Grill softball team is continuing to mow down its opponents a la Charlie MacCarthy . . . The Greek flag continues to wave over the bandstand because Bill Kavakos knows the Greeks will never really be downed . . . Maestro Vincent Rose is one of three brothers who are all musicians.

PALATE TICKLERS. The shore dinners at Olmsted's Grill include a well-chosen selection of the tastiest deep-sea denizens all cooked delicately and carefully . . . The Plymouth prides itself both on its choice steaks and Southern fried chicken smothered in its own juices . . . The Harrington Tavern specializes in tasty summer snacks planned to coax the most finicky appetites.

It won't be long now until that big first anniversary party for Rodd Raffell and his band at the Nightingale. The fiesta will also celebrate a record year's business at the Gale.

Mercy Robber Snatches Dog From Death's Jaws

Oakland, Calif., June 12 (AP).—The death watch which Rowdy, a fox terrier, unwittingly kept for himself is over. Today, his execution date, a mercy thief stole him.

Rowdy didn't know as he waited in the back yard of an Oakland home that his mistress, Mrs. Clara L. Edgarton, had died while visiting relatives in Berwyn, Ill. He didn't know her will decreed that he be executed.

He remained on the alert today for footsteps—unaware they might be his executioner's. But while the arrangements were being made for him to die from the quick stab of a veterinary needle and while the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was preparing to protest, Rowdy was spirited away from his doghouse.

Greatest Oil Pipeline Begun To East Coast

By Charles E. Harner
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, June 12.—Plans for the greatest pipeline construction in history were disclosed today by authoritative oil men as the Government's answer to the threat of an East Coast petroleum shortage this coming winter.

Work already has begun on portions of about 4,450 miles of pipelines which, they said, Secretary Ickes, petroleum industry coordinator, had under consideration.

The lines would carry a steady flow of oil and gasoline to the East Coast from Texas, Louisiana and Illinois in quantity to offset by at least 150 per cent the loss of transportation facilities caused by the transfer of 50 American tankers to British use.

They can be completed, it was asserted, in less than six months, provided steel for the pipes is supplied on a defense priority basis and the Government grants rights of way.

Plan Nearly Ready

"And we haven't any worry on that score," one oil man commented.

In Washington, Ickes declared again that restrictions on use of gasoline in the East "appear to be inevitable."

He said he hoped to have a plan ready "in a week or two" for civilian conservation of oil. He reiterated that any restrictive measures should be undertaken first on a voluntary cooperative basis.

Ickes revealed that he had asked the Maritime Commission to advise him what tanker ships owned by American companies now were flying foreign flags, and whether these ships could be pressed into service to relieve the threatened oil famine on the East Coast.

Every resource is being exhausted, he said, to move oil to the East, and he emphasized that the matter of transportation now was taking precedence over consideration of means to restrict pleasure use of automobiles.

Vacation Blight

Asked whether he had given any special consideration to tourist travel and the vacation use of automobiles, Ickes said "there is no desire on the part of the department to cut off a fellow's vacation, but at the same time there is no (oil) gusher under this building."

He denied giving any assurance to anyone that seaside resorts "have nothing to fear until after Labor Day."

The pipeline plan under discussion envisions not only the construction of the new lines, but also the reversal of the direction of flow of some Eastern lines, the utilization of a great number of new river barges for oil shipments and more efficient operation of some pipelines long in service.

Concerning the latter feature, the Oil and Gas Journal recently estimated 50,000 barrels additional could be added daily to trunk line capacity by using idle lines between the Mississippi River and the Atlantic.

Problem of Transperiation

Despite these plans, however, it was admitted that there might be a squeeze in the East's gasoline supply before freezing weather arrives again.

The problem is entirely one of transportation. There is plenty of oil and gasoline, as is demonstrated by the continued shipment of petroleum, lubricating oil and automobile gasoline to Japan from California.

These shipments, estimated at around 1,000,000 barrels a month, are carried mainly in Japanese tankers, although at least until recently three American tankers were used.

Oil men say these shipments are made with the approval of the State Department, holding that it is better than to engage in controversy.

Army Flier Killed; Wed Here Year Ago

Special Dispatch to The Post

Selfridge Field, Mich., June 12.—Second Lieut. B. E. Pearson, pilot, of Syracuse, N. Y., was killed and Flying Cadet Morris Hallett was severely injured today when their Army bomber crashed and burned.

Pearson and Miss Marian Hurdle, of Washington, were married last June 29 at the Temple Baptist Church here. He was graduated from the Air Corps School at Kelly Field, Tex., a little over a year ago.

District Oil Conservation Unit to Meet

First steps toward formulating plans for local curtailment in the use of gasoline and motor oil will be taken at 9 a. m. today at a special meeting of the program subcommittee of the new Petroleum Conservation Committe for the District.

The meeting will be held in the office of Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer, chairman of the subcommittee. According to Maj. Beverly C. Snow, Assistant Engineer Commissioner and chairman of the general committee, no action will be taken until a workable program has been reported by Van Duzer.

It is planned to launch an intensive educational campaign directed at local motorists, urging them to cut down on gasoline consumption for pleasure driving.

The District will be the first city in the country to adopt such a plan. The Commissioners named the special committee at the request of Interior Secretary Ickes, National Petroleum Administrator, who earlier had predicted "gasless" Sundays unless motorists agreed to cooperate in preventing a shortage of motor fuel.

The plan originated with the American Automobile Association and was quickly indorsed by Ickes.

In addition to Van Duzer, today's meeting will be attended by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent; Irving C. Root, superintendent of National Capital Parks and vice chairman of the full committee; Dr. John W. Frey, associate director, petroleum conservation division, Interior Department, and Russell Singar, general manager of the A. A. A.

England-to-Canada Plane Service Reported Ready

London, June 12 (AP).—The magazine Aeroplane said today a daily airplane service would soon be started between England and Canada with the Western Terminus at Montreal.

The magazine said U. S.-built Boeing B-17S, four-motored planes of the "Flying Fortress" type, probably would be used. They would be flown by United States pilots and crews under the direction of British Overseas Airways, the article said.

Aeroplane reported that Maj. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, former chief of the United States Army Air Corps, was arranging the details of American cooperation in Washington.

Dr. Ballou Honored

Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of the District's public schools, was the recipient of an honorary LL. D. degree from Marietta College, Marietta, Ohio, on June 9, it was announced here yesterday. H. K. Eversull, president of Marietta College, made the presentation.

Women United Ask Ouster of Knox, Stimson

Six hundred members of Women United alighted from a special train here today, trekked through the rain to the Senate Office Building and passed a resolution asking the ousting of Secretaries Knox and Stimson.

The idea was given to them by Representative James F. O'Connor (Democrat), of Montana, who, in a speech preceding one by Senator Wheeler, said that the two Cabinet members are "too old to fight," but "they want your sons to back up their big words."

The women declared against Communist control of labor, cheered O'Connor and urged the two Secretaries' removal "because they are warmongers." From the rear of the caucus room a woman rose, asking, "And what about Ickes and Miss Perkins?"

"True Americans."

Wheeler told the constantly cheering women that the Secretary of the Navy might accuse them of being subversive "but I think you are true Americans." In his opinion, Wheeler said, the subversive element is that which would take the country into a war which would destroy it. He read lengthily from an Alsop and Kintner column in support of his contention that the President is being pushed toward war. "But keep up your fight because I believe that sentiment for noninvolvement is growing," he said.

"Don't let Secretary Knox, the FBI or anybody else frighten you into thinking you've got to keep quiet," Wheeler advised the women.

Mrs. Wheeler, who had met the women at the Senate Building, said that in future years they would find "pleasure and vindication" from their present activities for peace. She said that her husband so acted because "he must in order to be true to himself."

Representative Clare E. Hoffman (Republican), of Michigan, said he didn't think it possible to establish "the four freedoms" throughout the world "when we don't have it here." He declared the President was right in breaking the North American Aviation picket line "so that honest people who want to work can do so."

Many Italians in Group

The women were led here by Mrs. Thelma Hall Herrick, child portrait painter, of Boston. Their declaration of purposes included the forcing of Russia "to live up to her solemn promise, made when President Roosevelt recognized Russia, to stop all Soviet propaganda in this country. Since President Roosevelt accepted this promise in good faith, we petition Congress to protest to the State Department."

The group said it is "for total defense of our country" and opposed to any involvement in foreign war. A large delegation of Italian women from New York City was in the party.

District Lists 'Must' Improvements

Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech said the proposed increases would yield an estimated $3,500,000 from real estate and $1,000,000 from gasoline. If Congress agreed to a $1,500,000 increase in the Federal contribution, the District would have $6,000,000 in additional revenues for 1942.

Details Withheld

The list of needed improvements was prepared at the District Building, but officials declined to discuss it except to say that it was to be sent to Mahon by special messenger. Mahon told reporters just before leaving his office that he had not yet received the list.

Commissioner Young before leaving Randolph's office, however, called attention to a list of projects prepared several months ago when the Overton fiscal relations bill, now dead, was being considered. He said the "must" list would be prepared from those projects at that time given priority rating.

Total of estimates on this list is $10,183,454 for the following principal projects, a small number of which already have been submitted for inclusion in the 1942 appropriation bill:

Water, including new reservoirs and structures to safeguard the city's water system, $1,934,750; sewers, $911,000; public schools, $3,919,645; fire and police, $175,000; highway, $720,000; health, $760,000.

Included in the conference in Randolph's office were Commissioner Charles Kutz and Chairman John Hunter of the fiscal relations subcommittee.

Senator Austin's Mother Dies

Mrs. C. G. Austin, mother of Senator Warren R. Austin, of Vermont, died yesterday at her home in St. Albans, Vt., after an illness of two weeks. She would have been 94 June 17.

In addition to Senator Austin, Mrs. Austin leaves two other sons, Roswell M. Austin, of St. Albans, former speaker of the Vermont House of Representatives, and C. G. Austin, jr., of Chicago.

$50,000,000 U. S. Steel-Expansion Report Confirmed

Pittsburgh, June 12 (AP).—Confirmation of a report that the United States Steel Corporation will build a $50,000,000 addition to its nearby mills in Homestead and Duquesne to help speed national defense work was made in Washington tonight by an authoritative source in the Office of Production Management.

"Big Steel," it was said in Washington, submitted an expansion proposal some weeks ago, prior to the recent request of the OPM for the industry to increase its ingot facilities by 10,000,000 tons a year.

In view of the OPM request, it was said the U. S. Steel proposal is being revised and is expected to be resubmitted in a "very short time." Details were not available, but the OPM source added that construction funds probably would be provided by one of the Federal loan agency corporations set up for such purposes.

Bell Would Put District Credit Unions in FCA

Legislation to put the governor of the Farm Credit Administration in charge of District credit unions was proposed to Congress yesterday by Acting Secretary of the Treasury Bell. The unions are now under the supervision of the Commissioners and the Comptroller of the Currency.

Pointing out that Federal credit unions come under the jurisdiction of the FCA, Bell told Congress transfer of District unions is desirable "both from the standpoint of economy and efficiency."

such as refrigerators and oil burners.

The pinch is likely to be felt most, however, by the automobile industry, which already is under mandatory orders to cut production of 1942 models by 20 per cent. This output probably will be reduced further if, as indicated, the Office of Production Management invokes new steel priorities.

The OPM asked 13 producers of sheet steel to curtail nondefense production so their capacities can be released for plates for shipbuilding, railway car construction and other defense needs.

The request was made shortly after the OPM granted full authority ratings for steel plates and other critical materials to shipbuilders making hulls for 289 merchant ships for the United States and Britain.

Amazing results in improving the looks . . . boosting vitality . . . pep!

Weak, run-down people suffering from sluggishness, underweight, poor digestion, lack of appetite now may restore vital digestive juices in the stomach . . . energize the body with rich, red blood.

If you are one of those unfortunates who have been ill, or have suffered with colds, the flu, worked under a strain, failed to eat the proper foods, or have been vexed by overtaxing worries . . . yet have no organic trouble or focal infection . . . and your red-blood-cells have become reduced in vitality and number . . . if your stomach digestion refuses to work properly, then here is good news for you!

S.S.S. Tonic is especially designed to build back deficient blood strength . . . to revive and stimulate those stomach juices which digest the food so your body can make proper use of it in rebuilding worn-out tissue. These two important results enable you to enjoy the food you do eat . . . to make use of it as Nature intended. Thus you may get new vitality . . . pep . . . become animated . . . more attractive!

Feel and look like yourself again

Yes, when you tone up the stomach and get its digestive juices flowing freely, you should enjoy again that old-time zest for food . . . stomach digestive miseries should vanish. S.S.S. Tonic also gives you the mineral matter in soluble and digestive form to restore your blood to its rich, red color . . . this makes for greater strength . . . color in your cheeks . . . resistance against disease attacks.

Because S.S.S. is in liquid form it begins its work as soon as you take it. Make the S.S.S. treatment a part of your daily diet. You will be delighted with results. Scientific research shows that S.S.S. Tonic usually gets results. Thousands and thousands of users have testified to the benefits it has brought to them—that's why so many say "S.S.S. Tonic builds sturdy health and makes you feel like yourself again." © S.S.S. Co.

Whose Tankers?

The transfer of American ships to Panamanian registry will permit the shipment of American goods to ports in the United Kingdom without violating the neutrality law. But it also permits shipments to the Axis nations, and these are now being made to Japan. Oil tankers which formerly flew the American flag and which, presumably, are still American-owned, have reportedly been transferred to Panamanian registry, and have been promptly chartered by Japan to haul oil across the Pacific. This state of affairs, if true, is rendered doubly absurd by the oil shortage facing the East.

The Maritime Commission has not seen fit to clear up the fog of apprehension, and perhaps misinformation, surrounding this subject. Movements of American shipping are now rightly regarded as a military secret, not to be divulged. The commission, to be sure, has gone so far as to say, as have executives of oil companies, that no tankers flying the American flag are supplying Japan with oil, but this is begging the question. And the American people will not be satisfied by the subterfuge. Clearly, if members of our transport fleet, still largely owned by citizens of this country, are in Japan's service, every effort should be made to requisition them for American use. This would not be easy, since they have doubtless been chartered for a specific period, and are technically beyond American jurisdiction. But something should be done to rectify a situation which enables Japan to get some 800,000 barrels of American oil each month in bottoms that were once American. Oil rationing of any kind, considering the fact that we possess 60 per cent of the world's supply, is bad enough. When it is due in part to the requirements of a nation which is our potential enemy in the Pacific, the spectacle becomes galling.

Rail Labor

The wisdom of a mediatory policy toward labor grievances must be judged not only by its success in maintaining industrial peace but also by the nature of the settlements exacted as the price of peace. Take, for example, the situation with regard to rail labor. The record shows a series of strikeless settlements of wage disputes. Is that, per se, a tribute to the mediation provided for under the Railway Labor Act? Not necessarily; for the rail unions demonstrably have had virtually all the breaks. Now they are trenching upon this indulgence in a series of new demands which are altogether staggering.

These demands have come on the heels of those of the five railway brotherhoods in the transportation field for a 30 per cent increase in basic rates of pay. Now there are similar demands from the nonoperating railway unions, whose members are telegraphers, shop laborers, clerks, freight handlers, etc. These 14 nontransportation organizations, representing about 800,000 employes, seek increases in basic rates of pay of from 35 to 94 per cent. A minimum hourly wage payment of 70 cents is also asked, or nearly twice the sum currently paid track workers in some parts of the country. In addition, there is already pending before the National Mediation Board a request of these nontransportation unions for two-week vacations with pay. Demands are also being made by some of the brotherhoods for changes in working rules that would necessitate the employment of additional men. The roads have anticipated the last-named demands by counterrequests for changes that would eliminate some of the charges for so-called "featherbed" service. In short, the preliminary skirmishes have begun, and it looks as if a major battle over these preposterous wage proposals might soon be under way.

Any cursory glance at railroad earnings will show that the roads are in no position to meet these demands for wage increases. Already the rates of pay of transportation workers are the highest they have ever received. If allowance is made for interim changes in living costs, it is estimated that the hourly wage of the workers in engine, train and yard service, measured in terms of purchasing power, would be nearly 60 per cent above the level of 1929 if the requested wage increases were granted. But that is only half the story. The roads lack the earning power required to meet proposed wage increases. The current outlook for earnings, to be sure, is promising, but only on the assumption that there are no substantial additions to operating costs. Not only would an increase of $600,000,000 or $700,000,000 in the wages bill spell financial distress for the roads; it would impair the quality of service performed by discouraged managements, adversely affect producers and shippers, and inevitably slow down our defense effort.

Our New Court

The appointment of Associate Justice Harlan F. Stone to be Chief Justice of the United States is an act of statesmanship on the part of President Roosevelt. No man in the entire country is better qualified for the position. Indeed, lawyers and commentators have singled out Justice Stone as the ideal successor to the retiring Chief Justice, Charles Evans Hughes, almost with acclamation. This is added proof that by training, experience and judicial temperament Justice Stone is eminently fitted for this promotion. Not only is he a great jurist; he is also a great liberal jurist who regards the Constitution as an instrument of living government. Like the retiring Chief Justice, he is a statesman on the bench as well as a judge.

Only one factor in Justice Stone's record had led many to assume that he would be passed over in the search for a Chief Justice. This is that when he had any politics, he was a Republican. Before he was elevated to the highest bench in the land, in 1925, he served as Attorney General in President Coolidge's Cabinet. Thus his nomination to the Chief Justiceship in spite of his political affiliations is a profound tribute to his independent judgment and his eminent judicial service on the bench. And the circumstance of Justice Stone's political affiliation is likewise another reason to pay tribute to the President for appointing him Chief Justice. Here certainly is a case in which President Roosevelt subordinated all questions of partisanship to the ideal of good government.

No doubt Senator James F. Byrnes and Attorney General Robert H. Jackson will also prove to be able and distinguished members of the court. In his 14 years as a Representative and 11 years as a Senator Mr. Byrnes has acquired an extensive and intimate knowledge of the Government and its operations. The high regard of the Senate for his ability, integrity and sense of public service was manifested yesterday by the prompt confirmation of his nomination. As Solicitor General and Attorney General, Mr. Jackson has shown himself to be a brilliant lawyer and an able administrator. He is thoroughly familiar with the work of the court, and has a keen appreciation of its important role in the evolution of American government. Those who know him are confident that his crusading partisanship will mellow as he gets used to his judicial robes, and he seems marked for a distinguished career on the Supreme Bench.

It is only when the new court is viewed as a whole that its outstanding deficiency becomes apparent. Eight of the nine justices (assuming that Justice Stone and Mr. Jackson will be confirmed) have now been named by President Roosevelt. That fact in itself would be of little importance if the President had made an effort to preserve a balance in the court. On the contrary, all of his nominees, except Justice Stone, have come from his own official family or his own circle of advisers, and the current vacancies are to be filled by his Attorney General and his spokesman in the Senate. Even Justice Stone sees eye to eye with the President on most constitutional issues. So, in spite of Mr. Stone's elevation to the Chief Justiceship, the President has laid this high tribunal open to the charge of being a New Deal court. For an agency of government that must be impartial and independent if it is to retain public confidence and function successfully, this preponderance of Administration men may be a formidable handicap.

Higher D. C. Taxes

Hope that the District could "get by" without an increase in taxes this year disappeared several months ago. Additional revenue must be found to finance some of the long-neglected improvements which, because of the influx of defense workers, have now become imperative. With the city growing at a phenomenal rate, it would be penny wise and pound foolish to delay any longer the construction of new schools, health centers, highways, bridges and public welfare institutions that should have been undertaken years ago. And no realist believes that funds for these essential community projects can be obtained without an increase in taxes.

The program outlined at a meeting of the House District Committee and local officials yesterday seems to be both moderate and practical. It would add about $6,000,000 to District revenue by boosting the real estate and gasoline taxes and the Federal payment. A majority of Washingtonians would doubtless prefer to see the income tax increased, but the House has stubbornly refused to pass amendments to that act. Efforts to secure a sales tax have been defeated on several occasions. So, in spite of the fact that real estate is bearing an inequitable share of the tax burden, an increase in the real estate levy seems to be inevitable.

Washington will thus feel once more the penalties of its disfranchisement. But the enactment of some measure to increase District income is necessary. The city faces an emergency closely related to the national crisis. In the circumstances it is gratifying to note that officials are apparently giving the right of way to a moderate program which avoids the dangers of doing nothing and at the same time repudiates the extreme local tax proposals already introduced by some members of the House.

Robin Moor

Over a period of many months a vehement but futile debate has been raging in this country on the subject of just what constitutes an "act of war." In the fall of 1939 there was opposition to the revision of the Neutrality Act on the ground that Hitler might regard such revision after the outbreak of hostilities in Europe as an "act of war." Others saw an "act of war" in the transfer of the 50 destroyers to Great Britain. The same argument was again brought up by those who sought to defeat the lease-lend bill. To The Post, as was often said both before and after the lease-lend bill was passed, the argument has always appeared academic, and for two major reasons. In the first place, there is nothing in Hitler's record to suggest that his attitude toward this country will in the least be determined by purely legalistic considerations. If he finds it to his interest to employ force majeure against this Nation, he will do so with or without justification, just as he has waged war on many nations who, up to the very moment they became victims of German aggression, had maintained a policy of impeccable neutrality. If such a policy did not save these countries, so a similar policy will hardly save the United States. But more important than that consideration is the indubitable fact that Hitler has for a long time been waging war on the United States in every manner except by actual resort to arms. His is a revolution rather than a war, and one which is being waged on a world scale. And there must be a clean sweep of the "pluto-democratic" world before this Nazi revolution can either become world power or even absorb those conquered peoples in Europe in their servile role under the Nazi yoke.

Now, it appears, Hitler has not stopped with covert methods of belligerency alone, but has also resorted to the older and more conventional forms of armed hostility by sinking the American steamer Robin Moor. Not the slightest question is left from the facts (which, at official request, this and other newspapers have been awaiting) that the Robin Moor was the victim of a calculated Nazi aggression. The U-boat commander who launched the torpedo that sent the vessel to the bottom was fully aware of the ship's identity. The assault was made in an area which Germany had never bothered to designate as a war zone and which was 800 miles off the Brazilian coast. Its cargo contained nothing of a military character. In other words, the action was a perfect example of Nazi disregard of international law and the canons of decency. However, it would be naive to be shocked by such a demonstration of Schrecklichkeit. The sinking of the Robin Moor was in line with everything that the Hitler system stands for and everything that it is. Hitler is at war with civilization. He is, and from the moment he took power in Germany he has been, at war with every country that stood in the way of his grand design, and that war will go on until either the cancer is extirpated or freedom has disappeared from the face of the earth.

That latter possibility the United States is pledged to prevent. But it cannot be prevented by any half-hearted measures camouflaged as aid to Britain or aid to any other democracy. Revolution can be met only by counterrevolution, and with the same 100 per cent effort. Hitler's revolution has back of it so much religious, intellectual and technical power and so great a quota of militarized resources that all that we have of the same power must be thrown into the struggle. There must be and can be no turning back from any measure necessary to win the final victory over a scourge which made a shambles of so many nations and which threatens our way of life as it has never been threatened before.

FULFILMENT

Peace cloaks the land where quiet mountains brood
Over rich fields, until the harvest start.
There every cow is nuzzled by her calf,
Dark turf is stacked for drying, heavy dews
Are silver in the morning: the strong farmer
Takes down the reaping hook with ruthless hand.

Peace over the sands where aching, rainless winds,
Avid of streams, left desert bare as bone.
Though never green shall gladden tortured eyes,
There beauty—carven in those arching ribs,
That polished skull, those shinbones scattered lonely—
Beauty and peace need dread no reaping-time.

I spilt my hoarded honey at your feet.
That home I dreamed is not: you dared no son
Of me: in heart's bleak wastes sharp sand with wind
At heel chisels the stubborn bone. I leave
Unliving beauty shall not heed time's touch:
No barren love, O Eileen, bred these things.

Appeals To President

To the President: The rank and file of the party which opposed you in the election are disappointed (many of them disgusted) with the apparently dilatory manner in which you are waiting to hear from the people before starting hostilities in the war which everyone knows we are already in. When a fight starts it is bad policy to let the other fellow get in the first blow. In the election I was bitterly opposed to you, but you are President and in this I am all out for you and believe there are millions of the same mind who will back you to the limit if you find it necessary to put the country into all-out war. Our Navy has always been able to fight and proud to do so. That is what we have a Navy for; not just for show.

Tunnels In Northeast

As a second tunnel is being constructed under one of the prominent streets, one cannot help contrasting it and the existing one under Fourteenth Street, with those already existing under the railroad tracks on H and K Streets Northeast. In the Northwest there is perfect lighting, in the Northeast, inadequate lighting. In the one, glazed brick making for cleanliness; in the other, black granite blocks making for dirt. In the Northwest the street cleaners make frequent visits. In the Northeast someone is asleep at the switch. The refuse, muck and dirt allowed to accumulate there is a disgrace to the City of Washington and the committee of Congressmen who hold the responsibility.

'Dare We Do Less?'

Let us have done with talk of going into or keeping out of war, and of the probabilities of victory or defeat. Facing the world of today such talk is irrelevant. Forms of government, questions of freedom of speech, freedom of worship and all freedoms of this, that and the other are engulfed in the question of the continued existence of the individual as an individual. That and no other is the question now before us.

Can any sane man hesitate for a moment to choose between the everlasting peace of 6 feet underground and walking the earth in the harness of a brute chained to the chariot of the state with no aspirations of his own, no affection he dare indulge, no star of hope in all the black horizon of oppression?

If a civilization which, however far it may have strayed from its path, has always held up an ideal of righteousness, and painfully and slowly struggled toward that ideal for century after century—if such a civilization is to disappear from the earth before an utterly material social organization that acknowledges no law of righteousness, surely annihilation were better than survival.

Britain is seeing to it that if mankind is to lose all the moral and spiritual gains acquired since the apeman walked the earth, the banner of such semblance of righteousness as we have attained to shall not go down without a champion. Dare we do less? We need be brave indeed to face such infamy.

AMERICA DECENT.
Washington, June 10.

Of Strikers

It is really sad to think that there are skilled workmen in our country, enjoying the blessings of our free institutions, free speech and free press, comparatively high standards of living, who will go on strike and cripple our war-industries efforts!

Let us hope that there is no American employer who would deny them just treatment, with fair wages, if they would go about it in a decent way to get it. Their amount of patriotism must be very low, when they will deliberately cripple the business of their employer, for their own selfish desires!

These workmen, who read the papers, must know what sort of conditions workers are laboring under in many countries of Europe, where factories are in danger of coming down on their heads at almost any time!

And the same thing is true of their homes containing their wives and children! Think of the conditions under which they work here—and they strike! Those who do such things must be all communists.

America is only fit for Americans and those who wish to be Americans in spirit and in truth. We can change our laws by the ballot and not by rioting and murder! Those who prefer the Russian, German or Italian form of government should pack up and go where the government suits them and suits those around them. Despotism and slavery does not suit real Americans, and most of them are ready to protect their country against such forms of government. H. R. BRADFORD.

Isolationism

Isolationism is a complex mental condition—an aberrant. A check-up on the lives of the Nation's leading isolationists confirms this in its entirety. An isolationist is a person born with a "fear complex;" an imperfect maturity of one of the natural senses; a mental condition that overbalances the ability to judge by sound reasoning matters where physical conflict is involved or imminent.

Another abnormity who is involved in this thesis: The conscientious objector may be classified as the half brother of the isolationist. The conscientious objector lives within his own convictions in silence, while the isolationist believes in the conversion of others to his views. Many isolationists are brilliant speakers, with the ability to impress many persons with their views.

Isolationists are obstructionists, and are a definite detriment to any nation involved in war or about to become involved.

These persons may be found in all nations of the world. In Germany they are immediately shot or placed in concentration camps for the duration of the war. In fact, any nation at war would be compelled to isolate, destroy, or remove these persons from public contact in the interest of the nation.

'Young America'

I noticed a short article in this morning's Post titled "Tunney to Call Pro-American Rally of Youth."

I think it is about time that someone is doing just that! And I should like to see it get a lot of publicity. The various subversive elements have so many well-organized groups, and have gotten such a strong hold on the imaginations and the loyalties of "Young America" that it is high time something is done to dramatize and publicize the pro-American youth angle.

With Mr. Tunney's leadership, this should become as popular and as much "the thing to do" as are the others. I hope so! Very truly,

On The State Of The Nation

After a 10-day visit in Maine and New Hampshire, I have returned to New York with a little more faith and respect for this country, which my ancestors assisted in settling over 300 years ago.

Living in the New York City area I have become accustomed to hearing Roosevelt, Willkie and Churchill booed and Stalin, Hitler and Mussolini cheered at gatherings of the America First Committee. I have been surrounded on all sides by Nazis, Communists, Fascists, anti-Semitics, anti-British and Roosevelt haters, all working their heads off to sell the country down the river to the Nazis, in the manner of Seyss-Inquart, Quisling, Deat, Flandin, De Brinon, Darlan, Laval, Mosely, et al.

Furthermore, I have listened to the defeatists, isolationists and pacifists until I have almost arrived at the point where the typical American appeared soft and yellow—the type of man who looks the other way when his neighbor is being robbed or when an old lady is being struck down by a gangster.

Our attitude of cowering and cringing while the Finns, Greeks and British were fighting for freedom has been disgusting, sickening and disheartening. Our original program of selling to the Allies at a good profit only what they could pay for in cash and carry away was a cowardly and craven policy, insisted upon by those who didn't mind making a little profit, but didn't want to fight or take any risks.

Our present policy is not quite so low, selfish and despicable, but we are still hiding behind Great Britain, the only people in the world who were willing to go to war to protect another country and live up to a treaty. We courageously urge Great Britain to keep up the good fight, while we promise to supply the guns.

However, the most discouraging thing of all is the suspicion that we couldn't fight if we had to. In 1916, university undergraduates were frantically trying to enlist in the then Royal Flying Corps, the Lafayette Escadrille, the French Foreign Legion and the Harvard and Yale Ambulance Units. Rightly or not, the volunteer in those days was regarded as a hero. In 1941 the volunteer is regarded as a sap, a screwball, or just out of work. Many of today appear to be in no way moved by the brutality of the Nazi regime and the moving back of the clock 500 years. Expediency, rather than sense of right or wrong, seems to be the guiding motive. Personally, I wouldn't give 10 cents for an army of 10,000,000 trained soldiers composed of the type I have sampled in recent months. I am sure they would run at the first sound of a gun and it is a waste of money to train them, just as the French found out to their sorrow, after devoting 20 years to training the biggest army in the world.

However, what I want to report is that in New England, sentiment is pro-British, despite the fact that it is anti-New Deal, which seems almost incredible. The boys are volunteering ahead of the draft, are enthusiastic about Army life, and appear to be willing to fight. I heard expressions that the way the Germans are treating little children in Poland is sufficient justification for our entering the war immediately and even the way the Germans are treating their own people is reason enough to go in now. This was all very encouraging to one who believes that those who say they will fight only in self-defense won't fight at all.

I should also like to report that the South and Southwest have never experienced any difficulty in filling their flying cadet quotas, whereas the New York area has never even remotely approached its monthly quota since the campaign started—a condition unheard of in 1917.

Therefore, it is quite obvious that the future of the country is entirely in the hands of New England and the South.

The Post Impressionist

Memories

The old house has been gone a long time. Old Miss Leona has been gone an even longer time. But in the minds of us who knew them both, they remain immortal.

Not that we knew them to love them. Far from it. We knew them to fear them. Miss Leona with her tall, spare figure and severe features; the house which was so narrow and gloomy.

She was a harsh woman, and we must always remember her as an old woman. An old woman with a sharply curved nose and thin, gray hair done in a hard knot at the back of her head. A dour woman whose only love was an old, twisted rose bush which her father had planted.

Leona, a lioness . . . She was not built as you would expect a lioness to be—curved, tawny, with golden eyes—but she was a lioness. She was a gaunt, rangy lioness whose eyes were steel-gray and burned behind rimless glasses. And she had claws, oh, what claws, that did not tear your flesh, but ripped the very soul out of you.

Few of us were ever inside her house. But those of us who were, perhaps some errand, or, worse, called in by her to be reprimanded for running across her lawn—or some similar misdeed, remember very vividly how it looked. There was a round table in the middle of the front room, the only room any of us ever saw. A crystal globe stood in its center. There was a ragged, discouraged canary in a carefully kept brass cage. There was a picture on the mantel of a big, heavily bearded man. All of the place had the odor of old things, musty and faintly sweet.

We remember how she would call us in, if we had offended, have us sit down, and then go out of the room, leaving us alone, apparently to think upon our sin. And we would sit, miserable, looking at the light twinkling from the globe, looking at the worn carpet, longing to run out of the front door, but not daring to. And all the time we would be thinking of the ghosts supposed to haunt the place, and of Miss Leona's terrible tongue.

Then, in a little while, she would come back. How well we remember how she looked. How she towered over us, [illegible] seated in the stiff-backed rocker that seemed to be exclusively hers. How her gray eyes snapped and her thin, blue mouth shut on her cold words that held us writhing until she chose to let us go. We shudder about it yet.

When we came on an errand, she was less severe, although never friendly. Once when I went there, she told me something about the bearded man whose picture was on the mantel.

"He was my great-uncle," she said. "He was a great sinner. But he took care of me, after I was orphaned by the death of my parents, and he left me these possessions."

That was all. I wonder what her uncle's sins were. Perhaps he did not go to church, perhaps he was untidy about his person or his belongings. I think that any of these in her sight would have branded him a "great sinner."

I used to make many conjectures about him when I was alone. Sometimes I would imagine he had been a soldier of fortune and had brought her that crystal from India or some other far-distant place. Sometimes I imagined him a pirate among the Chinese. Or he had been a slaver. We had just been studying the Civil War and it seemed to me that a slaver was one of the worst of men. Or perhaps he was a highwayman, "road agent," I would think, out West somewhere. Whatever it was, he had been a "great sinner." But he had taken care of her and left her possessions . . .

I had been away a long time when she died. One of my old friends wrote to me about her end. One morning a child of the neighborhood went to the door of her house and knocked. There was no answer, although the child said he had seen her sitting in the front room in her rocking chair. They had thought she merely didn't want to answer it. But the next day someone else knocked at her door and she didn't answer, though again they could see her sitting in there with her back to the window. Something about the tilt of her head made the caller suspicious. They called the police, the door was broken down, and there she was, dead. Apparently she had died in that old chair of a heart attack.

Her belongings were sent to a great-niece in Ohio. I wondered how she likes the crystal globe and the picture of the relative who was a "great sinner." The canary had died long before.

I was visiting friends in the old neighborhood when they tore down Miss Leona's house. Some of us went over and watched it go. I remember so well how it looked after the first wall had been pulled down. It looked almost indecent the way the rooms were exposed, and the staircase which ran up three stories. Empty of their furniture, they had such a naked look. I wondered what Miss Leona would have thought of it all. I was sure she would have disapproved very much. I almost thought I could see her phantom standing before the crowd, vainly shaking a shriveled hand at the workmen, her thin lips crying out futile scoldings there in the dust and bright sunlight of the early summer afternoon.

There is a row of new houses there now, bright, gay, all alike. Those who never saw it otherwise would never believe there was once a grim old stone house there, with narrow, staring eyes of windows and a staircase whose newel post was a polished globe twined with grape vines.

It is all gone, but we who knew it must always remember it. We can stand and look at the new houses, and they will seem to vanish like dreams and the real thing, the stern old house and the stern old lady, will come back. And when we step up on the grass of one of these places, we almost hear a sharp, high voice commanding us to get off, or expect to see a tall, spare figure in black cotton dress come down the path, order us in to come into the house.

St. Lawrence Project

By Ernest K. Lindley

Arguments For Its Speedy Completion

A STOUT BLOW—perhaps the stoutest—has been struck for the St. Lawrence waterway and hydro-electric project by William S. Knudsen, on behalf of OPM. In indorsing both phases of the St. Lawrence development as part of the defense effort, Knudsen spoke not only for himself but for his OPM associates: Sidney Hillman, Secretary of War Stimson, and Secretary of the Navy Knox. Stimson and Knox are scheduled to back up their approval in personal appearances before Congressional committees.

The OPM verdict is a deadly reply to the contention that instead of furthering national defense, the St. Lawrence project would divert men, materials, and machines which could be put to better use. Knudsen, Knox, and Stimson, all Republicans, are not New Dealers who would take a stand out of loyalty to the President. They came in the Government to help defend the country and win the war. And both Knox and Stimson belong to the "forward" group in the Administration who, in appraising the war situation, have been alert consistently to immediate needs. It is not conceivable that either would favor the St. Lawrence project if it would interfere with maximum aid to Great Britain and China during the next few critical months, and the most rapid mustering of our own national defense.

THE ST. LAWRENCE can be useful to our defense only if the war is prolonged. That is admitted on all sides. It will be from three to five years before the seaway and hydro-electric installations can be completed. The President, in ordering a resurvey, has expressed the hope that the seaway would be made available for emergency use in two years. This may be a trifle optimistic, although there is little doubt that under emergency conditions the project could be rushed to completion in less time than the original schedule called for.

If the President's present war strategy succeeds, the war may be over before the St. Lawrence development can be finished. Before then, the Germans will have been bombed out and the Nazi regime broken up. But no forward-looking and cautious person can rely on the success of this strategy. We are building a two-ocean Navy on the supposition that the British, with our aid, may not be able to hold. We are building and planning battleships, and aircraft carriers, and cruisers, which will not be launched until 1945 or 1946.

If we are justified in building a two-ocean Navy which cannot be completed for another four or five years—and by then may have to be increased still more if it is to protect us in both oceans—it would not seem lacking in foresight to build a seaway and hydro-electric project which will require no longer time for completion. The argument for going ahead becomes all the stronger when it is realized that the seaway will make possible the shift of some major naval construction from the coasts to the Great Lakes.

IN THE GREAT LAKES, on the American side, are 30 yards with building berths at least 500 feet long. On the Canadian side are 15. Not all of these can be used for building, for example, cruisers. But some can be, and others can be made available with relatively simple refitting. A cruiser rests on the ways for about 18 months, and requires up to three years for completion. A freighter of the "ugly duckling" type rests on the ways only 3½ to 4 months. By the time cruisers begun next spring could be completed, the St. Lawrence waterway probably would be ready to provide their exit to the sea. And for every cruiser shifted to a Great Lakes yard, at least four or five desperately needed freighters could be launched on the coast.

The defense arguments, pro and con, do not conceal, of course, the other interests and motives involved in the St. Lawrence project. It is an old dream of the President's. The first treaty looking toward joint development of the waterway was signed almost two years before his public career began in the New York State Senate. The first surveys were made in the Wilson Administration. Every President since that time has advocated that the waterway be built.

AS GOVERNOR of New York, Roosevelt was especially interested in the hydro-electric phase—as Al Smith had been before him. The St. Lawrence is the missing member of the four great publicly-owned power "yardsticks" which he advocated as a Presidential candidate in 1932. The others are Boulder Dam, TVA, and the Columbia River development centering on Bonneville and Grand Coulee.

The basic alignment of forces for and against the development has changed little in recent years. And until our national defense program got under way, no new argument had been heard on either side.

Naturally, both sides are attempting to harness to their own uses every argument bearing on our national security. Nobody can deny that the additional electric power and the seaway to the Great Lakes would now be extremely valuable. If Roosevelt's advice had been heeded years ago, the Nation would now be more secure and more powerful.

No one can say flatly that the St. Lawrence project does or does not require immediate attention, as against competing claims for men, materials and machines. But the united and emphatic stand taken by the members of OPM, charged with the heavy responsibility of developing the defenses of the Nation, is a heavy blow to the opposition.

The Cudahy Interview

JOHN CUDAHY, our former Ambassador to Belgium, gets a pretty good wigging from Harold Ickes for interviewing Franco, Goebbels and Hitler, and, while I am no friend or even an acquaintance of Mr. Cudahy, I should like to take his end of the spat because, as I said, 'way back there during the campaign, Mr. Ickes is one guy I can lick. Mr. Ickes was made for me. I know his style and how to move inside when he starts cranking up that schoolyard right of his and walk on his feet and rub him around the mush with the laces. Unless he insists Mr. Cudahy needn't bother with Mr. Ickes.

In a way I agree with Mr. Ickes on the journalistic exploits of Mr. Cudahy in the enemy country. He is an amateur, and my criticism of his work is that it has been just what you could expect from an amateur. He wrote pretty about the flowers and the furniture, which would have been all right as dressing for the piece if he had come away with the story. But he didn't nail Hitler down, and the result was a commonplace yarn in which Hitler assured the United States that he had no intention to attack us at home, and not much else.

ICKES thinks this was naive of Cudahy, but I read the piece and I didn't gather that Cudahy believed him. Instead, I thought, he was just passing the word along for Americans to believe or not, on the basis of past experience with Hitler's assurances and declarations as compared with his performances. A professional reporter would have put more questions and would have pressed the questions, and if Hitler had thrown him off the mountain for that, well, a reporter's answer would have been, "I have been thrown off better mountains than this."

But I notice that first the President took a pop at Mr. Cudahy for turning in, to the best of his ability, a job of journalism, and that soon after Ickes was turned loose on him to finish him off. That makes it look as though they have taken the attitude that our people haven't sense enough to shrug off Hitler's propaganda and that a journalist who lands an interview with him is guilty of something pretty bad.

That would be a new wrinkle, because our country is not officially at war with Germany and no reporter with any sense would turn down a chance to interview Adolf Hitler. If Hitler tells the reporter a lot of lies, those are not the reporter's lies but Hitler's. The reporter isn't there to tell Hitler what to say but to draw him out on important subjects and give his answers, which then may be debated and picked to pieces by our editorialists and political orators at their leisure.

Ickes is a fine one to be talking about propaganda and deceit, anyway. When did Ickes ever sound off on the iniquities of the Wagner Act and the labor policy of the Administration of which he has been a part for more than eight years, as a result of which, and for no other reason, it is now necessary to call out the Army to protect American citizens threatened by mobs of Communist gorillas.

And didn't Mr. Ickes come out with a proposal that a whole colony of refugees from Spain be imported to the Virgin Islands in the zone of our most important defense, regardless of the well-known fact that such a mass importation would be sure to include a lot of Communists and, probably, the regular proportion of Nazi spies and saboteurs?

HE IS THE ONE, too, who was always making speeches to the Lawyers' Guild and the Newspaper Guild, which are known to be heavily infested with Communists and dominated by them, and if you can find anywhere in his stuff a condemnation of the manufactured famines and the massacres of people in Russia which equals in vehemence his denunciations of Hitler and Nazism you can get something for it, because that would be as great a rarity as those synthetic philatelic rarities of great value which he and some of his boy friends almost got away with in the early days of the New Deal.

Mr. Ickes is the official sic 'em of the Administration, and if you watch you will notice that he barks to orders in certain situations such as the Cudahy case.

The only fault I found with Cudahy's story was that it was a punk job of journalism. Its propaganda content immediately called up the memory of similar declarations by Hitler in other cases and defeated itself, but Ickes seems to think the American people can't be trusted to discriminate between propaganda and news. Well, as one who has been making propaganda for years, he is entitled to an opinion on that.

Labor Legislation

By Mark Sullivan

Defects Of The Labor Relations Law

SENDING TROOPS to take over the airplane manufacturing plant in California was an emergency remedy for a crisis—the President regarded the condition as intolerable and took a shotgun.

SULLIVAN

Just what were the features that made the condition a crisis? In other words, what features were present in this strike that have not been present in others? There were two that the President cited as justification. One was that this strike interrupted airplane production for defense. But this feature exists in scores of strikes. All over the country there have been, and still are, strikes in plants making armament. If a shotgun is a proper remedy for one such strike, it is a remedy for all. Clearly this cannot be admitted.

THE OTHER feature put forward to justify use of the Army in the California strike was this: Leaders of the C. I. O. union had demanded higher wages and had threatened to strike. The case had been taken up by the National Defense Mediation Board. The Board had brought about a preliminary understanding. Any increase of wages, if subsequently declared proper by the board, should be retroactive to May 1. And in the meantime work at the plant was to go on without interruption. This understanding was not lived up to by some of the workers at the plant.

But is breach of understanding by some out of a number of workers a justification for calling out troops? If it is, troops would have been busy all over the United States during several years past. While there may be few cases which literally duplicate this California one, few in which the Defense Mediation Board was involved, the essence of this situation has been duplicated over and over.

AGAIN AND AGAIN it has happened that another official body, the National Labor Relations Board, has certified that a given labor union had the right of collective bargaining in a given plant. Again and again, owners of the plant have bargained with the union thus certified by the Labor Board. And again and again there have been strikes by a fraction of the union, or by a separate union.

In no material sense did the California airplane strike differ from the scores of other strikes. Essentially, this California strike was a jurisdictional strike of a quite usual kind. In this case, the national heads of C. I. O. took one position, the local heads took a contrary position—and the strike resulted. In so many cases as to be commonplace, there have been similar jurisdictional conflicts, with similar result, between separate unions or factions of the same labor organization.

Are we to say that in strikes of this kind we are to have no preventive and no remedy—except a President with a shotgun?

If this is the condition, then we have a complete example of that which government in the United States is supposed not to be. We have an example of that which is forbidden by the American axiom of government which says that this shall be a government of laws and not of men.

TO SAY THIS is not necessarily to disapprove what the President did in this particular situation. The real fault here is that there is no law covering this kind of case, and that in the absence of a law the President was justified in taking an emergency step.

Just now, belatedly, Congress is busy with attempts to write a law—there are dozens of proposals, and much debate on them. Many of the suggestions, taking on the color of the emergency, in effect merely attempt to lay down special treatment for a special variety of cases, cases related to defense work. But any statute, written in the present atmosphere, inspired by an acute condition, is likely to be unsatisfactory. What is needed is such a law as would have been written, and ought to have been written, a year ago or two years ago, a law applying to a universal situation, not a particular and momentary one.

The fact is, two and a half years ago Congress began an attempt to write such a law. It was in the form of an amendment to the National Labor Relations law. To understand that attempt, and the whole of the present situation, begin with the Labor Relations Law itself. It was written in 1935. After some two or three years of experience under it, there was general recognition that the law as a whole was unworkable—certainly that the law was unworkable as administered by the then Labor Relations Board, and as interpreted by some New Deal judges and justices in some cases.

TO REMEDY the Labor Relations law, Congress, on January 13, 1939, began prolonged hearings and debate. In the House, amendments were perfected and adopted, on June 7, 1940, by a vote of 258 to 129. In the Senate, however, the suggestions for amendment of the Labor Relations law never emerged from the Senate Committee on Labor.

When the House passes legislation by more than 2 to 1, and the Senate does not even consider the legislation, the reason might be ordinary delay, or it might be opposition to the whole idea of amending the labor relations law. In either event, failure of the Senate to act on those amendments is primarily responsible for the condition we now regard as a crisis. The amendments as passed by the House may not be a perfect cure for the defects of the National Labor Relations law. But they are a beginning—and it is from this beginning that Congress should now work.

Miss Durbin Replies

Dear Benito:

I have received your letter to me through one of your newspapers chiding me for being among those young people of America who stand 100 per cent behind the President and it makes me feel quite uncomfortable. The idea of me, a little girl in the movies, getting a warning from a great big Dictator like you! It's all so sudden. I had no idea you cared.

I always thought you were so busy answering orders from Hitler and trying to find out what you were expected to do next that you had no time for movie actresses. It would have made me awfully self-conscious just to have thought that, even on the screen, I was being glared at disapprovingly by you. I tremble even now.

You say I am making a big mistake in being against the Axis, because you and Adolf are unbeatable and that all Americans like me will be left behind the eightball, which hurts you because you like young people and hate to think of having to devour little American boys and girls. You think I should keep out of any anti-Nazi movements and set that kind of an example for the young people of America. You say the boys and girls of Berlin and Naples are much happier and face a brighter future than those of my country. Heigh ho and alackaday!

You wouldn't fool me would you? I hope not, but I have read about your Italian boys and girls. It seems to me I have read that boys are trained for war from the cradle up. I've seen pictures of little school kids drilling in the hot sun when they ought to be out making mud pies or laughing at Mickey Mouse. And haven't I read about a little Italian duty being to do all the housework early, marry young and have more children than the Old Lady Who Lived in the Shoe?

Anyhow, Mister Mussolini, you are not half so sorry about me as I am about you. I know you are unhappy with Adolf. I know you would rather play in somebody else's yard. I am sure you are not nearly so hot for the Nazi way of life as you seem. I'll bet you would like to be a little boy or girl and come right out and give your honest opinion about German aggressiveness. I'll bet that if you could do it without anybody knowing it you would love to go into a movie theater and boo newsreels of Hitler.

You're sorry for little girls like me, mister! Well, am I sorry for big boys like you! Don't worry about me any more. I'll be all right. Sincerely, DEANNA.

P. S.—Tell Adolf NOT to write me.

Syria And The Larger Struggle

IN HIS RECENT address to the House of Commons in which he defended his government's conduct of the war, Winston Churchill made a point regarding the fighting in Crete which has equal validity with respect to the struggle now going on in Syria.

NOVER

Crete, said Churchill, was "only one part of an important and complicated campaign being fought in the Middle East." The vast scene, he added, "can only be surveyed as a whole." Indeed, the political, military and psychological factors involved in the Middle Eastern struggle cannot be understood without reference to what is going on in all the other theaters of the war.

WHAT HAS BEEN happening in Syria and Lebanon since the British and Free French forces first moved into that region on June 8 is still concealed from view as a result of British censorship and Vichy propaganda.

Several things are clear, however. In the first place, the British have evidently been acting with great caution. They have been staging no blitzkrieg in Syria. On the contrary, their campaign in its inception, at least, was fully as much political as military. In other words, they have tried to achieve their aims primarily through propaganda and persuasion, and only secondarily through military means.

In this respect the British have been employing exactly the opposite tactics from those employed by the Germans in Crete, where success was achieved in no small measure as a result of sheer recklessness as to the employment of men and materiel. This is not to say that the British are wrong in not imitating the enemy. For one thing, the British cannot afford to squander a man, or a gun, or a plane, or a ship, more than is absolutely necessary to insure victory. Besides, they may be justified in their assumption that except for isolated units ready to do the bidding of Gen. Dentz no matter what the consequences, Vichy's army of the Levant is shot through with disaffection and if given the chance will join the De Gaullists. Furthermore, the Free French forces in Syria and Lebanon are obviously loath to do battle with their fellow Frenchmen and would prefer to avoid such fraternal bloodletting if that is at all possible. But accepting these considerations for all they are worth, the fact remains that such a policy of caution has its dangers, and these dangers can be very real.

THE PROBLEM facing the Allies in Syria is not merely one of establishing themselves in that area, but doing so at not too great a cost and doing so quickly. For Syria, like Crete, is only one salient in a war of vast dimensions. It happens to be a highly important salient. But it is not as imporant, basically, as the Egyptian theater where, any day, the German-Italian offensive against Suez may be resumed.

In this connection it is less encouraging than ominous that during the first week of the Syrian struggle Hitler let the minions of Vichy do most of the fighting. German planes do not appear to have participated to any great extent in the struggle for Damascus and Beirut. But the Luftwaffe did carry out a severe raid on Haifa, the Palestinian outlet for Iraq oil and the seat of one of the few refineries in the eastern Mediterranean. In other words, Hitler appears to have been more anxious to interfere with future operations of the British fleet, which depends on Haifa for its oil (although alternative sources of supply are available) than to assist Vichy in repelling the British and their Free French allies.

It is not unlikely that one reason for the absence of large-scale German activity in Syria and Lebanon is that the British seized the initiative in that region and in so doing made it difficult for the Nazis to send troops there. Another reason may be, however, that Hitler is expecting Gen. Dentz and his troops to hold back the Allies for a long enough time to permit of an Axis offensive in Egypt.

THE RADIO ADDRESS delivered by Admiral Francois Darlan to the French people on June 10 makes it clear that the latter are by no means willing to follow Marshal Petain wherever he wants to go. Defeat has apparently not dulled their critical faculties or made them blind to the basic reality that the only real salvation for France is a British victory.

Darlan's outburst was compounded of petulance and frustration. He inveighed against those Frenchmen, apparently a very large number, who listen to the British radio and believe what they hear. He emphasized how difficult it would be to get any concessions out of Hitler in the way of a reduction of occupation costs, the return of the French prisoners and the lessening of border restrictions between occupied and unoccupied France unless there is a wholehearted policy of collaboration. But his speech makes it clear that he is anything but convinced that the French people favor such a policy or are willing to see it carried out. For that very reason, however, the men of Vichy are under obligation to make a real show of resistance in Syria and Lebanon. The Vichy troops who are doing the fighting in that region are laying down their lives to save Darlan's face.

The defensive tone apparent in Darlan's statement also suggests that the strong opposition manifested by the United States to Vichy's treacherous deal with the Nazis has not been without its effect on the French people and through them on Marshal Petain and his colleagues. For the time being, therefore, Vichy finds it necessary to move cautiously in implementing the agreement by which France was made a junior member of "the new order."

MORE IMPORTANT than the struggle in the Mediterranean is the Battle of the Atlantic. Churchill has revealed that shipping losses inflicted by German submarines, bombing planes and mines were lower in May than for some time past. The American naval patrol may have contributed to that development. As a result of the actions we are taking and may take the threat to the British lifeline may be removed. The day that happens Hitler will have lost the war.

In realization of this possibility Hitler has begun to put increased pressure on the Japanese to join the conflict. He cannot afford to allow the island empire to sit on the fence very much longer in the expectation that ultimately Tokyo, as Mussolini predicts, will live up to the obligations of the tripartite pact. At the same time the torpedoing of the Robin Moor by a long-ranging German U-boat operating in the South Atlantic suggests that Hitler is trying to draw American naval power from the sea lanes of the North Atlantic. In taking this step he may still be gambling on American peacemindedness to prevent the Government from carrying out a program of reprisals.

Two Commercial Agreements Signed by Japan and Russia

By the Associated Press

Tokyo, June 12.—A more intimate political and economic relationship between the Soviet Union and Japan was indicated today with signing of two new commercial agreements by which Tokyo enlarges her sources of raw materials and the markets for her goods and strengthens herself against economic blockade.

The newspaper Asahi said, "It is quite natural for Russia (and Japan also in the same situation) to approach Japan for trade, since the United States is using her raw materials for all-out aid to Britain."

The agreements were signed in Moscow yesterday, the Japanese news agency, Domei, disclosed today.

They called for a 60,000,000 yen (about $13,800,000) annual barter in addition to usual commercial transactions, Domei said.

A commercial pact provides for most-favored nation treatment regarding export and import tariffs, prohibitions and restrictions of imports and exports, shipping and cargoes, customs procedures, tonnage and harbor dues and pilot fees.

A trade and payments agreement provides that trade between Russia and Japan will be conducted on the principle of balancing imports against exports.

Signing of the pacts came as War Minister Gen. Eiki Tojo told a war materials conference that "it is absolutely necessary to prepare against Japan by organizing a national defense structure on the basis of raw materials obtainable in our coprosperity sphere."

Under the new agreements, Japan will export raw silk, machinery, camphor oil and miscellaneous goods to Russia and get petroleum, manganese ore, platinum, fertilizers and miscellaneous goods. Payments are to be based on the yen.

The agreement, it was announced, would necessitate inauguration of direct service to Vladivostok, Soviet Siberian port, from Niigata, Japan. Additional freighters will be placed in service.

Alsop And Kintner Drop Pens For Service With U. S. Forces

The last column of Joseph Alsop and Robert Kintner, Washington columnists for the New York Herald Tribune Syndicate, will appear in The Post Sunday, Alsop having received a commission in the Naval Reserve and Kintner having volunteered and been accepted by the United States Army. They probably will return to the syndicate when their tours of duty are over.

ALSOP

Alsop, 30 years old, a cousin of President Roosevelt, was sworn in on June 2, by Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, as a lieutenant junior grade. He has not been called to active duty, but may be the near future.

His duties have not been made public.

Kintner, 31 years old, volunteered for Army service and was accepted, but his commission and duties have not yet been announced. Like Alsop, he does not know when he will be called to active service.

Alsop first came to the Herald Tribune as a member of the city staff, in the summer of 1932. He was transferred to the Washington Bureau early in 1936 and left the paper the following year, Kintner, to write a Washington column for the North American Newspaper Alliance. The column switched to the Herald Tribune Syndicate on November 15 of last year.

KINTNER

Kinter joined the Herald Tribune early in 1933 as a member of the financial news department, covering the Stock Exchange. He was transferred to the Washington Bureau in 1935, covering financial and general assignments.

3 Groups Sponsor Garden Contest

The Barnard School Parent-Teacher Association, the Hampshire Heights Citizens Association and the Petworth Citizens Association announced yesterday that they are jointly sponsoring a contest in their area for the best lawns and gardens.

Final judging will be on June 22, when prizes will be awarded. Raymond E. Gable, Mrs. Emory Ellis and Arthur W. Reid are chairmen of the affair, which was originally suggested by the student council of the Barnard School.

Film of Latin America To Be Shown Tonight

Color motion pictures of Latin America will be shown at 8 o'clock tonight in Rock Creek Park, near Sixteenth and Kennedy Streets Northwest, by the National Capital Parks Campfire Program.

The movies will be supplemented by lectures by Dr. Pedro Larranaga, Peruvian author and economist; Manuel Giron, Guatemalan travel lecturer, and W. Bruce MacNamee, chief of the United States Travel Bureau. Admission is free.

Power Losses Through Drought Shown in Survey

The eastern portion of the United States lost a billion kilowatt-hours of needed hydro-electric power during May, the geological survey deported yesterday, because of drought-shrunk streams.

The amount of electrical energy lost, the report stated, was equal to 40 per cent of the hydro-electric power generated in the area in May, 1940.

The gloomy summary of drought effects on the output of energy so vital to the defense industries concentrated in the east quickly revived discussions here of possible restrictions on civilian consumption of electricity.

The report noted that in order to meet the power loss and keep a heavy defense demand filled, eastern power plants had increased their steam generation and, in some cases, brought back into use old emergency standby equipment.

New Food Stamp Racket Uncovered

New York, June 12 (INS).—A new racket in which between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000 is being obtained annually from the Federal food stamp distribution in New York City, alone, was disclosed today by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey.

This revelation came as two Harlem grocers were arraigned on charges of buying blue food stamps below par and redeeming them at full value. Agents buy up the stamps at a fraction of their value, clearing them through grocers who turn them in for cash, Dewey charged. He also said that thugs have waylaid recipients as they emerged from relief offices with the stamps.

Army Orders Armor-Plated Pillbox Forts

By Edwin Stout
Associated Press Staff Writer

Pittsburgh, June 12.—Armor plate pill boxes which the Army is to install by the thousands around Army, Navy and air bases from Bermuda to the Far East were disclosed for the first time today by the manufacturers.

The miniature fortresses, which also will be sent to England, were shown to returned war correspondents at the Union Casting Division of the Blaw-Knox Co.

William P. Witherow, president of the company, said he could not reveal how many would be made, but added the total number would be "in the thousands." Government permission to display the pill boxes was received only today.

They are approximately 9 feet high and will project 4 feet from the surface of the ground. The dome-like turret revolves and is made of cast armor plate which appeared thick enough to stop 37-millimeter shells. No details of armament were given, but the gun port was about the size used either for a 50-caliber machine gun or a 37-millimeter fast-firing cannon. It was equipped with periscope.

The part which goes below the surface of the ground has two holes, apparently for connection to ammunition and communication galleries to link the pill boxes in Maginot Lines around air fields, naval bases and Army posts.

Besides the pill boxes, the correspondents saw the National Tube Co.'s new factory where newly invented mass production methods have increased the capacity to 2,500 bomb casings and 13,000 shell casings a month. The bomb sizes run from 100 to 1,000 pounds and the shells from 3-inch antiaircraft to 5-inch naval projectiles.

Germans Drop Leaflets, R.A.F. Blasts Ruhr

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

London, June 11.—While the Luftwaffe was dropping bombs on widespread points in England and raining down thousands of propaganda leaflets that predicted Britain would starve "sooner or later" unless she gave in, the R. A. F. last night returned en mass to the Ruhr, seat of Germany's industrial strength, to set huge fires in Duisburg, Dusseldorf and Cologne.

The British attacks were on a heavy scale, as shown by the loss of eight planes. The navigator of one big British bomber which smashed at Cologne described a blaze in the northeast part of the city as the largest he had ever seen.

Other British forces early today bombed the docks at Ijmuiden and Rotterdam, in Holland, and at Dunkerque and Boulogne, in France, plus the seaplane base at Nordeney.

At daylight the R. A. F. apparently returned to its battering of the invasion ports on the coast of France, bombing shipping as well.

Britons on the Kentish coast saw waves of fighter-escorted British bombers racing across the Channel and a few minutes later heard the blast of bombs whose explosions were so heavy that doors and windows in England 23 miles away rattled and shook.

One enemy ship of 1,400 tons was bombed in the Channel and left sinking in today's operations, and a Nazi fighter plane was shot down.

Valeta, Malta, June 12 (AP).—Ten Axis warplanes were reported shot down into the sea around this British Mediterranean island base today by Royal Air Force fighter pilots lashing back with unusual success at Axis raiders which have killed 295 and seriously injured 310 civilians in the last 12 months of incessant bombing.

The Axis planes had again blasted the city—where 2,341 houses have been demolished in a year—during the night and then renewed their attack during the morning.

The British command said the success of the morning encounter could be attributed to effective cooperation of ground defenses and fighter planes.

Accurate antiaircraft fire broke up the raiders' formations, the British said, scattering the planes across the sky and making them ideal single targets for the fighter pilots.

Describing damage as negligible, a communique said:

"It has now been ascertained that five enemy aircraft were shot down into the sea this morning. This afternoon a second force attempting to reach the island was intercepted and driven off by fighters. Five were shot down, crashing into the sea, including a large twin-engined machine."

Soldiers' Club Granted License To Sell Beer Near Fort Meade

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Md., June 12.—A class one "on sale generally" beer license was granted today to the Blue and Gray Soldiers' Club, Inc., of Odenton, by the State Liquor Appeals Board which overruled action of the Anne Arundel County Liquor Board.

The county board had declined to grant a license for the club, to be located near Fort George G. Meade, on the grounds that it would be within 1,000 feet of a church, would be in a residential section, and would cause a traffic hazard.

The appeals board, after hearing testimony of Edward Hall, jr., county surveyor, ruled that the proposed project would be located more than 1,000 feet from church property.

Granting of the permit was opposed by the Rev. William Schmeiser, pastor of the Nicholas Memorial and Bethel Methodist Churches and other Odenton residents.

Evelyn A. Harrison, former St. John's College student, procurement officer and club president, said he planned to make the club a model of soldier entertainment for every cantonment. He said the project had the approval of Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, Twenty-ninth Division commanding officer at Fort Meade.

Hospital Facilities Will Be Increased

Fort George G. Meade, Md., June 12.—Hospital facilities here are to be increased by addition of several new buildings to the station hospital, Col. Daniel P. Card, post surgeon, said today. Construction is expected to start about July 1.

New buildings will include three wards for a total of 90 patients, two barracks, a four-car garage and filling station, a large recreation building for patients, a theater and a chapel. An administrtion building for the hospital detachment also will be constructed.

Col. Card said 45 men from the 104th Medical Regiment, Twenty-ninth Division, have been sent for training to the station hospital and will live in tents until the new barracks are completed.

Combat Team Moves 38 Miles in Drizzle

Fort George G. Meade, Md., June 12 (AP).—The 115th combat team, commanded by Col. D. John Markey, walked and rode through a steady drizzle today in a shuttle movement from Fort Meade to West Annapolis and return. The movement, over a round-trip distance of 38 miles, was a repetition of a maneuver held on Tuesday. The combat team tomorrow will make a 92-mile motor movement, traveling to the Cedarville State forest reservation, near Waldorf, Md., and return. It will be a rehearsal for a movement Monday to the Army's new training area at the A. P. Hill military reservation in Caroline County, Va.

The 115th team will be the first unit from the Twenty-ninth Division to use the Virginia area for maneuvers. The maneuvers will end on Friday and the team will return to camp at Fort Meade.

Stukas Sink Monitor Terror And Ladybird

By the Associated Press

Alexandria, June 12.—The Yangtze River gunboat Ladybird, which played a role in the Panay incident of 1937, and the monitor Terror, famous since World War days, have been destroyed by German dive-bombers off the African coast, the British announced today.

The Ladybird went down in a blazing finish May 12 in Tobruk harbor, her stern and middle torn apart by two huge bombs, fire pouring from her boiler room and her crew threatened by a possible magazine explosion.

But wounded gunners kept begging for orders and pumped metal from their six-inchers and pom-poms until the last gun went under the waves.

The monitor Terror was caught at twilight off the coast of Libya recently. A squadron of planes loosed a rain of 500-pound bombs in the teeth of her big and little guns. A storm of metal forced the attackers off, but some of their bombs were so close they caved in the Terror amidships, and it was necessary for a British cruiser to administer the coup de grace nine hours later.

The lightly armored Ladybird, 625 tons, built in 1915, was shelled by Japanese guns and hit four times on December 12, 1937, the day the U. S. gunboat Panay was sunk by Japanese bombers.

The Terror, 7,200 tons, built in 1916, was a slow moving, heavily armored, floating gun platform intended for bombardment of shore positions.

The Ladybird was attacked by 6 of 47 Nazi bombers which dived out of a glaring sun about 3 p. m. Bombs falling about shook her as in a tempest.

Said her commander, Capt. John Blackburn:

"Then there was a terrific screech. We got two heavy licks, one aft, another in the boiler room. All of us were knocked off our feet.

"The bombs quickly put the stern under water, raising the bow high. We were burning like hell amidships, fire pouring out of the engine-room. I saw many of my men dash into that inferno and carry out wounded, while the forward six-inchers and pompoms and machine-guns threw everything they had at the Nazi planes. The planes were swarming around like vultures, dropping more bombs. We shot down two.

"Even then sailors, gunners and ocers asked, 'Carry on sir, please'? They all stayed until I ordered them to abandon ship at the last minute. some men, badly wounded, kept passing up shells to the gunners until they had to cease fire."

Italian Ship Crew Guilty in Sabotage

San Juan, Puerto Rico, June 12 (AP).—Capt. Ettore Guigni of the Italian tanker Colorado, and 25 members of his crew were convicted of conspiracy and sabotage by a jury in Federal Court today. Sentence is to be pronounced later.

Capt. Guigni accepted full responsibility for the destruction of the Colorado, saying he had ordered his men to sabotage her under a threat to shoot anyone refusing.

The jury had been charged by the court to try the seamen "as if they were American citizens."

JOE COOK'S Swedish Meat Balls

1 egg
1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons grated onion
2 teaspoons Lea & Perrins Sauce
4 slices bread
¼ cup water
2 tablespoons shortening
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk

Combine meat, egg, salt, onion and Lea & Perrins Sauce. Toast bread slowly until dry and brown. Break in small pieces; add water to toast. Combine softened toast with meat mixture. Shape into small balls and brown in hot shortening. Remove meat balls from pan. Add flour, stir until smooth, then gradually add milk, stirring constantly until smooth and thickened. Place meat balls in gravy, cover and simmer about 15 minutes. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

The humble meat-ball calls for rounds of applause when served up in this delicious disguise. Credit Lea & Perrins Sauce with the elusive and oh-so-satisfying flavor.

Vote Sought On Recreation Board Today

The House District Subcommittee moved last night to give Washington a brand-new recreation setup by July 1.

Following an executive subcommittee session yesterday at which agreement was reached on details of the setup, Chairman John F. Hunter and legislative counsel worked to correct and improve the language of a draft recreation bill to make possible introduction of the measure today.

Citing desirability of enactment before expiration of the fiscal year, Hunter said he believed it would be possible to ask the full District Committee for a favorable report on the bill Monday.

Broad outlines of the legislation whose principal aim is to give a citizen-dominated board authority to take over and direct operation of all forms of recreation and all types of play facilities, were agreed upon by the subcommittee Tuesday. Here is a digest of the bill's principal provisions:

For 7-Members Board

The measure would set up a seven-member board with four citizen members whose appointment by the District Commissioners "shall take judicious account of the various parent, civic and other organizations through which residents of the District voice their civic wishes and advance the common welfare." One of the Commissioners, a representative of the School Board, and the superintendent of National Capital Parks would be the other members.

All questions of general recreation policy would be determined by the board and all recreation funds would be placed in its hands.

The board would be empowered to appoint a recreation superintendent to be responsible for direct supervision of a play program. His salary would be $6,000 a year, and he would be authorized to appoint, transfer or suspend—but not dismiss—recreation workers.

The kind of recreation programs which the board would be empowered to direct embrace those forms Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, told the subcommittee should be reserved for school board control as "supplementary education."

Gives Broad Powers

The bill specifically gives the board authority to operate major recreation centers, play fields, athletic fields, playgrounds, tennis courts, baseball diamonds, swimming pools, beaches, golf courses and recreation and social centers in schools, parks, or public-owned buildings.

Recreation fees, such as those charged for public golf, would be deposited in a trust fund and the money used to pay expenses and improve facilities.

All functions of the Community Center and Playground Departments, now jointly controlled by the Commissioners and the school board, are transferred to the recreation board. The transfer would include unspent trust funds and the salary of the recreation coordinator.

The board would be required to conduct its business in open meetings.

British Appeal To U. S. Labor

London (Friday), June 13 (U.P.)—Arthur Greenwood of the British cabinet early today broadcast an appeal to workers in the United States, where strikes threaten to delay aid to Britain, urging them to "play a full and active part in America's defense of democracy" and the defeat of Nazism.

Greenwood, who is minister without portfolio in the Churchill cabinet and a Laborite leader, asked the American workers in a transatlantic radio broadcast to stand side-by-side with British labor which "fights for our common liberties, common hopes and for the future."

Union Accuses 23 At Plane Plant

Newark, N. J., June 12 (AP).—The executive committee of Local 365, United Automobile Workers (C. I. O.), announced tonight a general meeting of the local had been called for tomorrow to act on charges of subversive activities against 23 members at the Long Island City plant of the Brewster Aeronautical Corporation. Busy on orders for fighter planes.

Officials declined to give details of the charges but indicated the situation was "similar" to that at the North American Aviation Co. plant, Inglewood, Calif., which was taken over by the Government.

American Forces In Bermuda to Get Paid in Pounds

Hamilton, Bermuda, June 12 (AP). United States soldiers, sailors and fliers stationed here and Americans working on the new military base will be paid, starting Saturday, in British money.

The circulation of United States and Canadian dollars will be frozen in Bermuda on that day under the terms of a government order announced today.

The order establishes a conversion rate of $4.04 to £1.

(In other words, an Army private's base pay of $30 a month, would work out to £7 8s 6½d, which, he will find, means 7 pounds, 8 shillings, 6 pence, ha'penny.)

This order will not prevent Americans from sending home in dollars whatever part of their pay they desire, as only money to be spent in Bermuda will be issued in the British currency.

The procedure will be for local banks to purchase dollars from United States sources at the official rate, making these dollars available to local merchants for essential purchases from the United States and Canada. Any surplus acquired would be transmitted to the Bank of England for the use of the British government.

Today's Bride Shares Limelight With Groom

By Martha Ellyn.
The Post Food Editor.

WHEN a girl of today is married to a prospective service man or one who has already been inducted into the Army she shares "her day." The groom is no longer a "mere accessory" to a wedding, for the spotlight now shines on him, as well as his bride.

Martha Ellyn.

Mrs. Muscoe Garnett—the former Dorothy Thomas—a recent bride, is one who has been having fun sharing social activities with her husband. When a shower was given honoring Dorothy, it also included her husband. And he received an assortment of gifts that he could take to camp, while Dotty received gifts that she will save until Muscoe comes home to enjoy them with her.

Instead of tripping away to "parts unknown" on a honeymoon, Dorothy and Muscoe drove to Dunnsville, Essex County, Va., to the Garnett home, Hill and Dale, that was built by slaves before the Civil War. Here they went fishing for perch and bass in the nearby Rappahannock, picked wild strawberries and relaxed in the beauties of Essex County.

This tramping about put an edge on their appetites. Dorothy had often tossed together some food for Muscoe, but had never made his favorite dish—hot biscuits. But Dorothy does know how to cook, and was very glad that she had come "face to face" with an old black cookstove in earlier years when she lived in West Virginia. The Garnett farmhouse is equipped with a cookstove for burning wood, and Dorothy cooked her first meal as "Mrs. Garnett" on it.

This first meal was no dainty assembly of filet mignon and baked Alaska. In fact, practically all of the items on Dorothy's menu were made from produce "picked" on the home place. The fresh garden peas, wild strawberries and cream were "hand picked." Here is the menu of her first dinner:

Dinner Menu

Deluxe Pork Chops
Garden Peas Buttered Beets
Lettuce Salad
Hill and Dale Dressing
Baking Powder Biscuits
Strawberries with Cream
Iced Tea

Pork Chops Deluxe, Mrs. Garnett says, means having the chops cut double thick and then cooking them slow and easy. First, they should be dredged heavily in flour and browned quickly on both sides, then covered to hold in the moisture, and the heat turned low so as to let them steam lazily along in their own juices for an hour or longer.

This slow cooking makes the chops tender and develops every bit of the rich pork flavor. Usually the gravy formed from the flour in which the chops are dredged and the water added, forms a gravy of the right consistency. However, Mrs. Garnett says if the gravy is too thick, water may be added, or if too thin, a bit of thickening may be used.

Muscoe is no exception to the true Southerner when it comes to his fondness for hot bread. "Hot biscuits belong on any menu," are Muscoe's exact words. So Dorothy followed the recipe in the cookbook given her at a shower and reports that delicate light biscuits that brought much praise from her husband were the result. This is the recipe she used:

Biscuits—Sift together 2 cups flour, ¾ teaspoon salt and 3 teaspoons baking powder. Cut or rub in 2 to 4 tablespoons shortening. Add 2-3 to ⅚ cup milk to make a soft dough, stirring just enough to make ingredients hold together. Turn out on a lightly floured board, knead gently for a half minute. Roll or pat into desired thickness. Bake in a hot oven, 450 degrees, for 10 to 12 minutes. Yield: about 18 2-inch bicuits.

Hill and Dale Salad Dressing—Mix ½ teaspoon dry mustard, ¼ teaspoon sugar and ½ teaspoon salt into a paste with 3 tablespoons tarragon vinegar. Add 1 teaspoon chopped onion, ½ teaspoon chopped parsley and 1 clove garlic, crushed. Let stand for 1 hour. Remove garlic. Then add 9 tablespoons olive oil slowly, stirring constantly to form an emulsion. Use just enough of the dressing to coat the lettuce leaves.

Gracious Art Of Dining Comes Back

By Elizabeth MacRea Boykin

TIMES must be better for most people in America, despite the lurid news from the rest of the world. Know how we know? Because of the revival of interest in dining rooms . . . when living is close to the margin financially, the gracious art of dining has often to go by the boards but the minute things economic relax a little the dining room comes up for attention. Not only our reader mail, but the manufacturers' records these last few months, indicate that Americans are buying dining room furniture again.

Of course we've always frowned on the dinette, the dining alcove, and all the other make-shift ideas for this most important family rite. If a separate dining room can't be afforded, we think it's nicer to have a genial big table in the living room—use it between meals for study, sewing, magazines and newspapers. Use it to sit around when you're having tea or cocktails—for a dining table is a very sociable center for talk and refreshments.

Inspiring Problem

Mrs. H. H. is involved in the sort of problem that really inspires us. Her dining room, which adjoins the living room, has an Ispahan rug, Chippendale ladder back chairs wth blue seats. There is a chair rail or dado around the wall about 36 inches from the floor. The room has a large bay window with a built-in window. There is a long stained glass window on the wall against which the buffet must go—in fact there is no unbroken wall space in the room. The questions she asks are. What wall paper? What draperies? She will do over the living room and hall at the same time. The living room is huge (it's an old house they've just bought). The woodwork is dark and there are two small stained glass windows here too. Here she has a Sarouk rug with a rose-red ground, a sofa in blue tapestry, three easy chairs, two in brown and cocoa tones, the third to be recovered. The furniture is eighteenth century English. What wall paper? What color for woodwork—or should it be painted What curtains? What furniture coverings? he entrance hall, stair well and upstairs hall are to be papered—what color?

Pale Cool Blue

We'd paper all these rooms in same paper, something in pale cool blue that gives the effect of a plain color, though actually it may be patterned in a hazy all-over design for practicality. Then paint the woodwork all in this same pale cool blue—and by all means paint it as that dark woodwork increases the broken-up effect. Then select a big scale flowered chintz on a white ground with the rose-red in the pattern—use this for draperies over plain white sheer curtains and for the slip cover. Have rose-red pottery lamp bases with crisp white shades. (If you have assorted old lamp bases to adapt, you could paint, them this color—the main thing about lamps nowadays is to have them big). If the stained glass windows are good ones, leave them . . . they might lend quite a nostalgic air to the room. If they offend, just cover them over with wall board and paper over this—apparently they aren't needed for light. Use the chintz for window seat cushions.

Hail Bride and Groom

Mr. and Mrs. Muscoe Garnett, a recent bride and groom, are shown above cutting the wedding cake served at a bride and groom shower given for them. This cake was so designed by a local pastry shop that the top layer, made of fruit cake, could be lifted from the bottom layer, and saved for the first wedding anniversary. No doubt the cutting of this lovely wedding cake will be a memory with Mr. and Mrs. Garnett down through the years. At this shower, the groom who was leaving for camp on the following day, received equally as attractive gifts as his bride. Flowers worn by bride came from her old home

Now Is Time to War on Moth

Moths are now reaching the height of their season of destruction, but your clothing will be safe from moths if you take the necessary precautions. First, clothing must be absolutely clean. A moth takes to a dirty spot as a duck takes to water.

Go to the housewares section of the department stores and you will find a reassuring assortment of moth destroyers. No-Moth, a solid, comes packed so that it may be hung in the top of the closet. One tin should be used for every 85 cubic feet of space, which is an average size closet.

After hanging these in the closet you can go away for the summer and know that your clothes are safe from moths, for No-Moth kills all stages of moth life and that includes moth eggs, moth worms and moths. It is marketed in a handy container releasing a pungently fragrant vapor which penetrates every nook and cranny. It does not cling, and clothing may be taken from the hangers and worn immediately. No-Moth is refillable.

No-Moth is also available with cedarizer, which imparts a delightful aroma to your closets—does not cling to clothes—contains full strength pure, natural cedar oils.

Snowwhite crystals that form gases and penetrate the heaviest materials are also a boon to the housekeeper. They are sprinkled from the can onto articles to be packed away. They evaporate slowly. They kill the moth egg and larvae as well as the moth. The housekeeper will find them invaluable for the protection of knit goods, blankets, carpets, draperies and woolen goods.

There is also a preparation of nugget crystals that kill moths, moth eggs and moth larvae and are especially prepared for electric vacuum cleaners, and also to protect woolens, rugs, furs, draperies, etc., that are to be stored.

A highly concentrated chemical is also obtainable to kill moths that are inside upholstered furniture and it prevents infestation if used with proper regularity. This chemical is stainless and is injected with a needle.

Dutch Spinach Dish A Distinctive Food

The Pennsylvania Dutch have always had a way of making thrifty dishes with appeal. Spinach is one green that they present in an especially palatable way. No doubt the use of the spices is what gives the spinach the added appeal. Here is a recipe for making it:

Pennsylvania Dutch Spinach—Dice 4 slices of bacon and cook until crisp. Remove bacon and add 3 tablespoons flour to the bacon fat. Stir until smooth. Mix 1½ cups water or potato water with 2 tablespoons sugar and 2 tablespoons vinegar and add this to the flour mixture. Cook together until thick. Remove from heat; stir in 1 beaten egg yolk and ¼ teaspoon dry mustard, ¼ teaspoon salt and dash of pepper and cook about 2 minutes. Combine this sauce and the diced bacon with 3 cups chopped, cooked spinach. Heat through. Serve garnished with hard-cooked eggs which have been sprinkled with paprika.

A New Tid-Bit

Pork Is Excellent Vitamin Source So Necessary for Growth

Pork has recently won new prestige, in the opinion of nutrition experts. It has long been a favorite meat on American tables because of its fine flavor and its satisfying "staying" quality. Now scientific research has shown that there is a good reason why it should be included freely in the diet.

Pork is an excellent source of thiamine, called Vitamin B1, a member of that important vitamin B group. Thiamine stimulates the appetite. It is needed for growth. It promotes the health of body cells. It aids in the utilization of other foods, notably carbohydrates. Riboflavin, or vitamin B2, is also contributed by pork. A deficiency in these food elements results in loss of appetite, a feeling of weakness, a general loss of "pep."

Since these vitamins are not stored in the body, the daily diet should include an adequate supply if one's health is to be up to par.

Pork chops and pork steaks are among the most popular cuts, for they are easily prepared. Although they are tender, they are more successfully cooked by braising than by broiling. Slow cooking in moist heat is desirable to bring out the full rich flavor of the pork, which should always be cooked to the well-done stage.

Pork chops cut from the rib section, loin chops and steaks cut from the shoulder are all cooked in the same way. Rib chops may be cut so that each contains a rib, or they may be thinner so that there is one boneless chop between each one containing a rib.

Pork chops and steak are excellent for cooking with other foods. A delicious blend of flavors is thus obtained. Besides, this is a very convenient way of cooking the main part of a meal.

Pork makes a delicious summertime salad. Miss Inez S. Willson, home economist for the National Live Stock Meat Board suggests making a pork apple salad. Here is her recipe:

Pork Apple Salad—Dice cooked pork to make 2 cupsful. Add 1 cup diced celery, 1½ cups diced apples, 1½ cups grated cheese and 1 green pepper, shredded. Mix well with enough mayonnaise to give ingredients a good coating.

Miss Willson also suggests varying the garnish of a pork roast by placing red and green glazed apples around the meat. Pork chops she thinks are attractive with bundles of broccoli placed between the chops on the serving platter.

June Inventory

Oh what is so flat as a purse in June,
When friends you've not seen for many a moon,
Send you bids to see their kids commence
Their daughters marry—at your expense?

Today's Social Notes

(From the Truthtown Torch)

Mr. and Mrs. DeLancey Archibald Squab are attending the commencement exercises at the Eiderdown Problem School where their son DeLancey Archibald Squab, jr., is being graduated. Young Squab (known as Puffy) previously attended the Eton Jacket Academy, the Young Masters' Boarding Home, the Fauntleroy Preparatory School and Miss Plusher's Kindergarten.

The Ditherton Doolittles are seeing their younger son D'Arcy (known as Diz) graduated from Whoopee College. Young Doolittle, who spent the last eight years at the college, was a member of the Yachting Club, the Darsmen, the Tennis Club, the Crap and Poker Club, the Weekenders, the Dutch treaters, the Beer Guzzlers, the Tavern Ten, The Campus Cut-Ups, and the Glamour Men.

The Old Clothes Committee for War Refugees has had a profitable week. Mrs. Radcliffe Uppercut contributed a handsome pink and black evening gown of real Paris lace which was torn in only a few places; Mrs. Hawksberry Weathercock brought in a suitcase full of sequin and lame boleros as good as new; Mrs. Charlemagne Tweedle gave an ermine evening jacket, which had enough good skins in it to make handsome dress trimmings; Mrs. Forsythe Bleakhouse gave several pairs of gold and silver evening slippers, and Mrs. Ethelbert Vanderpuffer brought in an old opera cape of her husband's as well as several of his discarded top hats.

Sun Tan Score

Mrs. Thornberry Flitt is holding her leadership in this season's sun tan marathon. Just back from a New York weekend Mrs. Flitt is the first socialite here to boast a complete Long Island tan. Last January Mrs. Flitt was the first Truthtown leader to show up with a Palm Beach tan. She then bleached out and returned at Easter with a Bermuda tan. After bleaching for the Little Season, Mrs. Flitt acquired the first California tan in these parts. She will leave soon for Maine where she presumably will get the first New England tan.

The Veiled Lady

You are going to take the veil off your hat if it is the last thing you ever do. It catches on everything—on your coat buttons, your lapel gadget, your earrings, your clip, your necklace, your wrist watch, your glove buttons, on the prongs of the umbrella you are trying to raise in a torrent of rain.

It gets imprisoned in your pocketbook, your zipper fastening, in the door you are shutting, and even on the vest buttons of strange men you encounter in crowds. It gets in the shrimp mayonnaise and in the punch when you lean over tables at cocktail parties. It picks up elastics, hairpins, brooches off your dresser, and entwines strange objects which you must disentangle with nerve wrecking patience.

It causes you to step gingerly and awkwardly into taxis and in its careful protection you get your hat knocked sideways. On the street when gusts of wind blow it rises straight up and performs strange gyrations high above your head. Yes you will take it off and be a neat practical and comfortable woman for the rest of the summer.

And yet—well it is a sort of protection on those days when you don't want your friends to say "You're looking a little tired, dear" . . . and it does soften the harsh straw of a summer hat . . . and it really does something for your face . . . and it makes you look more completely dressed on the street . . . and well, it makes you feel different—so feminine and alluring and mysterious and assured and less your everyday prosaic self. Maybe those harem girls weren't so dumb after all . . . Anyway you'll leave it on another week or so.

Launderers Give Tips on Buying Men's Underwear

Careful buying of men's underclothes will be a preventive of laundry troubles such as shrinkage, pulling out of seams, button breakage and stretching of elastic. The American Institue of Launderinz gives the following suggestions for underwear selection.

Undershirts. Look carefully to see whether the neck is firmly bound and low enough to slip easily over the head without straining the opening. Low necklines also prevent the under garment from showing when open-collared sports shirts are warn.

Armholes. These should be well bound and big enough to give the wearer full freedom when using his arms and to prevent strain in sports.

Shorts. Allow sufficient room in the seat and crotch to provide ample comfort, to prevent binding, twisting and crawling up when the wearer sits down. Properly fitting shorts should be bought by size, determined by measuring the waist at the time the shorts are bought—not measurements taken six months ago.

Legs. Make sure legs are properly bound or seamed and that they are full enough to prevent binding.

Waistband. Exact measurements bring greatest comfort and assure more service whether shorts have an elastic or cloth waistband.

Colors. They should be guaranteed fast to washing. Look for the label.

Preshrunk. Anything other than preshrunk fabrics are almost sure to result in discomforture and short service. Look for the label.

Guaranteed launderable buttons, thread and elastic insure longer service. Look for the label.

Marlene Dietrich Feels Best in Black

Hollywood, Calif.—For the first time in her motion picture career Marlene Dietrich will wear house dresses, aprons and other housewifely garb.

Now if this is disconcerting news to Dietrich admirers, we're equally happy to report that these homey scenes are sweet but few. There is also a plentiful helping of unusually alluring clothes designed by Milo Anderson.

Black dominates the wardrobe at the star's own request. Miss Dietrich feels best in black, names it her "most confident color" and believes it one of the most flattering to greenish-blue eyes and honey-colored hair. There is also a great deal of blue.

Outstanding among the many black costumes is an evening gown in marquisette over a flesh-toned slip and embroidered with black sequin flowers and leaves. It also reintroduces black chiffon hosiery for feminine approval—and masculine. Women discarded these sheer, dark hosieries, but Milo predicts their complete restoration to femine favor before fall.

Black and deep blue, a color combination Miss Dietrich favors in her own wardrode, blend in an ensemble featuring a black chiffon tunic with fabric satin stripe over a slender black crepe swirt.

Haberdashery Gifts Advised For Father

By Jane Driscoll
The Post Fashion Editor

WHEN FATHER has his day on Sunday he will no longer be the underprivileged member of the household. The family purse strings will be loosened, and he will come into his own as a better dressed man.

It is important that a man appear prosperous in the business world, and one of his best "attention getters" is a good-looking hat. Other gifts that will spruce up his appearance are new shorts, ties and jewelry, especially in the matching sets available.

The stiff sailor and panama hats that have been for years the summer head covering for men are now sharing popularity with numerous other featherweight type hats. In all, there are about 300 new styles of summer hats. Each has its special quality of comfort and appearance.

Brighter Hat Bands

Most popular in the lot are the light-weight straws—the palm leaf open meshes, Philippine palms and braids, Bakus, shantung straws, Hanoki straws, cocoanut braids and Bangkok straws. According to a buyer of men's furnishings in a local store, older men are gradually becoming accustomed to the brighter puggree bands on hats, and many prefer them.

In summer shirts, men's preference lies with the sheer, lightweight cottons in self-stripe and meshes, and white and pastel colors. The self-stripes and meshes vary in different widths and sizes from the sheer pique weave to the very wide mesh. There is a general tendency toward the sloping collar with longer points. Many of these points just rest on the chest. They look neater, and do not require pins.

Bolder Ties

Since a man usually wears a light-colored summer suit and harmonizing furnishings; he relies on a bright colored tie to relieve the situation. He goes in for the bold pattern English foulards and those of the Charvet type. Washable Palm Beach ties are also shown in stripes, checks and, for the first time, in all-over prints. On the whole, the larger figure is more distinctive with the plain suit.

As for other furnishings, the handkerchief may be a hand-blocked silk foulard that carries out a color in the tie. No attempt is made, however, to match the tie exactly. Jewelry also harmonizes with the tie and handkerchief in matching sets of key chain, tie clasps and cuff links set with stones or cameos.

Braided Hair For Cool Effect

Your hair may look best in a long, thick mane, but it's not so much fun when the thermometer runs a temperature. For such occasions, the stars in Hollywood have taken a style from their childhood days. With play clothes and casual frocks, they do their hair up in braids. Maureen O'Hara is wearing the coolest of checked ginghams, cut pinafore style; to match, her hair is parted straight down the middle from forehead to neckine, each side braided, tied half way down with checked ribbons. The ends of the plaits curl obligingly.

Frances Neal really goes little girl with her braids, which she plaits to the ends, then turns up in baskets and ties with ribbons to match her shorts or slacks.

On Eve of Wedding, Girl Tells Fiance About Affair With Man to Whom She Had Been Engaged Before; Shocked and Depressed, He Asks for Guidance

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Mine is a story that you probably have heard many times. While attending a local college, I fell deeply in love with a girl who seemed to be everything I needed to make me happy. She loves me intensely, I am sure. We had planned to be married immediately after my graduation this month.

After the engagement had been announced and every preparation was moving along nicely, she made the shocking confession to me that she had had an illicit affair with a man to whom she had been previously engaged. The story surprised me so violently that I have thought of little else since. It sends me into long periods of depression and sadness, until now I fear that it will seriously injure our impending marriage.

We are still so much in love that we cannot call the whole thing off. Can you help us in such a way as to repair all the damage that this thing has caused? I will appreciate anything you can do for us.
Sincerely,
H. O.

Man's Reaction Unfair to Girl

DEAR H. O.: Your morbid melancholy means that you are feeling sorry for yourself. You think you are the injured party here. But I am sure the "violent surprise" you experienced at hearing the girl's courageous, scrupulously honorable (and yet, from one viewpoint, wholly unnecessary) declaration of her affair, pales in comparison with the sick dismay, the sense of shame and guilt, she must suffer as a result of your excessively prudish reaction to her "confession."

You consider yourself deceived by her, of course,—because, so you think, she let you fall in love with her and, indeed, waited until wedding plans were "moving along nicely," before taking you into her confidence. but she was equally (or perhaps more) mistaken about you,—in supposing, firstly, that in wanting to marry her, you loved her in the true meaning of the word, which is to say, "with a feeling of strong personal attachment induced by sympathetic understanding;" and, secondly, that you possessed that noblest of human virtues or spiritual attainments, to-wit: compassion, which is, "tender, clement and merciful concern for the distress or misfortune of another."

Remember, however, that decent reticence alone would prohibit her from confessing so intimate an experience to you, unless and until she was convinced that you were thoroughly committed to the proposition of sharing her life, and therefore entitled to enter fully into her confidence. In telling you the truth, in due season, she proved the artless honesty and aspirational quality of her nature; whereas you discredited yourself by the manner in which you reacted to her open handed attitude.

Rightly viewed, it was the Truth Telling that mattered, in this instance; and not the details of the story told. She assumed, I think, that you were big enough and pure enough, in heart and understanding and character, to comprehend and respond to her essential purpose that there be no "withholding" in the relationship. She saw you, I think, in terms of herself,—ingenuous and generous; disposed to think the best of others, to look charitably upon their frailties; and believing it possible (for one's self and others) to grow toward perfection, using chance mistakes as stepping stones to a higher level of being and doing.

Could she have guessed the limited, rigid, priggish reaction you would bring to her proffer of truth—as a priceless foundation stone on which to build the marriage—she wouldn't have divulged this regrettable experience; but then, neither would she have wanted to marry you. No woman wants to marry a man who can't stand up to, who can't keep his balance in the face of, the Facts of Life—including the fact that fine men and women, since time immemorial, have occasionally made the mistake of loving "not wisely but too well."

I have discussed your perturbation with a specialist in human behavior, who remarks that "life is consistently more difficult, on the social-emotional plane, for girls than for men, as an reasonable man should be willing to concede. It is the nature of man to be aggressive and persuasive in courtship, regardless of his 'intentions'; and the nature of woman to be pliant and yielding. With the whole weight of nature against her, an unsophisticated girl is to be condoned, rather than criticized, if a man takes advantage of her feeling for him.

"And if this young man," he said of you, "has such lofty ideals, is so austerely puritanical, as to consider this girl's misstep unpardonable, then she would be well advised to give him 'the bum's rush' and go on without him. Obviously she is not 'a loose woman.' Her reputation has not been besmirched, and neither has her character—as witness her laudable integrity in telling him the whole truth. Now, the man has a choice to make.

"Let's put it this way," the specialist said. "Is he able to fit into the situation which her confession has created? Can he accept her with a fully forgiving and forgetting attitude toward her past? If not, then he should have the integrity to bow himself out of the situation, without any reproachful lament. He has no right to sit in judgment upon the girl's earlier experiences. As I get the picture, she has been trying to deal honorably with him, and he is repaying her by making her feel terribly. And that's no basis on which to make a marriage. Let him either measure up to her expectations of fine understanding or admit that he can't, and call the deal off." I trust these remarks give you the perspective you need for making a final, wise decision, and abiding by it.

M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Accent on Eyes

Most screen stars and Hollywood make-up men believe that proper make-up—both for the screen and private life—should accent the eyes. This means that the up-to-date star is using only a hint of rouge and powder, perhaps only the pancake powder foundation. Also out of favor is the exaggerated mouth in exaggerated red. For daytime wear, Anna Neagle uses only brown mascara, a little eyebrow pencil, rose lipstick, no other make-up at all.

It's About Time

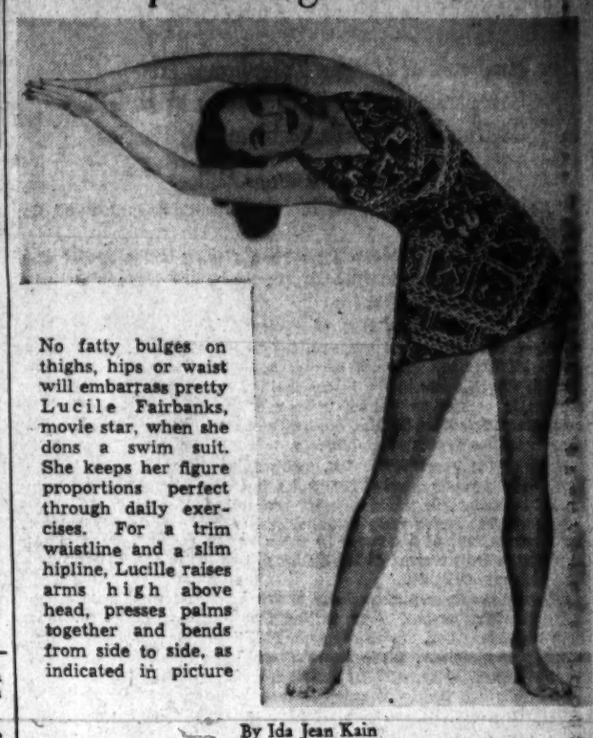
IT'S ABOUT TIME to tie a long, white eyelet cotton apron over a plain, dark dinner dress. A full-circle skirt pattern for this with center back seam left open. More eyelet cotton makes the waistband and ties . . . or velvet ribbon color of dress

Two Weeks of Regular Exercise Will Improve Figure for Beach



No fatty bulges on thighs, hips or waist will embarrass pretty Lucile Fairbanks, movie star, when she dons a swim suit. She keeps her figure proportions perfect through daily exercises. For a trim waistline and a slim hipline, Lucille raises arms high above head, presses palms together and bends from side to side, as indicated in picture

By Ida Jean Kain

IF YOUR figure is so bad that you won't don a swim suit, there won't be any use in telling you this summer that swimming is the perfect exercise. But if I can shame you now into doing the exercises that will give you as lovely a figure as any on the beach nobody will have to coax you to go swimming.

Put on your bathing suit and take a good, critical look at your figure. You may not be proud of it, but there is nothing wrong that cannot be fixed. What you probably need is a program that will straighten your shoulders, strengthen the midriff muscles, slim the hips and firm the thighs.

With just a few of the right exercises, you can do all that. If you will start today and do this set every day for one week, you will feel so much firmer and slimmer that you will want to keep on. And by the end of two weeks you will look so much better that nothing could stop you!

To Tone Muscles

Start off with an exercise that tones the muscles of stomach and hips and reduces both measurements. Get down on the hands and knees on the floor. Reflexly contract the abdominal muscles and raise alternate legs backward from the hips, straightening the knees, and stretching the legs. Repeat five times, rest, and repeat five more.

Another good exercise for the midriff calls for a stretching bar, but you can use a door. Open the door back against the wall so it will be steady. Then stand with right side against the door, and stretch up until you can grasp the top of the door with your right hand.

When you have done that, flex the left knee toward your chest and pull it toward you with the left hand. Stretch and pull for a second and relax. Repeat three times on the right side, then turn about and perform with left side to the door.

Try This for Posture

Sit down, tailor fashion, with the back pressed against a wall where there is plenty of space. First, try to flatten the entire back against the wall. Pull up with the abdominal muscles and push back with the small of the back, the shoulders and the back of your neck.

Hold that position and place fingertips on shoulders with thumbs against the wall and forearms and upper arms touching the wall. Try to keep the thumbs, forearms and upper arms against the wall as you straighten arms sideward and slowly lower them. Repeat five times, accurately or not at all! This is excellent posture and general exercise, but it must be done correctly.

Now, for an exercise that will fill out the ugly thigh hollows and smooth the bulges. Here it is: Lie on the side on the floor with the legs straight down. Raise top leg slowly from the hip, high in air, hold, and lower. Repeat ten times. Raise leg high in air again and describe wide circles. Keep the knee straight and make the hip muscles work. Repeat ten times in one direction, then lower and rest before repeating ten times with leg circled in other direction. Perform for the same number of counts on other side.

Those exercises are work, but they pay off in loveliness. With them you can make a world of difference in the way you look and in the fun you have.

International Inspirations

Hollywood, Calif.—Mona Maris at the moment spies on other nations for her fashion inspiration. She was the first to introduce her native South American clothes to girls north of the border in a series of heavy line serape jackets of heady color. They're meant for slacks and have bright matching belts. Noca Nona is adopting the oriental themes as well. She has a wide-brimmed hat of rough yellow straw with crown suggesting a pagoda. It's spaced with grosgrain ribbon to soften the silhoutee and is worn with a print. This shows large lime yellow flowers appliqued on black.

Mrs. Sterling's Dance for Miss Anne Bullitt Draws Hundreds of Guests, From Many Places

Husband of Hostess Telephones His Compliments From Stockholm at Height Of One of Capital's Outstanding Parties

By Hope Ridings Miller

"Stockholm calling Anne Bullitt! Transatlantic telephone call for Miss Bullitt!"

Meyer Davis and his orchestra stopped playing in the middle of a waltz and a line opened up through the throng of dancers in the ballroom of the Sulgrave Club.

Pretty Miss Bullitt, daughter of William C. Bullitt, stepped out in a cloud of white tulle and was escorted to the telephone. The United States Minister to Sweden, Frederick A. Sterling, was on the wire, to pay his compliments to the honor guest. Even though he couldn't be present in person, he wanted to have some share in the fun, while Anne was being feted by Mrs. Sterling at a dance that wrote a colorful chapter in Washington's social history.

None of the guests could tell, incidentally, from the perfect composure of the young guest of honor, just how much heartache had been caused by that same "cloud of tulle" earlier in the evening.

Scheduled to arrive early in the afternoon, the party frock had not been heard from at a quarter to seven in the evening, when about 14 photographers arrived at the Bullitt apartment in the Shoreham to take pictures of the deb.

After three-quarters of an hour of frantic telephoning, both gown and dressmaker arrived, only to find that the dress didn't fit. For almost another hour, diplomatic papa Bullitt supplied food and drink to the photographers, while harassed dressmakers ripped the frock apart and literally sewed Miss Bullitt into it.

When the deb finally emerged to face a battery of flashing bulbs and clicking cameras, she was already late for the dinner given by Mrs. Lee Warren and scheduled for 8:30. Nerves, taut from excitement and delay, snapped for a few moments into a tear mist, but the staunch little soldier who stood by her Ambassador father during the blitzkrieg of Paris, pulled herself together and went on to the party with head high and smiles shining through.

Beginning at 11 o'clock, the event which combined all the best features of a ball, a reception and an indoor garden party, drew several hundred guests not only from Washington but from New York, Boston, Philadelphia and points West and South.

The entire second floor of the Sulgrave Club had been transformed into a bower of roses to serve as a setting for the bud of the evening. For weeks florists here and in New York have been holding back masses of red and pink rambler roses for the occasion. And last night, they were in full blossom all over improvised trellises arranged around the walls. Chandeliers and the ceiling were also covered with roses, as were three enormous arches—one at the bottom of the stairway, one at the top, and one at the entrance to the ballroom.

Roses also stemmed from flower boxes forming pretty borders around the spacious rooms of the club, and indirect lighting came out from tall standards which were disguised as bouquets of sweetheart roses entwined with smilax. Vases of long-stemmed red, white and pink roses were arranged at attractive intervals around the rooms and were also used as centerpieces for the small tables at which supper was served downstairs after midnight.

William C. Bullitt, former United States Ambassador to France, did not receive with Mrs. Sterling and his daughter, but he was here, there, and everywhere, greeting friends, collecting groups of them around him and looking on proudly as the honor guest of the evening smiled sweetly at each person in the long line that approached her. She and Mrs. Sterling stood near the entrance to the ballroom in a bower of magnolia trees, which were brought in at the last minute and served as the final lavish accent for the magnificent setting.

Supper Served At Midnight

Miss Bullitt wore a portrait dress of white tulle, fashioned on simple lines with a fitted bodice, an off-the-shoulder, softly-draped fichu and a billowing skirt made with layer on layer of tulle falling over an appliqued pattern of red camillias on the white satin underslip.

Mrs. Sterling was gowned in pastel blue chiffon, which had insertions of black shadow lace in an intricate design all over the full skirt and the fitted bodice. She wore a simple string of pearls. (Most of her jewels, incidentally, are still in Stockholm where she left them when she departed hastily with her children at the beginning of the war.

Mrs. John R. Williams, who sat near the entrance to the ballroom, was gowned in black net, showered with spangles.

Movie Actress Gail Patrick, softly draped in gray lace complete with a hood over her dark hair, was squired through the crowd by Mrs. Lionel Atwill. "That's the Polish Ambassador," said somebody, pointing toward bearded Representative George H. Tinkham, of Massachusetts, who might easily pass for a diplomat in any gathering. Alice Longworth in a dark red dress, moved through the crowd and stopped to chat with friends on all sides. Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman sat near the top of the stairway and gathered a whole court around her. Others seen nearby were Arthur Bradley Campbell, who will be off soon for California to spend the summer. James H. R. Cromwell, the Brazilian Ambassador and Mme. Martins, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carroll Glover and Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Perrin.

Drinks were served both upstairs and down, and the first floor was a moving mass of guests at midnight, when supper was served. A center of much attention on the long buffet was a huge rockfish, decked out with truffles and surrounded with a variety of suitable decorations. I understand that Mrs. Sterling always had a similar piece de resistance at her parties in Europe, and last night's fete here was in a manner of carrying on the type of entertainments for which she is famous on both sides of the Atlantic.

Speaker Rayburn At Williams' Dinner

A record number of dinners accented last evening's calendar as preludes to the dance. Mrs. John R. Williams entertained a large company at Pierre's and Percy Blair was host to a smaller group of guests at Anderson House. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clagett had friends dining with them, as did the Minister of Sweden and Mme. Bostrom, Miss Mabel T. Boardman, Sir Willmott and Lady Lewis, Capt. and Mrs. Edward MacCauley, Mr. and Mrs. James Clement Dunn and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Jenkins.

Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn was ranking guest at the dinner given by Mrs. Williams. Others there were Senator Arthur Capper, Mr. and Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, Mr. and Mrs. John Wiley, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Davis, the Solicitor General and Mrs. Francis Biddle, Mr. and Mrs. Tudor Gardiner, of Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Myron Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Rodman Wanamaker, Mrs. Gwladys Hopkins Whitney and Mrs. John Vernay, of New York; Mrs. George Earl, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, William Taylor, of Philadelphia; Benjamin Plunket, Charles Winn, William C. Bullitt and Mrs. Sterling.

Younger Set At Chevy Chase

Bride-elect Rose Chatfield-Taylor was the guest in whose honor Miss Anne Sperry entertained at a dinner at the Chevy Chase Club, later taking her guests on to the dance. Others there were Miss Nancy Glover, Miss Georgianna Flather, Miss Jessie Kauffmann, Mrs. John Kernochan, of New York; the former Adelaide Chatfield-Taylor, Miss Rosemary Merrill, Miss Eugenia Merrill, Miss Mary Achilles, of Schnectady, N. Y.; Miss Nancy Orr, of Chicago; Miss Camilla White, of Boston; Miss Katherne Whittaker, of Cincinnati; Peter Dean, George Hart, John King, Paul Metcalf, Hugh Latham, Henry Reuss, William Sheldon, Hobart Chatfield-Taylor, William Carey, Charles Glover, Harry Hoskinson, Frank MacMurray and Keith Merrill.

Miss Joan Dodd, daughter of Mrs. Jouett Shouse, was also a dinner hostess at the Chevy Chase Club, having as her guests Miss Nedenia Hutton, Miss Elizabeth Stewart-Richardson, Miss Marianna Evans, Miss Peggy Lansdowne, Miss Ruth Meyer, Rufus Johnson, Robert Wallach, Judson Bowles, Barry Wood and John Taylor.

Miss Bullitt herself was one of a large company attending the dinner given by Mrs. Lee Warren at the 1925 F Street Club. The fete was arranged in honor of Miss Camilla Edge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Evans Edge, of Washington, and Mrs. Warren's neice, Miss Lenore Thomas, of Denver, Colo.

Others at the dance included a representative group from the diplomatic and official contingent; a sizable number of residential Washingtonians and dozens of out-of-towners.

Just a few of the hundreds (I'm sure at least 800 guests turned out) there were the Secretary of War and Mrs. Henry Stimson, the Secretary of the Navy, Frank Knox; Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, jr., and the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Jesse Jones. Everywhere you turned, these seemed to be one Senator or another, and diplomats were liberally sprinkled through the crowd.

Greeting friends on all sides was Mrs. Walter Dillingham, of Honolulu, and Rear Admiral and Mrs. Adolphus Andrews, down from New York for the party. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss were there; also, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Davies, Prince and Princess Hohenlohe and the Assistant Secretary of War and Mrs. Robert Lovett. Mrs. Cordell Hull appeared briefly to greet Mrs. Sterling and the honor guest. Justice and Mrs. Stanley Reed were there; also, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Rockefellr, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, Mr. and Mme. T. V. Soong and Justice and Mrs. Felix Frankfurter.

Formal Debut Later This Month

Still others there were Senator and Mrs. Millard Tydings, Mrs. Altemus (Liz) Whitney, Miss Marguerite LeHand, Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, Mr. and Mrs. George Sloan, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Stettinius, Countess Donald Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Hatch, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Sherman Miles, Clarence Hewes, Maj. Gen. Allen Gullion, Mr. and Mme. Camille Chautemps and hundreds more.

Life has certainly been whirling at top speed for Miss Bullitt the past few days and there's no sign of a let-up any time soon. Graduated from the fashionable Foxcroft School a few days ago, she has been busy with college board examinations since then. Accompanied by her father, she will be off soon to their summer home, Meadow Farm, at Pennylln, Pa., where the latter part of this month she will make her official bow to society at a large dinner and dance given by Mr. Bullitt.

Marjory Custis Becomes Bride Of J. H. Watson

At a high noon ceremony yesterday at All Souls' Unitarian Church, Miss Marjory Elaine Custis, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. B. Gregg Custis, became the bride of Joseph Hicks Watson, son of Dr. and Mrs. Rudolph B. Watson, of St. Petersburg, Fla. The Rev. Uylsses G. Pierce officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a lace-bodiced, full-skirted gown of white net. Her long veil was of heirloom lace and her bouquet was a casacade of white carnations.

Betty Lee Price Is Maid of Honor

Miss Betty Lee Price, the maid of honor, was dressed in marquisette of a deep lilac shade, set off with a pale lilac organdy hat. She carried an arm bouquet of mixed flowers. The bridesmaids, Miss Peggy Essary, Miss Betty Lou Jones, Miss Patsy Jones and Miss Helen Custis wore dresses of pale lilac marquisette and skull caps of natural flowers adorned by large lilac bows and streamers of tulle. They carried old-fashioned bridesmaid's bouquets.

Rudolph B. Watson, jr., served his brother as best man and the ushers were Robert W. Lee, of Massachusetts; Lieut. Robert Miller, of Oklahoma; John Ptromm, of Allentown, Pa., and Norment Custis, all college classmates of the bridegroom.

Before the ceremony, Miss Barbara Bolling, a classmate of the bride at Holton Arms School, sang "I Love You So" and "For You Alone." Donald Gillett accompanied her on the organ.

Reception Held At Custis Home

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the Custis home in Wesley Heights. Mrs. Custis wore a powder blue lace gown with matching hat and shoes and a corsage of pale pink roses. The bridegrooms's mother chose a frock of pale pink chiffon and an old-fashioned corsage of mixed flowers.

After the reception the couple left on a motor trip which will be followed by a summer vacation at the home of the bridegroom's parents at Thousand Islands, N. Y. The bride's traveling costume was a sheer wool coat of aquamarine, worn over a matching crepe dress. An orchid corsage and accessories of natural linen completed her ensemble.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. John J. Early, of Greenfield, Ind.; Mrs. C. A. Hicks, grandmother of the bridegroom, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Benjamin Watson, brother of the bridegroom, also from St. Petersburg; Miss Olive Gibson and Mrs. Edward Howard, of Richmond, Va.; Mrs. Clayton O. Keedy and the Misses Emma and Katherine Thompson, of Frederick, Md., and Miss Mable Oglesby, of New York City.

Marjorie Kerbey Will Sail on Cruise

Miss Marjorie Waite Kerbey, who was graduated on Monday from Mount Holyoke College, has as her guest here Miss Florence Browning, of Grosse Pointe, Mich. Miss Kerbey is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. McFall Kerbey.

With Miss Browning and another classmate, Miss Nancy Bean, of Gallipolis, Ohio, Miss Kerbey will sail tomorrow from New York on the S. S. Antigua for a Caribbean cruise.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

Justice and Mrs. Felix Frankfurter were the guests in whose honor Dr. and Mme. T. V. Soong entertained at dinner last night.

Mrs. Alden G. Strong and Miss Nancy Strong are guests of Mrs. Jules James, wife of the Commandant of the U. S. Naval base at Hamilton, Bermuda.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wilcox will leave Monday by motor for Bar Harbor, Me., where Mrs. Wilcox will spend the summer with her sister, Mrs. Gist Blair. Mr. Wilcox will continue on to Montreal and thence by train to Lake Louise, where he will be at the Chauteau Lake Louise until September. He will then join Mrs. Wilcox at Bar Harbor and they will return to Washington for the winter.

Dr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Bosworth are vacationing in Canada and the New England States. Miss Lucinda Bosworth will join them later in the season.

Mrs. Neta Davis entertained at a buffet supper at her house in Georgetown last night in honor of several house guests who arrived yesterday afternoon from New York. They are the Duchess Carafa d'Andria, Mr. and Mrs. James Tanner and Mrs. Marye Sahks, the latter of whom is Mrs. Davis' sister. There were 20 in the company.

Miss Hawes Gives Cocktail Party

Miss Mary Senate Howes entertained at a cocktail party yesterday afternoon in the Chinese Room of the Mayflower, in honor of Miss Katherine Friant and Nelson Post.

A stringed duet—harp and violin—provided music throughout the afternoon. Miss Howes, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Howes, wore a black shantung frock with a ruffle about the neckline, extending down the center of the dress and about the hem. A cluster of green orchids completed the ensemble. Miss Friant had chosen a beige ensemble and she, too, wore green orchids.

Mrs. Overton Fetes Mrs. Wallace

Mrs. Henry A. Wallace was the guest in whose honor Mrs. John H. Overton, wife of the Senator from Louisiana, entertained at a large luncheon yesterday in the Burgundy Room of the Wardman Park Hotel. Receiving with the hostess, Mrs. Wallace wore a light blue gabardine suit with dark blue accessories and a corsage of sweetheart roses and delphinium. Mrs. Overton chose a black sheer frock and a natural-color straw hat trimmed in red poppies.

Also assisting the hostess in receiving were her two daughters, the Misses Ruth and Mary Elizabeth Overton. The long, double table at which guests were seated was decorated with three large centerpieces in pastel blossoms, featuring delphinium, lavender larkspur, pink and white roses and baby's breath.

Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the Secretary of State, was seated directly opposite Mrs. Overton, assisting her in her duties as hostess. Other guests were Mrs. Robert H. Jackson, Mrs. Frank C. Walker, Mrs. Charles L. McNary, Mrs. Carter Glass, Mrs. Alben W. Barkley, Mrs. James F. Byrnes, Mrs. Wallace H. Whitet, jr., Mrs. Alva B. Adams, Mrs. Pat McCarran, Mrs. Joseph C. Miss Camilla Edge Meets Society At Tea Dance Given by Her Parents

Stepping out in a frothy pink frock, Miss Camilla Edge made her debut to society yesterday afternoon at a tea dance given by her parents, the former United States Ambassador to France and Mrs. Walter E. Edge.

Between 5 and 7:30 o'clock, limousines, in a steady stream, drove up to the Edge home on Eighteenth Street. Guests were gathered from residential, diplomatic and Congressional circles, as the bud's father not only served as envoy to France but was, for many years, Senator from New Jersey.

The debutante and her parents received in the small drawing room which adjoins a much larger salon. Miss Edge was gowned in pink mousseline de soie, fashioned with a fitted bodice, puffed sleeves and very bouffant skirt. She carried a nosegay of sweetheart roses. Mrs. Edge wore a filmy organdy gown in two shades of gray. It had long sleeves and a full skirt. A cluster of orchids completed the ensemble.

Twelve Girls Assist Debutante

The windows in the room where they received face the garden. They were banked with potted, rambler roses in all shades of pink. Sydney's orchestra played for tea dancing in the long drawing room overlooking Eighteenth Street. The balconies, which open out from this room were banked with greens and lilies.

A bevy of pretty girls—all wearing their white graduation gowns of St. Timothy's school—assisted the debutante. Wristlets of sweetheart roses completed their costumes. They included Miss Helen Bruce, of Baltimore; Miss Polly Dexter, of Philadelphia; Miss Nancy Gross, of Harrisburg, Pa.; Miss Rose Parsons, of New York; Miss Carolyn Philbin, of Long Island; Miss Mary Randolph Rue, of Philadelphia; Miss Suzette Morgan, of New York; Miss Hildreth Dunn, of this city; Miss Rosita Richmond, of Boston; Miss Elizabeth Lee, of this city; Miss Leonore Thomas, of Denver, Colo., and Miss Mary Esther Edge, younger sister of the debutante.

A bowl of spring flowers—in delicate pastel shades—centered the dining room table. Among those who assisted Mrs. Edge were Senora de Lapil, wife of the Argentine Ambassador; Countess van der Straten-Ponthoz, wife of the Belgian Ambassador; Mme. Bostrom, wife of the Swedish Minister; Mrs. Peter G. Gerry, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, Mrs. C. Carroll Morgan, Mrs. Hugh Auchincloss, Mrs. Snowden Fahnestock, Mrs. Chauncy G. Parker, jr., Mrs. N. Winslow Williams, of Baltimore; Mrs. Nelson Perin, Mrs. William McKee Dunn, Mrs. Dwight Davis, Mrs. Fleming Newbold, Mrs. James Clement Dunn, Mrs. C. Carroll Glover, jr., Miss Mary Patten, Mrs. Phillip Coffin, Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, Mrs. George Garrett and Mrs. Edward Reed.

Mrs. Dillingham Among Guests

Among the guests from out of town were Mrs. Walter Dillingham, of Honolulu, and her son, Gaylord Dillingham. They are visiting Mrs. Truxtun Beale, and last evening they were feted at a dinner given by Mrs. Beale, with most of the guests going on later to Mrs. Frederick Sterling's dance for Anne Bullitt. Others from out of town at the Edge debut included Mr. and Mrs. John W. Williams, of Baltimore.

Following the party, Mrs. Lee Warren was hostess at a dinner at the 1925 F Street Club in honor of Miss Edge and a number of guests went on to the Sterling dance. Sharing honors with Miss Edge at the dinner was Miss Leonore Thomas, of Denver, Colo., a niece of Mrs. Warren. Miss Bullitt was also among those attending the dinner.

Alice Marie Stanton Weds Dr. John Brady At St. Ann's Church

St. Ann's Church was the scene of the marriage of Miss Alice Marie Stanton and Dr. John Barry Brady, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Cecil Brady, yesterday morning. Father Russell Phelan officiated at the 10 o'clock ceremony.

The bride, who is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William Joseph Stanton, was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white lace bodice and full tulle skirt which formed a full-length train. A lace cap held her long tulle veil and she carried a prayerbook from which fell a shower of sweet peas and white orchids.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Thomas D. Honiball, wore an orchid pink dress of marquisette cut on Grecian lines, with which she wore a wide-brimmed horsehair hat of the same color. She carried a prayerbook which held a bouquet of purple orchids.

The bridesmaids, Miss Barbara Dasehbach, of Pittsburgh; Miss Margaret O'Donaghue, and Miss Irene Brady and Miss Patricia Brady, sisters of the bridegroom, wore similar dresses to that of the honor attendant, with matching net turbans. They also carried purple orchids and prayerbooks.

Richard Dixon Brady served his brother as best man and the ushers were Dr. Charles W. Brown, jr., Dr. John F. Brennan, jr., William Joseph Stanton, jr., and James Sharpe Stanton, brothers of the bride.

Lieut. Thomas C. O'Connell Weds Barbara Sears Henning

Bachrach Studio.

MRS. THOMAS COURTENAY O'CONNELL

In a colorful military ceremony, Miss Barbara Sears Henning became the bride of Lieut. Thomas Courtenay O'Connell, U. S. A., yesterday at 4:30 o'clock in the Walter Reed Memorial Chapel. Immediately before the couple took their wedding vows, the bride's mother, Mrs. Arthur Sears Henning, sang "Ave Maria," with an organ accompaniment. Mr. Henning is head of the Chicago Tribune Bureau here. Lieut. O'Connell's parents, Col. and Mrs. George A. O'Connell, came here from Fort McClellan, Ala., for the ceremony.

English ivy, Madonna lilies and magnolias adorned the altar. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory satin gown, the full dirndl skirt falling in a long train. It was fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and long, tight sleeves, puffed at the shoulder. Her three-tiered veil of Belgian lace was held by a spray of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley centered with two white orchids.

The bride's only attendants were her sister, Mrs. N. Landon Head, wife of Capt. Head, of Fort Sill, Okla., and Miss Aileen Gorgas Wrightson. Mrs. Head wore a chartreuse mousseline de soie gown made with a high neckline, bishop sleeves, fitted basque and full dirndl skirt. Miss Wrightson appeared in hyacinth mousseline de soie cut along the same lines. Their Juliet caps, with short tulle veils, matched their frocks and they carried bouquets of assorted garden flowers.

Reception Follows At Henning Home

Wearing their military full dress, the ushers made an attractive picture as they stood to form a shining arch of swords for the pretty bride and her husband at the end of the ceremony. Best man was Lieut. Roderick Dhu O'Connor, U. S. A., and ushers were Lieut. John Norton, Lieut. Walter Moore, Lieut. Patrick Henry Tansey, P. Jones and Capt. N. Landon Hess.

Following the wedding a reception was given at the home of the bride's parents on Thirty-second Street. Mrs. Henning received, wearing a bois de rose organza frock with a brown hat and matching accessories. A cluster of orchids completed the ensemble. Miss Margot O'Connell, sister of the bridegroom, accompanied her parents here from Alabama. She assisted at the wedding reception. Also in the house party were Mrs Wayland Brooks, Mrs. Carlton Holdrege, Mrs. Donald Richberg, Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, Mrs. Courtland Barnes and Mrs. Albert Warner.

On Honeymoon To Canada

When the couple left on their honeymoon to Canada, the bride wore a flowered traveling dress of chartreuse pique and a cluster of white orchids. Lieut. O'Connell will attend the Field Artillery School for three months at Fort Sill, Okla., where the couple will be at home after August 5.

The bride, who attended Holton Arms, made her debut here several seasons ago at a large tea. Lieut. O'Connell was graduated a few days ago from the United States Military Academy.

Madame Chairman

By Suzanne

Long before there was an emergency in sight, the Woman's Club of Kensington began laying aside, little by little, a fund to be used for some worthy cause.

Along with the club's numerous other projects, this fund gradually grew to $85. At recent meetings the members knew they had found a cause. Mrs. James E. Lamb told of the campaign of the United Service Organizations for funds to provide recreational facilities for service men. And the club voted to give its $85 toward the furnishing of a recreation room at Camp Meade.

Already the members visualize chairs and divans of maple, with cheerful draperies. But they won't stop with giving furnishings. They'll add to the animation of the scene by sending cookies and magazines from time to time, Mrs. George Landick, a member, said.

The meeting at which this action was taken was held at the home of Mrs. John Williams, with Miss Anna Peck, president, in charge.

FLAG PROGRAM—Miss Elizabeth Malott Barnes, newly appointed national chairman of the correct use of the flag committee of the Daughters of the American Revolution, will be presented on a Flag Day radio program sponsored by the District D. A. R. tomorrow morning at 11:15, on station WOL.

Others on the program, which has been arranged by Mrs. Lee R. Pennington, jr., chairman of the District D. A. R. radio committee, are Mrs. Charles Plotner, district chairman of the correct use of the flag, who will talk on the history of the flag, and Maxwell Galloway, soprano soloist, who will sing "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Diplomatic Set Out in Force To Greet Panamanian Visitor

By Elizabeth Henney

"Diplomatically speaking, at least, the whole town seems to be here," remarked one guest at the Panamanian Embassy yesterday afternoon, and indeed the Diplomatic Corps did appear to be there full force. The party was one of the series planned for the visiting Foreign Minister of Panama and Senora de Roux, and Ambassador and Senora Carlos Brin were hosts at the fine old stone building on New Hampshire Avenue, which now houses the Panamanian Embassy.

For over two hours taxis, limousines and just cars rolled in a steady stream up to the gay marquee, that, stretching from the curb to the door of the mansion, protected hundreds of the most noted heads in the Capital from rain, flurries as they arrived at the party.

Guests arriving in the great paneled hall found Senorita Anita Ramirez-Duque, the Attache of the embassy, on hand to greet them with a cheery smile and usher them on into the drawing room, where the hosts and their guests of honor were receiving.

Senora de Brin was all in white, wearing a floor-length model, fashioned with a flowing skirt of crepe and a long-sleeved bodice of lace. With it she wore a diamond brooch, earrings to match and a corsage of orchids. Senora de Roux was a perfect foil for her hostess in an all-black costume, fashioned on classic lines, with a trim of gold bu"ion fagoting around the V-neckline and two large pockets of the same gold trim on the skirt of the gown.

Shortly after the party got under way, the Vice President and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace arrived, made the rounds of the receiving line and were immediately the center of much attention themselves. Mrs. Wallace wore a smart dark outfit with hat to match and a corsage of small pink roses.

Guests wandering into the second drawing room, with its paisley tapestried walls and gay golden elephants guarding the fireplace, found a long table at one end of the room, from which were being dispensed all manner of drinks and canapes, and where conversation was punctuated from time to time by the popping of champagne corks as waiters opened bottles of the bubbling beverage. Continuing the pilgrimage to the dining room, they found a duplicate champagne table as well as the dining table, which, centered by an enormous bowl of pink carnations and blue delphinium, was loaded to capacity with sandwiches, tiny pattie puffs, cakes, etc.

New Embassy To Be Built Soon

"I wonder when the new embassy will be finished?" asked a guest, thereby starting a flurry of questions. For it seems that the Panamanian government has just purchased the large lot adjacent to the new British Embassy and, having already sold the present embassy, and will start construction very shortly. Incidentally, rumor has it that, in spite of the demand for downtown real estate and consequent jump in prices, the present embassy was sold for something like one-fourth of the amount paid for it.

Arriving early at the event were the Argentine Ambassador and Senora de Espil; the Ecuadorean Ambassador and Senora de Alfaro, the latter gowned in black with a blouse of cafe-au-lait lace; the Minister of Portugal and Senora de Bianchi and the latter's daughter, Miss Sibilla Skidelsky.

Both Sides in War Are Represented

Diplomatic receptions bring out a strange assortment these days for, within a short while, were noted within a few feet of each other, Lady Halifax, wife of the British Ambassador; the Minister Charge d'Affaires of the German Embassy, Hans Thomsen; Mme. Procope, wife of the Finnish Minister, and Prince Colonna, the Italian Ambassador.

Still others noted were William Jennings Price, former Minister to Panama; Senorita Emi Ehrman, sister of the First Secretary of the Panamian Embassy, Juan H. Ehrman; the Honduran Minister, Dr. Julian R. Caceres Maj. Gen. William D. Connor, Mrs. Claude Pepper, wife of the Senator from Florida; Mrs. Allan Dawson and her daughter, Miss Lolita Dawson; Mrs. Thomas Burke, Mrs. Hugh Cumming, Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Cajigas, and the new Engineer Commissioner, Brig. Gen. Charles W. Kutz. Mrs. Kutz has just issued invitations for a luncheon which she will give next Wednesday in honor of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Charles Randolph Kutz, who is here for a visit from Fort Benning, Ga., while Capt. Kutz is on maneuvers near there.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Wolcott Toll announce the engagement of their daughter, Anne Campbell Toll, to Allison Dunham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred N. Dunham, of Wessington Springs, S. Dak.

Miss Margaret Yost's Engagement Announced

Mrs. Belle Yost, of Arlington, Va., announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Margaret Christine Yost, to Thomas Alvin O'Halloran, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. O'Halloran, also of Arlington.

The wedding will take place early in August.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Klutz

193 Hired Daily During April

The total number of Federal employes in the District is now estimated to be more than 200,000, an all-time high.

During the month of April new employes were hired here at the rate of 193 for each of the 30 days. The Civil Service Commission reports that 5,795 new employes were hired here during April which brought the total of departmental employes on May 1 to 172,876. However, to be added to this figure are an estimated 30,000 who are classified as "field" employes. Included in the field classification are approximately 16,000 employes at the Washington Navy Yard. During the month, War hired 1,892; Navy, 1,234; OEM, 686; Internal Revenue, 511; Public Buildings, 365, and Veterans', 337.

New Federal workers were put on the pay roll on an average of 1,631 a day over the entire country during April. On May 1 the new high total of Government employes was pushed up to 1,251,283 by the 48,935 hired during April. The number of new employes hired during May is expected to exceed the total of April and the end is not in sight yet.

Representative Tommy D'Alesandro, of Maryland, yesterday called on USHA officials to dismiss Bernard Ades who he described as a "leader affiliated with Communistic groups." Ades is a former resident of D'Alesandro's home city of Baltimore. He now lives in Virginia and he has been employed as an auditor at USHA for the last two years. D'Alesandro made the charge in an extension of his remarks in the Congressional Record. He produced no evidence to back up his statement. Ades commented that the best way to handle a situation like this is to say nothing.

Ades is an active member of C. I. O.'s U. F. W. A. local at USHA and he has been regularly lined up with its leaders who are attempting to "purge" three members of the so-called "right-wing" faction. The trial of the trio accused is supposed to be held before Tuesday but members are beginning to doubt whether the trial will ever be held. It's rumored that a high C. I. O. official ordered the militants to call it off. One of the members marked for expulsion of Anaya Smith, the wife of Tony Smith, assistant general counsel of C. I. O., who is a leader of the right wingers within the C. I. O.

Action is about to be had on the extremely important bill that would guarantee each employe an equal chance to win promotion. Chairman Ramspeck of the House Civil Service Committee and Chairman Sabath of the House Rules Committee conferred yesterday. Sabath is expected to ask his committee to grant a rule which would permit the bill to be taken up on the House floor and the bill stands a good chance to pass if it does get the green light from the Rules Committee.

Members of the powerful Appropriations Committee are expected to line up behind the bill. They hear complaints frequently from employes who haven't had pay raises in years while in the office down the hall generous pay raises are handed out. Several members have been told stories recently about pay raises being given at the Office of Government Reports and its questionable handling of personnel there.

Surveys are being made in nearly every department and large agency on the possibilities of decentralization. A study is being made in each agency of the space occupied, number of employes, and the necessity of being located in Washington. At Agriculture it reported that the study is being made along the lines of further decentralization of each agency rather than the complete removal of one or more agencies. . . . T. A. McNamara, GAO personnel chief, will be interviewed on "Your Government and Mine" tonight at 8:30 over WINX. Carl Berger directs.

Lieutenant's New Diploma And First Orders Stolen

An Army lieutenant of two days last night was robbed of belongings including the orders sending him to his first post and the diploma handed him by Secretary Stimson at West Point Wednesday.

Lieut. John N. Hauser, jr., who is on his way for a month's leave in Florida before reporting at Fort Sill, Okla., parked his car in a lot next door to the Army and Navy Club. He entered the club to check in and returning to his auto for his suitcase found it missing.

Photo Editor's 'Musts'— Our assignment book called for a picture last night of Jeanne A. Gaines, of 502 South Clifton Terrace, a lawyer-elect at 21. At left is Miss Gaines, at work in a Washington lawyer's office. She received her law degree last night from the Washington College of Law. Not to be overlooked were the commencement exercises of Columbus University. Among the grads were Mr. and Mrs. W. James Widmayer, of Silver Spring, Md., who met for the first time in Columbus U. classroom 3 years ago. In center—William E. Leahy, university president, gives the couple his congratulations. Snapped as they gave their make-up a final check at the Washington College of Law's commencement in Continental Hall were Dorothy Hohensee and Hanora Quigley, right)

Camp Sets Safety Record

Fort George G. Meade, Md., June 12.—Not a single accident to a Twenty-ninth Division motor vehicle serious enough to be reported has occurred since April 1, Capt. Donald A. Falk, assistant provost marshal, said today.

"This shows," he said, "that regimental commanders are cooperating fully in the campaign to hold motor vehicle accidents to a minimum."

The Washington Post

*X FRIDAY, JUNE 13, 1941 25

"Ah Love!"

The following police report was received over the teletype system yesterday: "About 12:30 a. m., June 12, at 926 Fourth Street Northwest, James Shaw, 31, was cut by his wife, Louise. He went to Casualty Hospital and was treated for stab wound to arm and a laceration to forefinger which severed a tendon. They were married yesterday, and he does not want to prosecute.

Two Suggested For Police Inspectorships

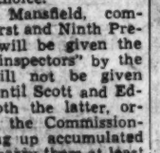
MANSFIELD

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, chief of police, recommended the men, and though the Commissioners have not approved the selection, it was ascertained that they have indicated to the police superintendent they will accept his choice.

Callahan and Mansfield, commanders of the First and Ninth Precincts, probably will be given the status of "acting inspectors" by the weekend, but will not be given salary increases until Scott and Edwards retire. Both the latter, ordered retired by the Commissioners, are now using up accumulated leave which will carry them at least 30 days more.

Third Vacancy August 1

A third inspectorship will be vacant August 1, when Inspector Bernard W. Thompson, chief of detectives, will exhaust his accumulated leave. On leave now, Inspector Thompson is not expected to return to his office.



CALLAHAN

Inspector James F. Beckett, who has been filling Inspector Edwards' job as assistant superintendent and executive officer, is slated for the post permanently. He will carry the rank of assistant superintendent and will receive an additional $500 annually.

At least 4 captains, 15 lieutenants and two-score sergeants and privates are also marked for retirement "unless they respond to medical treatment," it was said at police headquarters yesterday.

Get New Classification

All of these men are over 55 and were mentioned in an entirely new medical classification for policemen—B-minus.

This year for the first time in police history, the Board of Police and Fire surgeons placed men in this category. And then only after the Commissioners ordered a "special report" on all men over 55.

Formerly the doctors classified the men in three groups—A, for excellent health; B, in need of medical treatment, and C, unfit for duty.

Not a single man was placed in C group after this year's examination until the Commissioners called for special reports. Then seven men, including Stott and Edwards, received this grade and the B-minus rating came into being.

It is believed the later classification originated as part of the Commissioners' plan to retire the older men in order to streamline the department.

Provides for Retest

Unlike Class C, B-minus does not provide mandatory retirement but it provides for a reexamination after medical treatment and subsequent retirement if the patient does not respond.

It was learned that Inspector Edward J. Kelly and Capts. Sidney Marks, Fourth Precinct; Joseph Pearson, Sixth Precinct; Joseph Morgan, Fifth Precinct, and Hugh Groves were given B-minus ratings.

If these men retire, the resultant shakeup will be the largest in the Police Department history.

Face Future With 'Courage and Faith,' Walsh Tells Columbus University Graduates

Senator David I. Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, speaking last night before the graduating class of Columbus University in Constitution Hall, declared "many of our people, and you yourselves, are disturbed, confused and discouraged by world conditions."

"You ask: What am I to do? Where am I to go? How can I succeed? You ask for guidance. You look for security," said the Senator.

"Courage and faith are your weapons in facing the new and unmet problems," Senator Walsh told the graduates. "Courage and faith I give you tonight."

Degrees were conferred by William E. Leahy, university president.

Henderson Drops Probe

Plans of Leon Henderson, Federal Price Administrator, to investigate Washington milk producers' application for a cent-a-quart price increase, were dropped, no reason being assigned.

The Surplus Marketing Administration continued to study the application by Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, for a penny project to benefit needy children, as well as a request by Acting Welfare Director Conrad Van Hyning to extend five-cent quarts to low-income WPA families and those who subsist entirely or in part on private charity.

Explaining that the Ladies of Charity is connected with no parish and dispenses aid without regard to creed or color, Mrs. O'Connor said, "We simply have to provide milk to needy children if we want them to grow into healthy, useful citizens."

70 Families on List

At present, she declared, her philanthropic group has about 70 families on its free-milk list, very few of whom are on public relief. It is this relief class, together with family heads who are certified for WPA jobs but not yet assigned to

Women's Club Leader Urges Low-Cost Milk

By Gerald G. Gross

Post Staff Writer

The president of a women's organization dedicated to providing, within its limited means, milk to ill, needy children strongly advocated yesterday the extension of low cost milk to all families who are in want.

"Our program is doing much good, we believe, but it covers only a comparative few," said Mrs. George H. O'Connor, head of the Ladies of Charity, of 3313 Cleveland Avenue Northwest.

Her statement gave impetus to efforts being made to include recipients of private charity, as eligibles in the present nickel-a-quart milk project, as well as to establish penny half-pints in the public schools. The needs for these advances have been described in Post stories appearing daily since May 21.

Along other sectors of the campaign front yesterday:

164 Graduates Hear Murdock At Washington College of Law

Senator Abe Murdock (Democrat), of Utah, addressing the graduating class of the Washington College of Law at annual commencement exercises last night in Memorial Continental Hall said, "in my opinion the lawyers of the country can modestly claim a great deal of credit for the success of this democracy."

The Senator's eldest son, William Orrice Murdock was among the 164 graduates comprising the school's largest graduating class.

"There was never a time in our history when lawyers were more needed for leadership than at this time," the Senator declared.

"I am sure out of this group of lawyers many great individuals will develop," Senator Murdock said.

Gold medals for the highest and second highest standard of scholarship during the entire course of study were presented by Dr. Hamilton Vreeland, jr., a member of the faculty, to Gale P. Gotschall, first, and Helen Michele Olsson, second.

'Blood and Sand' Returns To Palace in New Dress

Tyrone Power, Linda Darnell, Rita Hayworth Score in Handsome Technicolor Production; Color Cartoon Bill's Only Source of Laughter

"BLOOD AND SAND" comes back to the screen after almost 20 years greatly magnified in physical dimensions and visual beauty.

Executed in magnificent Technicolor, this new Twentieth Century-Fox picturization of the Vicente Blasco Ibanez novel, that served Rudolph Valentino so well in 1922, still emphasizes the author's abhorrence of the bullring and relies for its greatest dramatic impact upon the bitter conflict between a dutiful and steadfast wife and an aristocratic young siren of great wealth and no moral consciousness for the love of Juan Gallardo, the illiterate matador who becomes the popular hero of all Spain. It is, of course, the story of the rise and disintegration of unschooled youth, unable to perceive or cope with the realities of life. Its final tragic chapter is written by his death in the ring.

BELL

Producer Darryl F. Zanuck and Director Rouben Mamoulian have done a minutely painstaking job in the balancing of characters, sharply contrasting the two feminine figures of prime importance and alternating the exciting and the placid intervals of the drama's development. The picture is not continuously engrossing. There are periods when it drags lamentably, but there are others—notably the sequences devoted to the bullfights—when realism takes on all of the aspects of thrilling actuality. Save in the single character of the newspaper critic of the corridas—who would be a sports writer in America—no gesture is ever made in the direction of comedy to relieve the somber emotionalism of a film that has been so vividly photographed in natural color as to obscure many of its minor defects by the sheer beauty of the scenes that are unfolded in such uninterrupted splendor upon the screen.

A Cast of Admirable Selection

Except that he speaks with the vocabulary and diction of an educated gentleman, instead of an illiterate, Tyrone Power gives an excellent account of himself in the role of Gallardo, especially in expressing the boundless egotism of the man and his pathetic inability to fashion his life to some rational pattern. Linda Darnell contributes the best performance she has brought to the screen, as his simple and adoring wife, and Rita Hayworth revives colorful memories of those remote days in the cinema when vamps were vamps and didn't care who knew it. Naximova, in the role of the mother, whose husband also was killed in the ring, is immensely moving. John Carradine, Anthony Quinn, J. Carrol Naish and Laird Cregar, as the pompous writer on the sole topic of toreros, contribute the most valuable performances among the supporting cast that also includes Lynn Bari, William Montague and Pedro de Cordoba in important assignments. Music is made an important factor in the picture, too, with Vicente Gomez demonstrating himself to be a virtuoso on the guitar. Every member of the cast profits by the superb uses to which Technicolor has been put.

Short Subjects Are Varied

The Selective Service Act finally has found its way into the cartoon comedies and is made the source of amusing nonsense in "The Rookie Bear," the story of bruin yanked out of his hibernation. Prominent also among the short-reels is Fitz-Patrick's "Red Men on Parade," a "travelogue" that deals interestingly with the annual tribal ceremonies participated in by all the Indian tribes in America, at Gallup, N. Mex. The News of the Day, laying stress on the efficiency of United States troops as strikebreakers, completes a bill that could do with a little more enlivenment.

Mr. Flynn Seems to Be in Luck

the only girl in "Dive Bomber," the Errol Flynn starrer about America in the air—but she ought to be enough! Alexis—and they say that's her real name—is a Canadian contribution to the film colony's ranks and did modeling in her time. Why not?

Jimmy Dorsey and His Band Present a Capital Stage Show

By Richard L. Coe

"BROADWAY LIMITED." Hal Roach-United Artists picturization of a screenplay by Rian James, with Victor McLaglen, Marjorie Woodworth, Dennis O'Keefe, Patsy Kelly, ZaSu Pitts, Leonid Kinsky, George E. Stone, Cay Ellen Dakin, Charles Wilson, John Sheenan, Edgar Edwards, Eric Alden and Sam McDaniels. Directed by Gordon Douglas. Reviewed Thursday afternoon. At the Capitol Theater.

A man with a band, a sax and two young people whom the trade calls "Song Stylists" took over the Capitol Theater yesterday and "gave out" with a really swell stage show. Jimmy Dorsey, Bob Eberly and Helen O'Connell are the personalities of the week at the big F street house and, with their recordings now past the million mark, they put on an hour that tells the why of their new all-high.

The Capitol screen isn't deserted this week, though you might think so. "Broadway Limited" titles this damp little morsel whose cast—Victor McLaglen, Patsy Kelly and ZaSu Pitts—makes it sound so much choicer than it is. Like so many feeble attempts at frivolity, however, "Broadway Limited" has one single scene that brings out the rarest guffaws: ZaSu and Patsy sharing a train berth with a baby and a leaky hot-water bottle. Not exactly delicate, understand, but good, early Hal Roach rumor, for which, of late, the master seems to have lost his touch.

Getting back to the stage doings, disciples of Ecole J. Dorsey know what to expect from this half of the Dorsey brothers. Jimmy calls his variety "contrasting music," but whatever it is, it's all 1941, loud and brassy, swingy and rhythmical, softly murmurous and sweet. More to the point, it's superior listening.

Eberly and O'Connell Score

With Jimmy are those vocalists so popular with his radio and recording audiences, Bob Eberly and Helen O'Connell. Appearance of both sends sighs drifting through the theater, and logically, too, for both are attractive young people with charm the footlights don't stifle. The blonde Helen has one of those adapable voices that shouts in the Merman manner and then outcoos the effervescent Bonnie Baker. She sings "Minnie From Trinidad" and "Why Don't You Drop Me a Line?" and Bob's baritone soothes "My Sister and I" and "Maria." Together, these two are at their best, though, particularly in "Do It Again" and "Green Eyes." You can't beat these two.

"Amapola?" Yes, of course, they do "Amapola" and several other of their more recent recordings. Drummer Buddy Schutz has his specialty and Jimmy loosens up his sax with "Finger Buster." The Dorsey boys take the background for top-notch Art Carney, whose impressions of the famous are unerringly accurate. You'll particularly enjoy his Chief Executive. Also on the stage are those likable dancers, Robinson and Martin, who have novelty without the slapstick everyone's been lifting from the Hartmans.

"Broadway Limited?" Well, it's about a movie queen traveling east who needs a baby for publicity reasons and a sensational kidnaping case. As stated, it has its scattered laughs, but the whole isn't even within shouting distance of the wondrous Roach comedies of yesteryear. McLaglen is swell when given the closeups, but most of these go to that unoriginal Leonid Kinsky, of whom we can think of no one less funny. There's also a new leading lady in "Broadway Limited," blonde, pretty Marjorie Woodworth of whom time will tell more than her present vehicle.

But "Broadway Limited" aside, the Capitol will bulge this week with Jimmy Dorsey fans and that's a natural phenomenon.

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, June 12 (DNS).—The mere idea of Bob Hope being mistaken for a gestapo agent is funny, for in my mind's eye I can see him trying to dodge the secret service. That's the character he plays in "Snow Ball in Hell," written by his radio writers, Melvin Frank and Norman Panama, and if it's half as hilarious on the screen as in the telling, like its title, it will make the boxoffice blues melt. Bob plays a smart-Alec small town vaudevillian, who gets mixed up with a supposed gestapo agent, to be played by no less a beauty than Madeleine Carroll. They meet on a train and the first thing you know he is also suspected.

PARSONS

Universal bosses and script writers, who want a little peace and quiet, had better get ear muffs. Martha Raye was signed today for the top femme spot with Olsen and Johnson in "Hellzapoppin" and if there isn't a din on that set from morn to quitting time, I miss my guess. Olsen and Johnson are already in town—I might say all over it. Last night, when they couldn't appear before the MPTOA convention in a little private preview of what the boys may expect in "Hellzapoppin," they sent 50 singing messenger boys. But don't think for a minute that Martha can't hold her own even with these two wild men. At the Rhum-Boogie the other night, just sitting "quietly" at a ringside table, Martha put on more of a show than the entertainers.

Sam Goldwyn is making up for lost time by lining up productions. He plans to make two Gary Cooper movies in quick succession and will start on "The Singing and the Gold" as soon as he finishes "The Professor and the Burlesque Queen." That probably means that Gary won't get his heart's desire and create the Robert Jordon role in "For Whom the Bell Tolls." Still Sam Woods will be busy for so long it may be many months before the Ernest Hemingway opera gets going.

Here is news: Bob Hope, the inimitable comic who has, within the last year, become one of the biggest and most potent names at the boxoffice, is our guest of honor Friday night over CBS on Hollywood premiere. Appearing with him as our other guest is Eddie Bracken in "Caught in the Draft."

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Ginger Rogers and Eddie Norris are making tennis dates; Joyce Matthews is wearing a diamond pin in the shape of a camera, given her by Milton Berle; Sheila Ryan and Henry Willson dancing to Henry King's music at Ciro's while Mickey Rooney was entertaining the visiting theater owners; Bert Wheeler and Patsy Orr, his newest romantic interest, at the Rhum-Boogie.

George Brent has his reservation on a plane for the Louis-Conn fight in New York; John Loder is suffering from sunburn; Joan Bennett, who has been receiving praise for her work in "Man Hunt," leaves the latter part of the month for a vacation in New York; J. Darsie Lloyd, Harold's dad, affectionately known as Foxy, is having a birthday party June 21. He was very sick for a long time so it's good news that he's well enough to celebrate his birthday.

Meriam Cooper has left the picture industry to become a captain in the United States Army. His exploits during the World War are well known; the Vincent Prices are pricing beach houses; that cane Ida Lupino has been using is to protect her knee which she injured while making "Ladies in Retirement;" Robert Presnell, scenario writer, is now a major in the Army Signal Corps.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

BERNHEIMER'S THEATERS

Leonard Lyons:

New York, June 12.

CHARLES "THE BUG" Workman's alibi—in his trial for murdering Dutch Schultz—was broken when District Attorney O'Dwyer told the alibi-witness the exact conversation the latter had had, a few hours earlier, with the witness' sister. It had been a telephone conversation. When it was read to the witness, he agreed to retract his testimony—and so Workman then pleaded guilty, although no prosecution evidence proved that he was in the State of New Jersey when Schultz was murdered . . . Gary Cooper will make his debut on the legitimate stage this summer, at the Barter Theater . . . Prince Michael Romanoff will relinquish his royal title within the next few days. He's abdicating in favor of a more desirable title, which will be announced.

LEONARD LYONS

THE WINE AND FOOD Society has taken due cognisance of the unlimited emergency. Next year, the society has promised to concentrate upon utilitarian food for the masses, instead of the elegant, unattainable delicacies . . . Doris Dalton went to see "My Sister Eileen," and told the producers: "You should've called this play 'Martha Washington Slept Here'" . . . Lucienne Boyer, who was reported to have been arrested in Paris, is back singing in the cafes there and thriving at it . . . Al Christie, the veteran producer of comic shorts, will start working at the Astoria studios, doing "Hector & His Pals"—a comic version of How to Train Your Dog.

ALL THE OUTSTANDING Roosevelt and Willkie buttons will be melted, together, and the metal presented to the Government—as an expression of national unity . . . Victor Mature, who is under contract to Hal Roach, will be loaned out to David Selznick . . . The copyright to Irving Berlin's new defense bond song is owned by the Library of Congress . . . A house guest at the Washington home of Col. Frank Knox tried to send a telegram, from the phone in his bedroom. Each time he lifted the receiver, he was amazed at the prompt response from the operator—who took his message and dispatched it with great speed. At breakfast, the next morning, he discovered that he had been using Col. Knox's direct wire—to the White House.

LEON HENDERSON, the price-stabilizer, read the report that a new post was being created for him—a post which would bring him a $15,000 salary, annually . . . Henderson, who now holds several jobs and is one of the logical choices for heading the new Department of Economic Warfare, told his friends: "I don't want a $15,000 salary from the Government. That puts a man in front, too much" . . . "What's wrong with that?" he was asked . . . "Well, when you're out in front too much," Henderson explained, "then you get shot at."

MRS. DANIEL ARNSTEIN, whose husband leaves for the Burma Road this week, on a White House assignment, tried to collect Harry Hopkins' battered hat—but Hopkins, who has worn it, winter and summer, for seven years, refused to part with it . . . Justice Louis Brandeis has remained in Washington, despite the recent heat wave there, because the railroad extension line, which would bring him near his Cape Cod summer home, hasn't begun to operate yet—and a long auto ride would be too taxing to the venerable jurist. The railroad officials learned of this, and so in honor of the octogenarian Brandeis a special run will be made . . . The New York Police Department's Anchor Club outing, an annual event for the city's orphans, will be held July 2.

FCC Rules Usurp Power, Says Craven

By the United Press

Federal Communications Commissioner T. A. M. Craven charged yesterday that the FCC's majority was guilty of "usurping power" by its recent approval of sweeping regulations which it said would curb monopolistic practices of radio broadcasting systems.

He told the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee that the commission "had no right whatever" to promulgate rules of that character. Craven and Commissioner Norman Case voted against the regulations, which were approved by the other five commissioners.

Craven objected particularly to a clause which outlaws exclusive contracts between networks and affiliated stations. He held no brief for such contracts but he did not believe the FCC has power to ban them, he said.

He argued that the Justice Department's antitrust division is the proper agency to eradicate monopolistic practices and that the Federal Trade Commission is the agency to remove objectionable business practices. Both of these aims are outside the FCC's scope, he contended.

Craven appeared as a witness in the committee's preliminary inquiry into causes and effects of the new regulations.

He was preceded on the witness stand by three high officials of the Mutual Broadcasting System who defended the regulations as essential to a healthy, competitive radio industry. The National Broadcasting Co. and the Columbia Broadcasting System have taken the lead in attacking the regulations, which are favored by Mutual.

Alfred J. McCosker, chairman of Mutual's board of directors urged the committee to approve the rules. He charged that competition will be throttled in the broadcasting industry if they are not allowed to become effective.

Fred Weber, Mutual's general manager, supported the rules and asserted htat affiliates of C. B. S. and N. B. C.'s Red Network were wellfed. But, he added, N. B. C. played its Blue and Red Networks against each other and gave the Red Network preference wherever possible.

Louis G. Caldwell, M. B. S. counsel, testified that three important stations in Baltimore, Pittsburgh and Boston soon will transfer from N. B. C. to Mutual because N. B. C. plans to transfer them from the Red to the Blue Network.

Starlight Concert Ticket Sale Starts Tomorrow

Tickets for the Starlight chamber music concerts in Meridian Hill Park, announced last Sunday by C. C. Cappel, will be available to the public beginning tomorrow. They can be obtained at the Cappel Concert Bureau, located in Ballards, 1340 G Street Northwest.

Since the concerts are to be presented on public grounds, the tickets, priced at 50 cents and 25 cents, represent a service charge for the use of chairs. They will be allotted as applied for without restriction, Cappel said yesterday.

First concert of the series will be given July 8 at 8:15 p. m. The Primrose String Quartet will play. Other events are scheduled for succeeding Tuesday and Friday nights.

N.Y. Police Convoy Cash In Armored Car Strike

New York, June 12 (INS).—Fifty million dollars moved through New York City streets today and policemen acted as convoys.

The police action was necessitated by strike of 450 chauffeurs and guards against four armored car companies. The strikers want a shorter work week and a $5 weekly pay increase. A similar situation prevailed throughout northern New Jersey.

High Jinks on 13th Street To Mark Friday 13th Here

Today, Friday the thirteenth, on Thirteenth Street, the long moot question as to how many Washingtonians are superstitious—will be unsnarled—we hope—when The Post and Station WJSV takes a poll of public opinion at 3 p. m. before the Earle Theater.

"Are you or are you not superstitious?" Gunner Back, WJSV announcer, will ask the man-on-the street. If he answers a forthright "yes," that fact will be recorded by a tabulating machine. But should he reply with a fearless "no," then the fun begins.

This hapless person will be shown to a complete and scientific sidewalk laboratory equipped with all manner of apparatus to prove his disbelief in signs and omens.

He will be invited to break a mirror, spill salt, let a black cat cross his path or walk under a ladder. When and if he emerges successfully from these tests a pass to the Earle Theater will be given him.

Martha Ellyn, The Post's cooking editor, will give a short talk on old cooking superstitions such as refraining from making a cake after sundown.

After the 15-minute broadcast the total ayes and nayes will be added and compared to the population figure of Washington, thus finding the approximate percentage of superstitious persons in the Nation's Capital for its own edification and that of posterity.

Rents Average $52 for New D. C. Dwellings

The average monthly rental asked for the 6,900 dwelling units constructed for rent in the District in the last 15 months is $52, according to a survey conducted by the Work Projects Administration.

Only one-half of 1 per cent of the units are within reach of families who must pay less than $30 and only one-fifth rent for less than $40 a month, the study shows.

Nine out of ten are in apartment buildings, most of which are of the living room, bedroom, kitchenette and dinette type, or smaller, it was said.

The number of dwelling units actually available to renters was found to have increased during the period by approximately 8,475 with 1,550 former local renters going into their own new homes.

The survey pointed out that although one-fourth of the population of Washington is Negro, only about one-eighth of the new rental units are for Negro families, with rents averaging $38 as compared to $54 for white families.

The study was conducted by the WPA Division of Research at the request of the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply and the Division of Defense Housing Coordination, it was said.

Senate Votes $6,000 to Hire City Expert

Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, now definitely chairman of the District Committee, last night declared he would select in a few weeks the municipal expert for whom the Senate yesterday voted a $6,000 yearly salary.

McCarran said he would get to work at once on an accumulation of District business and expressed particular interest in early decision on a bill to prevent District officials from returning Washington hospitals to the tax rolls.

Subcommittees soon will be organized and put to work on District legislation, McCarran said, and the full committee will be called together for its first meeting since Senator Robert Reynolds (Democrat), of North Carolina, was transferred from the District Committee chairmanship to head the Military Affairs Committee several weeks ago.

McCarran was named to head the District Committee at that time, but said he would not keep the job unless he was provided with enough money to hire an expert on taxation, public utilities and municipal affairs.

2 From D. C. Finish Naval Course

Lawrence S. Smith, 4021 Benton Street Northwest, and G. Bowdoin Craighill, jr., 2803 P Street Northwest, were graduated from the Naval Reserve school at Northwestern University yesterday, upon completion of the three-month "V-7" training course.

The two Washingtonians will be commissioned as ensigns in the Naval Reserve, and will be assigned to active duty. Smith is the executive secretary of the Junior Board of Commerce in civil life, and Craighill is a local attorney.

4 From D. C. Get Temple U. Degree

Four Washingtonians were awarded degrees yesterday in exercises of Temple University at Philadelphia's Convention Hall, it was learned here.

The graduates are Maxwell Lewis Cohen, 4900 Ninth Street Northwest, and Jack Friedman, 3011 Rhode Island Avenue Northeast, who received degrees of doctor of dental surgery; Miss Eleanor Fay Wakeman, 1409 King Street, Alexandria, B. S. in medical technology, and Peter Kerr, 2400 Tilden Street Northwest, B. S. in education and B. S. in fine arts.

Intruder Attacks Draft Board Clerk

A 26-year-old colored man will be arraigned in Police Court this morning charged with disorderly conduct and assault on H. R. Faber, clerk at Draft Board No. 25 at 1250 Seventh Street Northwest.

The suspect, Frank Allison, of 1411 Eleventh Street Northwest, according to Policeman A. J. Kaskeski, attempted to enter the board room after it was closed and struck Faber with his fists when the latter tried to eject him.

Brown Issues New Order to Enforce Antinoise Laws

Determined to reduce unnecessary noises in the city, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, yesterday again demanded "strict enforcement of antinoise statutes" by his commanding officers.

Recalling an order he issued last week calling for strict enforcement, Maj. Brown told his captains that "while some progress has been made in reducing unnecessary noises, the results obtained have not been as gratifying as desired. Headquarters is still in receipt of numerous complaints of unnecessary noise."

The order continued: "You will call this matter to the attention of your command and see that there is strict enforcement of the regulations, that unnecessary noises are reduced to a minimum."

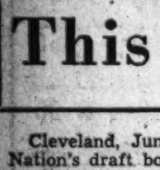
WASHINGTON, JUNE 13, 1941

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

Cleveland, June 12.—It probably isn't their fault, but the Nation's draft boards have been creating an awful dither in the big league baseball industry. The daily pronouncements of the Nation's draft officials in local and county offices have been vying with the box scores for a place on the sports pages. Their's may be the last word in deciding the pennant races.



POVICH

The baseball people don't know what to expect. A Florida draft board rejected Hank Greenberg because he had flat feet, and a Detroit board vetoed that ruling. California draft officials who examined John Rigney, Chicago pitcher, classed him in 4-F, supposedly unfit for military service, but Rigney's Chicago board pronounced him 1-A and "immediately available."

Phil Rizzuto, shortstop of the Yankees, was deferred by a New York board on the grounds that the player was the chief support of a part-time working father, but Benny McCoy, Philadelphia infielder, was classed 1-A by a Grand Rapids board despite the fact he is the sole support of unemployed parents.

The most mystifying of all the draft board rulings, however, has been in the case of Cecil Travis', the Nats' third baseman. Travis was classed in 1-A despite the fact that his family is dependent on his baseball income. His brother, unemployed and a noncontributor to his parents' support, was given a 3-A deferment rating.

Minor league baseball is getting the worst jolt from the draft, incidentally. Minor league players are younger and thus number fewer married men. But the chief effects are being felt by club owners who have been in the habit of selling their minor league stars to the majors at sums ranging from $10,000 to $50,000. With the draft threatening to whisk most every man into the Army, big league owners are in no mood to pay such sums any longer, and minor league clubs who depend on that sort of revenue may be found to toss in The Towel.

In many cases the Government stands to lose rather than gain by taking the baseball stars into the Army. In the case of Hank Greenberg, the Army gains a likely looking soldier, but the United States Treasury loses approximately $20,000 in income taxes that Greenberg would have paid. A sum nearly as great will be lost to the Government when Bob Feller is called up.

It is understandable, though, that the Nation can make no exceptions in such cases despite the fact that the war must be financed largely through income taxes paid by men who earn upper-bracket salaries. Selective service is the sort of law that, to be workable at all, must be administered impartially and thus duck the accusation that it is either a poor man's or a rich man's army.

The whole business, however, has been making for some interesting reading, and some sort of a high mark was established this week here in Cleveland. A Cleveland fan, slightly above draft age, actually volunteered to serve in the Army instead of Feller in order that the Indians' chances of winning the pennant might not be wrecked. His proposal was 75 years too late. That sort of substitution ended with the Civil War conscription.

There is an interesting sidelight to the Greenberg case, also. It seems now, according to one Detroit source, that the Detroit club did not seek deferment for their star slugger for a very sound reason. "They knew," according to our informant, "that they couldn't win the pennant this year with our without Greenberg. They needed too many improvements and were prevented by the no-trade rule from making any deals. Next season, when they were in a position to make some trades that would help the Tigers, they'd have Greenberg back from the Army on a pennant-winning club." That strategy which seemed sound enough at the time, is not likely to be successful what with the Army now threatening to keep all draftees "for the duration."

The loss of McCoy will virtually wreck the chances of the Athletics to finish up in the race. The A's little second baseman was playing superb ball and was one of the factors in the club's climb into the first division. The White Sox, if they lose Rigney, can certainly be counted out as a pennant threat because theirs is not the sort of a club that can stand the loss of a regular pitcher. The White Sox have too little, other than their pitching to recommend them.

The Nats, if they lose Travis and Lewis, are of course, doomed to the worst record any Washington team has made in the last 30 years. Taking that pair from the Washington Club is like conking it over the head with a sackful of anvils. With indications that Feller may not be called up until late September, the Indians are getting a definite break. So are the Yankees and Red Sox by their luck in escaping the draft. In a year when six clubs appeared to have a chance for the pennant, draft board rulings may confine it to a three-team race.

Rigney Drops Request for Deferment

By International News Service

Chicago, June 12.—Johnny Rigney, pitcher for the Chicago White Sox, announced tonight he had withdrawn his request for a 60-day deferment of his induction into the Army June 20, the granting of which by his local draft board created a furor in baseball circles.

Rigney said he had based his request solely upon the letter written by a "high ranking" official of the National Selective Service. He did not name the official, but it was assumed to be the letter of Lieut. Col. Carlton S. Dargusch, deputy in the office of the National Draft Board, to Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington Senators, in which Dargusch outlined circumstances in which ball players might be deferred by their draft boards.

Explains Request

Rigney made his announcement in a formal statement at Comiskey Park where the White Sox were playing the New York Yankees. He said:

"My recent request for postponement of induction into the Army was based solely and entirely upon a letter written by a high ranking official of the National Selective Service in which the advice was contained that baseball players were entitled to ask for a 60-day delay if called during the regular season.

"Prior to my knowledge of this letter I had no intention of asking for a postponement of induction. But when notified of this portion of the draft regulations I did act upon it, with the assurance that my act was both reasonable and in accordance with the strict interpretation of the act.

May Be Test Case

"I have since leraned that this letter and its interpretation of the draft code is in controversy and, therefore, I have asked permission to withdraw my recent request and I am ready to go June 20.

"Notification of this decision has been forwarded to my local draft board in River Forest, Ill."

Paul G. Armstrong, State director of Selective Service, was in Washington when he learned Rigney had asked deferment and that it had been granted by the local draft board. On his orders, the board's decision immediately was appealed to President Roosevelt in what was expected to be a test case.

"Unusual Hardship"

National Selective Service officials in Washington were studying the case when Rigney requested his deferment petition be withdrawn.

Rigney claimed "unusual hardship" would result because he was paid on the basis of five and a half months' season and thus four-elevenths of his salary would be cut off.

Mrs. McNaughton Wins in Rye Golf

Rye, N. Y., June 12 (AP).—Mrs. Harry McNaughton, of Manhasset, Long Island, today won the Women's Eastern Golf Championship at the Westchester Country Club when she added a final round 83 to her 36-hole total of 161 to finish with a score of 244.

A desperate last-minute bid was made by Maureen Orcutt, Ridgewood, N. J., who scored 79 to finish two strokes behind at 246.

'Hard-Luck' Derringer Blanks Braves, 1 to 0

After Five One-Run Defeats Cincinnati Ace Bests Young Art Johnson in Keen Duel

By the Associated Press

Boston, June 12.—Paul Derringer, veteran right-hander who had been bemoaning the five one-run setbacks in his string of seven defeats, gained a 1-0 shutout today as his Cincinnati Reds completed the current series with the Braves.

Derringer topped Art Johnson, the Braves' young southpaw, in a keen pitching duel after his teammates bunched two of their five hits in the first inning for their big run.

Johnson had forced the first two Cincinnati batters to retire as infield-outs before Harry Craft singled and strolled to second when Frank McCormick was passed. Ernie Koy, who got two of the Reds' hits, then decided the game by singling in Craft. No Red got beyond second base thereafter.

Derringer, winner of five previous starts, gave the Braves four hits, two by Maxie West, and one base on balls. Only three times did a Brave reach second, 'Bama Rowell in the second inning, Ray Berres in the third and Johnson in the eighth. Derringer fanned six and Johnson had two strikeouts to his credit while issuing as many bases on balls.

Jimmie Gleeson and Eddie Joost were the other Cincinnati hitters and Lloyd Waner and Johnson also hit safely for the Braves. Not an extra-base blow was struck during the game, which was played in an hour and 48 minutes without a double play or a stolen base.

Joe DiMaggio's Homer Beats Chisox in 10th

By International News Service

Chicago, June 12.—Joe DiMaggio's tenth-inning home run, his twelfth of the year, gave the New York Yankees a protested 3-to-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox tonight before a crowd of 37,102.

Manager Jimmy Dykes of the White Sox protested the game because of a play in the ninth inning. Joe Gordon opened the ninth with a single. Red Ruffing, pinch-hitting for the Yankee pitcher, Spud Chandler, then doubled to the wall in left center, scoring Gordon with the tying run.

Dykes claimed a spectator reached out of the stands and deflected the ball, preventing his leftfielder, Myril Hoag, from making the catch.

The Yanks picked up their first run on Gordon's ninth homer of the year in the sixth inning to set the stage for the protested play in the ninth. Tonight marked the twenty-sixth consecutive game in which DiMaggio has hit safely.

Forte-Salica Fight Off Until Monday

Philadelphia, June 12 (AP).—Rain and the threat of more rain resulted in postponement of tonight's scheduled bantamweight title bout between Lou Salica, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Tommy Forte, of Philadelphia, until Monday night.

Forte, a 7-to-5 favorite over the champion, had weighed in at 117½ pounds, to Salica's 117.

Sorrowful Nats Return Today After Gloomy Time on the Road

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

Cleveland, June 12.—The most forlorn Washington ball club in 30 years was on its way back to Griffith Stadium tonight, towing a record of 20 defeats in its last 23 games and wondering where its next victory was coming from.

Today, the Nats scored some sort of a triumph. They were rained out in the scheduled third game of the Cleveland series. They are moving back to the East with three meager victories to show for their 11 games in the West, and they are a cellar ball club.

The June 15 deadline on player trades which falls at midnight on Sunday is causing no great excitement among the Nats. Few of them have any right to expect to be traded. They wouldn't bring much in the open market. With Buddy Lewis and Cecil Travis in the shadow of the draft, only three Washington players would be in demand.

They are Pitchers Dutch Leonard and Sid Hudson, and First Base-

Dettweiler Loses, 7 and 6, At Cincinnati

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, June 12.—Old Man Upset stalked through the quarter-finals of the twelfth annual Women's Western Golf Championship today, sending two nationally known stars and two practically unknown Ohioans into Friday's semifinals.

What the critics believe to be the real championship match is scheduled in the semifinals, with Patty Berg, Minneapolis red-haired professional, meeting Betty Jameson, of San Antonio, Tex., winner of the national amateur the last two years. Miss Berg held the amateur title the year before Miss Jameson first won it.

In the other match are Mrs. Burt Weil, of Cincinnati, three-time Ohio champion, and Mrs. James D. Platt, jr., of Dayton, the State's medal play queen.

Mrs. Weil Wins

Mrs. Platt ousted Miss Helen Dettweiler, Washington professional and winner of the 1939 Open, by an astounding 7 and 6 margin, while Mrs. Weil nosed out Mary Agnes Wall, of Menominee, Mich., finalist in the trans-Mississippi tourney, 1 up, in quarter-final match.

Miss Berg had fairly tough fights in beating a couple of 17-year-old entrants, Jeanne Cline, of Bloomington, Ill., by 4 and 3, and Georgia Tainter, the Western junior champion from Fargo, N. Dak., by 3 and 2.

Miss Jameston, held to a 1-up victory in the morning round by Eleanor Dudley, of Chicago, came back in the quarter-finals to defeat Dorothy Gardner, of Steubenville, Ohio, 4 and 3.

Miss Dettweiler, in losing to Mrs. Platt, was 13 over par for the 12 holes, a far cry from the 3-over-par 76 with which she qualified. Miss Jameson shot the best golf of the day, missing par by one stroke in the 15-hole match with Miss Gardner, although about eight holes were played in the rain. Miss Berg was four over even figures for 16 holes.

Yesterday's rain-postponed second-round matches were played this morning and the third round in the afternoon to bring the tournament up to schedule.

Mrs. Whitney Loves a Winner, But Her Prize Horse Never Was

Pet of Llangollen Farm Is Old Top, First Horse Wealthy Sportswoman Owned; Now Has Many

(This is the first of a series of 12 articles by Miss Hagner on prominent breeding farms in this area. The second, concerning Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloan's famed Brookmeade, will appear tomorrow.—Editor.)

By Anne Hagner

Nothing is more welcome to Mrs. M. E. Whitney than a consistently successful horse, whether in the show ring or on the track. Yet the most valued horse on her Llangollen Farm, at Upperville, Va., never won a race or even a conformation class.

Although his name failed to appear in the form sheets, it stands at the head of Mrs. Whitney's personal list of favorites—Old Top, who was the foundation stone of her renowned string of champion gray hunters, and who still lives knee deep in blue grass on the 2,360 rolling acres of her farm.

Toppy, the first horse Mrs. Whitney ever owned, served in a number of capacities. He was her mount en route to school, he hunted with vigor, and he even won an informal flat race. As a show horse he had positively no claim to fame; in fact, he was allergic to the ring and condescended to win only one class a year, in which horse and rider each counted 50 per cent.

No Birthdays, Please

At this point, Mrs. Whitney states firmly that the gelding, now snow-white, is "much too old to tell his age—so he's stopped having birthdays." Unofficial estimates hint he is in his early thirties, but still he looks surprisingly well.

He is turned out in a huge pasture in such esteemed company as that of the famed Gray Knight, who won the hunter title of the National Horse Show at Madison Square Garden in 1936 and was then retired. Both horses (who would probably rate one-two in her affections) were, oddly, gifts from friends, as was Gray

Browns Rout Bosox, 9 to 4; Lose 2d, 3 to 2

St. Louis, June 12.—Boston and St. Louis split a double-header today, the Browns winning the opener, 9-4, and the Red Sox the nightcap 3-2.

Johnny Niggeling gave the Red Sox only six hits in the second game but one was Ted Williams' homer with one aboard, which provided the margin of victory. The Browns made seven hits off Johnson and Ryba.

The Red Sox chased Harris from the mound under a four-run barrage in the first inning of the initial game, but the Browns came right back with five the same frame to rout Dobson. The Browns added two more in the second off Fleming and another pair off Clift's homer in the fourth. Muncrief, who replaced Harris for the Browns, was the winner.

D. C. Attorney Ties for Medal in M. A. Seniors Golf Tourney

61-Year-Old W. J. Peters Shoots an 84

Ties With Fay Ingalls In Hot Springs Play; Four Other District Men in Title Flight

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Hot Springs, Va., June 12.—Virtually the entire field in the thirty-seventh Middle Atlantic Amateur Golf Championship passed up today's first qualifying day in favor of tomorrow and gave the Cascades course over to the seniors.

W. J. Peters, a 61-year-old Washington attorney, and Fay Ingalls, president of the Virginia Hot Springs Co., who is 60, tied for medal honors in the first Middle Atlantic Senior Championship with 84s each.

Peters a member of Manor Country Club, was out in 45 but back in 39 in a round which included five 3s over some of the toughest short holes in the State. Ingalls was more consistent with a 41, 43—84.

Other D. C. Qualifiers

Other District qualifiers in the Senior's Championship flight for the W. W. Hinshaw Trophy included A. S. Gardiner, jr., Columbia, 88, Dr. W. C. Barr, secretary of the association from Indian Spring 95; Dr. Bruce L. Taylor, Indian Spring, 98, and D. H. Sipple, Indian Spring, 112. Second low qualifier in the 55-age limit tourney was Bernon S. Prentice, Hot Springs, with 87.

Of the few qualifiers in the championship proper a host club entry, James Corbett, was low with a 38, 44—82; Charles Kent, Richmond's city champion and runner-up in the State Amateur last year, just about passed out of the championship flight picture with a 41, 42—83. Kent was one of the Virginia hopefuls for the title.

Washington's delegation was slow in arriving, but a few of them took advantage of a sunny afternoon after a rainy morning to play a practice round over the 6,690-yard par 71 layout, which is rightfully considered one of the finest tests of golf in this section of the country.

Tough Layout

Located 2,300 feet above sea level in a valley to the east of the Alleghany Mountains, the layout requires every shot in the golf bag and players were predicting here tonight that anything under 82 would make the championship flight and anyone who approached the par 71 would win the medal.

The District's three young hopefuls for the Amateur crown all toured the course in trial tests, Ralph Bogart, the city champion, and Earle Skinker, Columbia's promising 19-year-old shotmaker, playing 36 holes with Baltimore's State two-ball champs, Spencer Overton and Erford Barnes. Overton is defending champion. Bobby Brownell played 15 holes with the only other former champion entered, Harry G. Pitts, also of Manor. Bogart reported a 75.

Virginia's title chances were boosted by the arrival of the Janssen brothers of Charlottesville, Ben and Pat, who were runners-up in the Bannockburn Invitation last week, and the Battle brothers, University of Virginia golf team members.

Baltimore has sent but few entries in Overton and Barnes, Eddie Johnson, the State intercollegiate champion, and Jesse Dowling, jr. Former Champion Otto Greiner could not make the trip.

Manor Country Club has more than 20 members on the scene, including Pitt, Brownell and three other likely championship fighters, Earl McAleer, Ralph Gibson and Mel Shipley.

Tomorrow's qualifying round will be followed by match play Saturday and Sunday. The seniors go into match play tomorrow.

Braves Trade L. Waner for Reds' Pitcher

By the Associated Press

Boston, June 12.—Boston Braves tonight broke up the Waner Brothers' outfield combination by trading the 35-year-old Lloyd to the Cincinnati Reds for John (Hutch) Hutchings, a 24-year-old righthand pitcher who has seen but little Major League service since he was purchased from the Pensacola Southeastern League club in 1939. Secretary John Quinn said the deal was on a player-for-player basis.

Lloyd Waner was obtained from the Pirates in a straight deal for Pitcher Nick Strincevich early this season. Later the Braves signed his 38-year-old brother Paul as a free agent.

Hutchings, a native of Chicago, is regarded as a powerful curveball pitcher. He won 40 games and lost 16 during his two seasons with Pensacola and last year he appeared in 19 games for the Reds, winning two and losing one. Recently the Reds tried to ship him to the Birmingham club but, since he had been sent out three times before, his recall was ordered by Commissioner K. M. Landis.

Lewis, Deferred for 60 Days, Will Ask No Further Favors

Declares He's Ready For Aug. 11 Induction; Wants to Be Pilot

By a Staff Correspondent

Cleveland, June 12.—Buddy Lewis today declared he was prepared to join the Army willingly on August 11 and would seek no further deferment despite any rulings which may entitle him to make such a request.

Notified today that he had been granted a 60-day deferment until August 11 by his North Carolina draft board, the Nats' 23-year-old outfielder said he was completely satisfied.

"That's the date then, as far as I'm concerned," said Lewis. "I appreciate the deferment I did get. It enabled me to get in most of my 1941 salary—I'll lose only about seven weeks—and they've been very decent to me. I'm not going to ask for anything more."

Wants to Be Pilot

Lewis had pointed out to his draft board that a call earlier in the season would work a hardship on him financially inasmuch as his baseball income represented the chief support of his unemployed parents. "I told them a 60-day deferment would mean much to me, and it has."

The Nats' outfielder declared he was unconcerned with the draft case of John Rigney, of the White Sox, who has carried an appeal to the President of the United States for deferment until the end of the playing season. "I don't care what happens to Rigney. I'm going into the Army on August 11," he said.

Lewis is showing a positive zest for Army experience, in fact. He will ask to be assigned to the Air Corps, he said. "Of course, they'll put me anywhere they like, but I'd like nothing better than to work around those planes and eventually fly one. It's my hobby."

BUDDY LEWIS

Daily the possibility that Third Baseman Cecil Travis will be called up to the Army is growing dimmer. Travis, Lewis' roommate and close companion for the past six years on the Washington club, has been classed in 1-A, but he bears a high order number that has not yet been called. If he takes advantage of the 60-day deferment possibility, there is little chance his call will come before the season ends.

Also in Travis' favor is the new ruling now under consideration that will exempt from draft duty all men who have not been called up before reaching their twenty-eighth birthday. Travis will be 28 in August and with the slight chance that he will be called before that time, his deferment may, indeed, be indefinite as long as the Nation is at peace.

Louis' Secretary Makes Heroic Sacrifice—Gives Up Ring Career!

United Press Sports Writer.

Greenwood Lake, N. Y., June 12.—Freddy Guinyard, the "fourth man in the ring" at the Louis-Baer fight at Washington, D. C., promised definitely today to remain out of the ring Wednesday night until the Louis-Conn fight is finished.

This will be a heroic sacrifice on Guinyard's part, because the dapper little Negro—who serves as Joe Louis' personal secretary—feels that he has an important reputation to maintain.

Freddy will stay outside the ropes, but the fight won't be the same because, after all, he is the internationally famous "fourth man in the ring." He has carved himself a permanent niche in sports history because of his ability to appear suddenly like a wraith in the ring before a bout is ended.

Most of the fans and even many of the boxing writers who witnessed Louis' seventeenth title defense against Buddy Baer at Washington did not realize that Freddy and his pork-pie hat were in the ring before Baer was floored for the third time in that hectic sixth round.

Where Did You Get That Hat?

But when motion pictures of the bout were screened throughout the Nation it was Guinyard who stole the show. As Baer was coming up from the canvas the second time, Freddy came bounding through the ropes.

And on his head was that H-A-T—a brown coconut pork-pie with a brim that looked like airplane wings. As Freddy came rushing to the center of the ring, it seemed that he was about to take off.

Never since then has Secretary Guinyard worn that chapeau.

It wasn't the serious things that were written and said about Freddy and his sky piece that bothered him. It was the constant kidding by friends and even strangers that caused him to change to a brown fedora.

"I'm afraid I'll never live it down." Freddy said today while Louis was working out in Joe Murchio's indoor gymnasium. "And I was entirely innocent. People told me later that Louis might have lost his title because I was in there before the round was finished. But, gee, I thought it was finished. I was sitting right near the knockdown timekeeper. I saw him count 10 on Baer and wave his hand to show that Baer was out. Apparently the referee was a count behind. I jumped into the ring when the knockdown timekeeper waved his hand."

Local Police Win National Pistol Title

The National Rifle Association, in announcing the results of its national gallery pistol championship matches, revealed yesterday that the Washington Pistol Club entry was the first place winner.

The sharpshooting local quartet won the Nation-wide championship with a team score of 1,103, five points higher than the second place Capitol Pistol Club, of Raymond, Wash.

Walter Walsh, fourth ranking pistol marksman in the country, paced the locals to their triumph. The FBI agent turned in a total of 292 of a possible 300 points for his 30-shot string. Thompson Berdeen followed with a creditable 281 score, Dave Lockling had 269, and Melwood Van Scoyoc scored 261 points.

The Washington Club quartet had to outlast 125 of the Nation's top-flight pistol-shooting aggregations to gain the crown. These teams competed throughout the winter in their respective gallery leagues in every State for the league championship and the right to fire in the tournament finals.

The local group fired in the District Pistol League, won that championship, and then fired their title match score at the N. R. A. range here under N. R. A. supervision. The course was the standard 50-foot indoor distance, each team member firing ten shots in slow, timed and rapid fire.

Abie Plays David, Beats 'Goliath' on Mat

Abie (David) Coleman convincingly overpowered Lou (Goliath) Plummer in the main go of the wrestling carnival at Turner's Arena last night. Plummer's downfall came after 31 minutes of titantic struggle, and was the direct result of one of Abe's famed full Nelsons. To say that the faithful who jammed Hysteria Hall were happy is a big piece of understatement.

A combination of circumstances caused Lou, as fine a villain as ever hit these parts, a disastrous evening. First of all, the big blonde in the front row who always hopes to see the Plummer torso dismembered suddenly changed her tactics and cheered Lou lustily as he entered the inclosure. It was apparent that Lou was disconcerted, for something resembling amazement spread over his rugged features as he realized the unusual. He never recovered from the shock, and Abie, the battling beer barrel, made the proverbial hay while the sun was shining.

Interviewed after the fracas, the blonde demurely explained that she "had planned it that way." She refused to elaborate.

Lou got off to a fine start with a barrage of slugging, kneeing and gouging that left Abie breathless, but unbowed. Then the stoic Abie's Irish rose and he began to belt the Plummer unmercifully, finally depositing him in the press box . . . Attempting to follow this advantage with a crushing full Nelson, Abe discovered that his arms were too short to get the hold. With native ingenuity he solved this by backing Lou in a corner and then jumping up on the middle strand of the ropes to apply his hold from that vantage point.

In the prelims, Maurice La Chapelle subdued Jim Austin. Rudy Dusek and the Green Hornet waltzed to a draw, Tommy Ray and Ace Freeman did the same, and "Legs" Grobmier stopped Hank Kulkovich. OSCAR ELDER.

McNeill Favored In Clay Title Play

Chicago, June 12 (AP).—Defending Champion Don McNeill, of Gambier, Ohio, drew top ranking today in the seeded list of entries for the National Clay Courts Tennis Tournament which begins Saturday at the River Forest Club.

Bobby Riggs, former national champion who lost the clay courts title to McNeill last year, was seeded No. 2, followed in order by Joe Hunt, U. S. Naval Academy; Frank Parker, Pasadena, Calif.; John Kramer, Los Angeles; Gardnar Mulloy, Coral Gables, Fla.; Ted Schroeder, Glendale, Calif., and Bryan Grant, Atlanta.

Pauline Betz, Los Angeles, is seeded first among the contenders for the women's title won last season by Alice Marble. Helen Bernard, New York, is seeded second; Mary Arnold, Los Angeles, third, and Doris Hart, Miami, fourth.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

Tulsa, Okla, June 12.—Some of the most incredible chapters in the often hard to believe story of the American turf have been written right here in Tulsa, far away from the swank or historic landmarks of the track world. They have been written by oilmen, and an oilwoman. Oil mixes with the turf, if not with water.

CONSIDINE

This is where Josh Cosden, owner of Paul Jones, Snob II and other fine horses, began. His story someday will make a great book. But it won't be believed, for the man crammed four or five lifetimes into a couple score of years.

He came up from zero to perhaps $30,000,000 by the time he was 35. His luck was fabulous beyond belief. He got everything he went after, including the Prince of Wales, when Edward came to this country in 1924. The prince stayed at the Cosden place on Long Island. He lost his fortune, won it back, gave away $100 cigarette cases for favors at his parties, once chartered a special train to drag his $175,000 private car from Dallas to New York because he wanted to have luncheon in Dallas and knew that if he did have luncheon there he'd miss a chance to hook the car on a regularly scheduled train to New York.

He paid as high as $50,000 for yearlings who couldn't outrun molasses. At his Palm Beach place he stood responsible for all of his guests gambling losses at Col. Bradley's. His bets at Saratoga or Belmont, through Bookmaker Tom Shaw and others, sometimes went as high as $60,000 on a race. He died a year ago, broke. In his collapse his wife, now a New York interior decorator, casually tossed a $700,000 pearl necklace into the hands of the man who was straightening out the labyrinth of Cosden's effects.

Then there was Harry Sinclair, who had Zev and Grey Lag and others too numerous to mention. He was a shrewd, sharp oil millionaire who drove a hard bargain and took his flint-like pride and hardness to the turf. He owned the Rancocas Stable, one of the greatest in our turf history, and they say around here that, as old as he is now, he'd like to come back. He hasn't raced since his stable was suspended a decade and a half ago when his Ladana, a 1-to-4 shot, was found to have a sponge in its nose after a sorry race.

It was Sinclair who bought for $100,000 the full brother of Man o' War Playfellow. Playfellow turned out to be a wind sucker, and Sinclair went to court and got his money back in a case all but unique in the history of American jurisprudence. Playfellow was a beautiful thing, but he couldn't run two furlongs without whistling like a peanut roaster, or gasping like a seltzer bottle runnnig out of liquid. The suit led the late Will Rogers to remark that Sinclair liked Playfellow's coat well enough, but he didn't like his pants. It was Sinclair, too who went to jail in the Teapot Dome scandal.

But the great history of the turf out this way is the story of Black Gold, winner of the 1924 Kentucky Derby, and owned by the Partosage Hoots family. It is a story that goes back to the day when this was Indian Territory, and to a terrible chapter in the conquest of the West.

The Osage Nation was banished to a large tract of land near the present city of Tulsa. They were sent there to die, by Southern white land-grabbers with political influence and guns to back up the influence. But the Osage Nation wouldn't die. The Osages were smart enough to live, and to think sharply enough to draw up a solemn contract, called a head right, by which it was agreed that all Osages and part Osages would share equally in whatever mineral wealth their crusty land of exile possessed.

You known the rest of the story. The land which they were given turned out to be the richest oil land in the world. A Government that was getting more sympathetically disposed toward them protected it for them too, and after a while it became a social blunder for a braided, blanketed brave to own anything less than a "Packillac."

Well, the Hoots were in on that head right split-up, a pool formed by oil companies which had to pay the Indians one-sixth of the gross, and absorb all the cost of drilling, production, etc.

The Hoots had a durable mare named You See It, which campaigned for years around the leaky-roof circuit. She was claimed once in Juarez and old man Hoots pulled out two six shooters and dared the new owner to touch her. In due time she was bred to Col. Bradley's great stallion, Black Toney, whose last foal was Bimelech. The union produced Black Gold, which gallantly won the Derby for the Hoots, and just as gallantly went to his death at Fairgrounds, outside of New Orelans, when he was a 7-year-old, and after the ailing nerves in his forelegs had been snipped out. He is buried at the finish line of that track today, and the Hoots have gone to their ancestors.

There are others here and down in the Texas fields: Fred Koontz and Buddy Fogelson and Dick Andrade—oilmen who can't resist the spell of the thoroughbred. The turf and its lore would be poorer—considerably poorer, without their vigorous, spirited, to-hell-with-the-expense participation in a sport which is commonly believed to be wholly blue-blooded.

SKINS SIGN HOFFMAN, KREUGER

With the signing of Bob Hoffman and Rookie Al Kreuger, the Washington Redskins now have 33 players under contract for the coming campaign.

Both Hoffman and Kreuger are former Southern California players and are looked upon as prominent figures in the 1941 plans. Hoffman, a blocking back of considerable ability, hopes to fill the shoes of Erny Pinckert, who has retired. Last season Erny spent a great deal of time with Hoffman demonstrating the finer points of successful blocking and feels that his pupil is about ready to come into his own as a star.

AL KREUGER

Kreuger, on the other hand, comes to the Redskins highly touted as a pass catcher de luxe. He caught the touchdown pass that beat Duke, 7 to 2, in the Rose Bowl, January 2, 1939, in the last 40 seconds of play. He also caught the touchdown pass against Tennessee the following year in the Rose Bowl. Known as "Antelope Al," Kreuger is the eleventh of 20 draftees to come to terms for the coming season. He stands 6 feet tall, weighs 195 pounds and is 21 years old.

Close Classes Seen at Upperville Show Today, Tomorrow

Hunters' Jumping Classes Scheduled This Afternoon at Grafton Farms, Va.

The oak-shaped grove of Grafton Farms will be the proving grounds for top thoroughbred, halfbred and heavy draft stock as the Upperville (Va.) Colt and Horse Show is held today and tomorrow, beginning at 9:30 a. m.

Spectators in other sections of the world complain when other shows venture to have lead-in classes judged only on the basis of conformation, but Upperville patrons, schooled in the century-old tradition of the event, arrive early and stay late for the sole purpose of seeing the best that Virginia breeders have to offer.

All over the hunt country, horsemen are predicting that thoroughbred competition among yearlings, 2-year-olds, and 3-year-olds will be far stiffer this year than in the past four or five seasons as owners report bumper crops of colts.

Customary Fencing

Despite the centering of attention upon the lead-in events during the morning sessions, the customary hunter outings over fences will attract the afternoon customers with such classes as lightweight and heavyweight green hunters, half-bred hunters, the Founder's Cup for horses bred and owned in Fauquier and Loudoun Counties, ladies' hunters, and a conformation championship.

The 3-year-old championship, to be awarded today, will be the chief topic of discussion among the rail-birds, with Mr. and Mrs. George P. Greenhalgh's Looter holding the preshow limelight. Another Greenhalgh youngster, Traumertan, is considered as a likely prospect, with horses owned by Dr. Lewis M. Allen, Christopher Greer, Capt. Ewart Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. A. Mackay Smith and other widely known exhibitors.

Onlookers are eager to see the progress made by W. H. Lipscomb's colts who won first and second places in the yearling class of their division at last year's Upperville show. One is a chestnut by Brookmeade Farm's Psychic Bid and the other is a son of Granville. Among the fillies, A M Hirch's chestnut by Imp. San Utar will be closely watched as a result of her victory in the thoroughbred class last year.

Others who will show include Robert S. Waters with his 1940 hunter champion, Royalty II; Mr. and Mrs. Chrles C. Harrison, jr.; Mr. and Mrs. T. Beatty Brown, Ernest L. Redmon, Ridgeley Nicholas, William F. Hitt, Mrs. W. Plunkett Stewart, Mrs. M. E. Whitney, Mrs. John B. Anderson, Mrs. D. N. Lee, and A. S. Hewitt.

Fishing with JACK BELL

Special Week-End Weather Forecast

Fresh southeast to south winds from Cape Hatteras to Atlantic City, with occasional rain Friday.

Moderate shifting winds Friday night with some fog. Friday night and early Saturday probably clearing Saturday afternoon with moderate westerly winds.

Now is the time to get ready for the opening of Maryland's bass season. Maryland's new regulation permitting the opening of the bass season earlier this year by 15 days goes into effect the morning of June 15. Plenty of fishermen will be on the job before sunup.

There is every reason to believe that the opening should see some fine catches made. After the heavy rains up State last week the water now has had a good chance to to get into good condition.

Large and small mouth bass are probably the more popular of fresh-water fish in Maryland. JACK BELL Bass are found in every county in the State, being abundant in the rivers and streams of the Eastern Shore, as well as in the area embraced by the Potomac River. Especially noteworthy are the small rivers in Dorchester County. The Monocacy Creek northeast of Frederick produces many big small-mouth bass every year, also the angler has a good chance to pick up one of those granddaddy rainbow trout.

Mr. Tressel, who operates the big commercial bass hatchery on Little Hunting Creek, catches many of his big brood fish out of the Monocacy. It is of interest to note here that Mr. Tressel's hatchery furnishes a big bulk of the small-mouth bass used in restocking waters in the State of Maine. The State of Maine recognizes that small-mouth bass reared in the waters of Maryland are to be desired for their excellent game qualities and freedom from disease. The center for bass hatching of fish used in restocking Maryland waters is at Lewistown, Md., where there is a thoroughly modern layout of ponds, buildings and equipment.

These hatcheries and the entire program of fresh-water fish conservation, including distribution, are carried on with funds derived from anglers' license fees, which by law can be used for no other purpose.

The cost of nonresident fishing license is $5.50; resident fishing license, $1.25; Maryland does not have a State-wide part-time tourist license, unfortunately. Here is where they are losing a good bet to increase the coffers.

Deep Creek Lake, in the mountains of Garrett County, affords a fair abundance of small-mouth bass, as well as other types of sport fish. It is for this lake only that Maryland provides a part-time license, 3 days for $2.25; one day $1.25.

Due to favorable weather conditions reported on the lower end of the bay, Fishermen since Sunday night are coming in with good catches of hardheads, ranging from 75 to 150 a boat. While it is still a little early for good rockfishing, Fishermen who really go after them are getting 10 to 15 to a boat.

Point Patience, out of Solomons, is producing rockfish.

This week's $5 prize-winning fishing yarn, submitted to Fishing Editor Jack Bell by Robert Willing, of 1312 Twenty-Seventh Street Northwest, concerns the exaggerations of a Pennsylvania Dutchman and an Ohio angler, each trying to better the other verbally.

After having all his stories dulled for a full evening around a Brotherhood of the Jungle Cock campfire, the Dutchman finally set forth. It seems that he was fishing in one of those bottomless lakes and had out about 300 feet of line when he felt a terrific yank. After an hour of a bitter battle, he boated the monster—a 52¾-pound yellow perch—and fearing it would capsize his boat he slit its throat with his penknife, he declared to the doubting Ohioan.

Coming right back, the Ohioan came through with this one:

"I was also fishing in one of those bottomless lakes and I had out 600 feet of line when I felt a tug. It wasn't just an ordinary tug, but several well-spaced jerks . . . In fact, as my sensitive fingers held the line, I felt an S O S hastily jerked out on the line in Morse code. Within five minutes I had retrieved the entire line. Somewhat breathless with anticipation and excitement, I peered over the side of the boat to behold a fish but a rusty old lantern dangling from the end of the lin-."

"A lantern?" interjected the Dutchman.

"Lighted!" gasped the Dutchman in astonishment.

City Tennis Postponed By Showers

Rains postponed yesterday's matches in the City of Washington men's tennis tournament at Edgemoor Club and the same schedule is to prevail today.

The fourth singles semifinalist will be determined by a match between fourth-seeded Dick Murphy and eighth-seeded Charley Channing at 5 p. m.

Three quarterfinals doubles are carded. The top-ranked team of Barney Welsh and Hugh Lynch will meet Bill Breese and Ed Mather at 4 o'clock. Second-ranked Don Leavens and Davie Johnsen tackle Doyle Royal and Eddie Miller at 5, and fourth-seeded Murphy and Tom Magnan engage Bill Hoppock and Austin Rice at 6. Channing and Ricky Willis already are in the semifinals.

Because of yesterday's interruption all semifinals matches have been scheduled for tomorrow, with both singles and doubles finals to be played Sunday afternoon.

Murphy, the diminutive former Longwood Bowl champion with the clever net attack, will rule a decided favorite to defeat the big, hard-hitting Channing today. Channing, former University of Virginia star, has been playing better than in recent years, however, and he may be expected to give Murphy a good fight.

Mako Upset By Reedy at St. Louis Net

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, June 12.—Gene Mako, of Los Angeles, one of the leading tennis players in the Nation, was eliminated from the Triple A invitation tournament this afternoon by William Reedy, of Beverly Hills, Calif.

The scores were 4—6, 6—1, 6—2.

Reedy, No. 1 player at the University of Southern California and considered the dark horse of this tournament, gained the quarter-finals by his victory. Earlier in the day he had defeated Bill Blalock, captain of the University of Texas netsters, 6—2, 6—0.

Mako's second round match with Dave Freeman, of Pomona, Calif., was stopped by rain yesterday with Mako needing only one point. He won the needed point today to take the match, 0—6, 6—3, 6—2.

Also in the quarter-finals are Don McNeill, Oklahoma City, national champion, who advanced by default when George Dunklin, of Pine Bluff, Ark., reported an injured leg, and Frank Parker, of Altadena, Calif., nationally ranked No. 5, who defeated Henry Batjer of Austin, Tex., 6—0, 6—2, after advancing to the third round by the default of veteran Karl Hodge, of St. Louis.

Cambridge Gets Eastern Titular Speedboat Races

By the Associated Press

Cambridge, Md., June 12.—Emmett Andrews, Cambridge Yacht Club Regatta chairman, said today the 1941 Eastern championships of the Pacific No. 1 design hydroplane class would be run at the Cambridge Regatta June 27, 28 and 29.

Due to a conflict of dates with the Richmond (Va.) Regatta, no outboards will appear here this year, Andrews said.

Plaza Wine Meets I. B. M. Tonight

A hustling Plaza Wine & Liquor ten, with former Western High School stars dotting the line-up, gets an opportunity to throw the Merchants' Night Softball League into a three-way tie for third place when it engages International Business Machines in the feature game of a double-header tonight in Ballston Stadium at 9:30.

In the opening game, Senate Beer will be guarding against an upset when it clashes with Adams Hats.

Knight's almost equally renowned running mate, Bon Diable.

Rest for the Weary

The Toppy—Gray Knight combination is turned out in a meadow adjoining the landscaped gardens directly behind the house, along with another member of the old hunt team, Airy Spirit, and a yearling named Daze, by Hero Worship out of Hard Lot.

On the other side of the farm, in a secluded field, are other treasured pensioners—Bon Diable, from the show ring; Paper Moon, winner of the Billy Barton Steeplechase two years ago, and Rocky Run, consistent brush horse when he was in training. In the same group is Loro, handsome conformation horse who took his share of tri-colors and also raced before he joined the retired ranks.

If a glimpse of such brilliant horses is a soothing reminder of the past, any worries of the future of Whitney racers and show mounts may be put at ease by a visit to the broodmare barns, where top Virginia and Kentucky stallions are represented in the persons of lively youngsters.

Expensive Mare

First Lady, now a middle-aged mare, brought more than $20,000 as a yearling at the Saratoga sales when she was bought by William Zeigler. At her side is a grand little bay colt by Valorous. In the next stall is Far North, by Discovery, whose chestnut son by Burgoo King is regarded as one of the classiest of the young fry. Another little bay, by the gray stallion Belfonds, is out of a black chestnut daughter of Black Toney, running the gamut of the color chart.

Pet youngster on the farm these days is a 2-year-old by Mrs. Whitney's home-bred Bonne Nuit, full brother to Gray Knight. A beautifully built gray, he has been named Night Lark and will be added to Mrs. Whitney's collection of stallions, in addition to being shown.

For the distant future, the current crop of brood mares has been bred to Discovery, Trace Call, Man O' War, War Admiral, American Flag, Pilate, Stepinfetchit, Bonne Nuit, Belfonds and Imp. Mahoud, by Blenheim II.

As an indication of the present strength of the Whitney forces, the big tack room offers as evidence 176 ribbons won this year, of which 49 are blues and ten are championships and reserves. As for silver trophies, the room closely resembles a jewelry store.

Allerdice Loses 18 Pounds to Join Flying Cadet Corps

By the Associated Press

New York, June 12.—A Princeton University football star, David W. Allerdice, had to lose 14 pounds in order to join the Army Flying Cadet Corps.

Allerdice, famed for his forward passing, lives at Indianapolis, Ind. He weighed 195 pounds before he started on a rigorous diet and today weighed in at 181 and was accepted for training by the Princeton board.

Stagg's Son Named Worcester Coach

Worcester, Mass., June 12 (AP).—Paul M. Stagg, 32-year-old son of the famous Alonzo and one of his products at the University of Chicago, today was appointed head football coach at Worcester Polytechnic Institute. Robert W. Pritchard, line coach at Susquehanna University, was named assistant coach.

Prof. Percy R. Carpenter, head of the department of physical education, said Stagg also would be head basketball coach and that Pritchard would coach varsity baseball and freshman basketball.

First Bouts Set For Baltimore's Huge Stadium

Baltimore, June 12.—The big Municipal Stadium will be used for boxing for the first time June 26 when Heavyweights Harry Bobo, of Pittsburgh, and Bill Poland, of New York, meet in a ten-round bout under the lights.

Promoter Jack Laken said that Jack Kearns, who has just become Poland's manager, signed a contract for the fight with him in New York yesterday. Three other ten-round bouts are planned for the same stadium card.

Mack Works Strategy In Allowing Weak Hitter to Oppose Reliefman Benton

By the Associated Press

Detroit, June 12.—Connie Mack played a hunch today that rewarded him with a 5 to 3 victory over the Detroit Tigers, the first for the Philadelphia Athletics in eight starts with the American League champions this season.

With two out in the ninth and big Al Benton coming to the relief of Johnny Gorsica, wise old Connie decided to string along with Al Brancato, relatively light-hitting shortstop, instead of calling a power hitter from the bench.

Rain was pelting the players when Brancato belted a three-run homer, his second of the year, to break up the game and end a six-game Philadelphia losing streak.

The Tigers seemingly were headed for victory after Rookie Pat Mullin connected for his fourth home run with one aboard in the seventh inning. Gorsica was moving along smoothly under the 3 to 2 lead, but, with two out in the ninth, Frankie Croucher booted Pinch Hitter Eddie Collins' bounder, and Frank Hayes, who had singled, took third.

Nats Rained Out, En Route Home

man Jim Vernon. The Washington pitching being what it is, Clark Griffith is not eager to part with such as Leonard and Hudson, and he has said definitely that Hudson would figure in no trade.

New York has made Griffith several offers for Leonard. It seems now that the big knuckle-baller is no longer considered indispensable to the Nats, and the likelihood is that Griffith would trade him to the Yankees if the New York club would be liberal with infielders or outfielders in exchange. The Yanks are also coveting Vernon, but the Nats' owner is less inclined to part with him.

Any deals the Nats might make would have as their chief object the bolstering of the Washington infield. The hitting of Jimmy Bloodworth and Jimmy Pofahl has faded to a whisper, and their fielding has not been inspiring. Yesterday at Cleveland, the Nats' infield made its first double play in ten days.

Tigers Like Bloodworth

Early in the season, Manager Del Baker of the Tigers displayed a great interest in Bloodworth as protection for Detroit's aging infield, and Detroit may make an offer for the player. Any deal with the Tigers must necessarily entail waivers, however, and in return the Nats could expect only players who had been waived on by other American League clubs. Thus the prospect of a Detroit-Washington deal is not highly exciting.

Manager Bucky Harris, highly disgusted with his infield, has asked Griffith to call in Ellis Cleary, shortstop from the Nats' Greenville farm, and Jim Layne, a shortstop-second baseman now with Chattanooga. Layne at last reports was batting .370 for Chattanooga and Harris is eager to appraise him. Cleary, a nimble little fellow with no great power at the bat, has won some fame as a base stealer and would be welcomed if only for his aggressiveness.

Tomorrow, the Nats simply can't lose. They face that harmless opponent, Open Date, before taking on the invading Western clubs beginning Saturday.

Pastor Opens Fight Drills Here Today

James Joy Johnston, of "boy bandit," "iron hat" and "also ran" fame, will set up quarters in Turner's Arena today at 1 p. m. for Bob Pastor, who, he insists, is going to knock out Buddy Scott Monday night in Griffith Stadium.

Pastors multi-nicknamed manager, who was an also ran in the race with Mike Jacobs for the czarship of fistiana, further suggested that Pastor will go after Buddy Baer after stopping Scott.

The doughty little New Yorker left Manhattan yesterday afternoon for Washington after Pastor brushed through a light session in Stillman's gymnasium.

With Pastor on public display today will be Italo Colonello, the Italian behemoth who in other years was being groomed as the successor to Primo Carnera.

Colonello, who fights Jimmy DeChard in a six-rounder supporting the ten-round feature, will box three rounds with Pastor this afternoon. Scott will maul a collection of sparmates after Pastor quits the ring.

Both Johnston and Freddie Brown, who trains Pastor and Stablemate Abe Simon, said Pastor is in top shape and that what they want most to see right now is a knockout over Scott, a victor over the Junior Baer and a third fight with Joe Louis.

Harry Raskin, currently in charge of Scott, limited Buddy to 4 miles of roadwork yesterday. Today's workouts will be broadcast from 1:05 to 1:15 p. m. over Radio Station WINX. Sam Taub and Bill Stern, who will broadcast Monday's fight over a coast-to-coast hook-up, will arrive in town tomorrow.

Dodgers Sign Engineers' Hard-Hitting 1st Sacker

Atlanta, June 12 (AP).—Howard Burpo, hard-hitting Georgia Tech first baseman, has been signed by the Brooklyn Dodgers and will report at once to Valdosta of the Georgia-Florida League.

Burpo, who hit about .400 for Tech this year, was signed by Ted McGrew of the Brooklyn scouting staff, to fill the need for a first sacker at the Dodgers' Valdosta farm.

Haswell's Nipantuck Dies in Race Accident

Hubbell Hurls, Giants Beat Cubs by 2-0

By the Associated Press

New York, June 12.—Carl Hubbell and Bill Lee matched two fine pitching performances today and "Hub" came away the victor as the New York Giants shut out the Chicago Cubs, 2 to 0.

The Giants were held to six hits, but scored in the first inning when they loaded the bases on two singles and a walk and Hank Danning lofted a fly to right field. They got their other run in the fourth when Mel Ott walked, moved to second on an error, to third on a forceout and home on Lee's high throw to second trying for a double play.

Hubbell allowed eight hits, giving two in three different innings and once loading the bases, but was tight in the pinches.

Local Pigeon Makes Good, Flies 42 M.P.H. 300 Miles

An entry from the loft of William R. Pennington, averaging 1,235 yards per minute, or approximately 42 miles per hour, won the second 300-mile airline race from Akron, Ohio, under the auspices of the Capital City Racing Pigeon Club, with an entry from the loft of Representative Pehr Holmes, of Massachusetts, and Harry C. Burke, of this city, a partnership, gaining the second position, only a short distance behind the winner. The Durity-Harper loft captured third place.

The birds were liberated at Akron, Ohio, at 6 a. m. and the winner was timed at 12:45 p. m. There were 71 birds from 13 local lofts competing in the event.

Result of the race, giving the average speed in yards per minute of the first return to each loft, follows, viz:

Wm. R. Pennington, 1,235; Burke-Holmes Loft, 1,233; Durity-Harper Loft, 1,166; James F. Mundie, 1,120; Hilltop Loft, 1,085; William Cross, 1,070; Frank L. Reinhardt, 1,033; Wm. A. Correll, 1,028; James B. Lyons, 1,002; Ollie Brown, 996.

Three lofts failed to report arrivals.

Robey Brothers Get Peddie Letters

The Robey family scored a double at Peddie School in baseball, it was announced yesterday, as letters were awarded to William F. and Robert H. Robey, sons of Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Robey, of 5402 Connecticut Avenue Northwest.

George W. Weed, chairman of the faculty athletic committee at Peddie, awarded the letters Saturday at the Hightstown, N. J., school—William's for participation in varsity baseball, and Robert's for junior varsity.

Detroit Man Takes Lead in U. S. Seniors

By the Associated Press

Rye, N. Y., June 12.—William A. Ryan, of Detroit, who is 59 years old but tall and powerful, shot a fine two-over-par 74 today at the Apawamis Club to take a four-stroke lead at the halfway mark in the second section of the United States Seniors Golf Association Championship.

The first section of 195 players finished their 36 holes yesterday, with Alvah P. Pierce, of Brockton, Mass., the leader with 157.

From the pace of the second group's play it appeared likely Pierce would be knocked out of the lead tomorrow. Not only can Ryan go eight shots worse than he did today and still win, but there were four others among today's 123 players who broke 80 for their initial efforts.

John K. Wadley, of Texarkana, Tex., who is in the 60-to-64 age group and was runner-up last year, shot a 76; Raleigh W. Lee, of Columbus, Ohio, who beat Ryan in a playoff for the title three years ago, a 77; Charles H. Jennings, of Roaring Gap, N. C., and Garden City, N. Y., winner the past two years, a 77, and S. P. Emerick, Oswego, N. Y., a 78.

Emerick is with Ryan in the 55-to-59 division, Jennings with Wadley in the 60-to-64, and Lee in the 65-to-69.

Three players posted 80s, Fred L. Riggin, of Black River, Mich., and W. R. Tuckerman and J. F. McCarron, both of Washington, D. C.

Among the oldest players competing were Charles B. Hays, of Kalamazoo, Mich., who is 78, and led the 75-and-over group with a 94; A. J. Wellington, Woodland, Mass., who is 80, shot 109, and Eberhard Faber, of New York, who is 82, took 126.

Crashes May Rob West Lanham Of 3 Aces for Opening Card

Three of the big-name drivers scheduled to compete in the new West Lanham, Md., Speedway's dedicatory automobile races Tuesday night at 8:30 o'clock were on the doubtful list yesterday following crack-ups of their cars in the Cedarhurst, Long Island, races last Wednesday night.

It was announced yesterday that Ernie Gesell, winner of the Cedarhurst feature, limped across the finish line with a smashed car. Also that Henry Banks and Ted Tappett had their automobiles smashed, although they escaped personal injury.

Racing Director Walter Stebbins yesterday disclosed that every effort will be made to have these drivers ready for the West Lanham opening, and emphasized that he will have capable replacements ready in the event they are not available.

Stebbins simultaneously announced the signing of three more drivers for Tuesday night's racing, namely: Bill Troutline, of Bridgeport, Conn.; Walt Walker, of Philadelphia, and Earl Jones, of Camden, N. J.

Troutline and Jones are big-car drivers who handle the midgets with equal skill, and Walker is one of the handsomest and best-liked competitors in the midget game today.

Tickets for Tuesday's opening program are to go on sale at the Sport Center, Eighth and D Streets Northwest, tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock and will be priced at 55 cents, 75 cents and $1.10.

Zirkle's 143 Tops Ft. Davis Pin-Rolling

Tom Zirkle, Weitzel Plumbers, had top set of 143 in the Fort Davis Commercial League last night while "Butch" Hutchinson, Melvin Motors, led for best set with 381. The Kurtz Killers took high team game after a 584 pinfall while Weitzel won three straight from J. B. Kendall with high set for the night of 1,668. H. & J. Construction tops the league.

The Takoma Summer League found that Leo Sorel, Modern Way Movers, was best man with his 149-377 but Andy Gleeson was close as he counted 377 to spark a three-game win over the Rookies by his Takoma Ambulance team. The Ambulance lads also took team highs after totaling 588 and 1,709. Hap Newman, Raines Plumbing, had 138 to aid in an odd-game victory over Modern Way.

Steffes to Pitch Softball Tonight

Last night's triple-header in the Capital City Softball League at Washington Softball Stadium was postponed because of bad weather. Tonight Fat Boy Restaurant and May Hardware Co. will meet in a league double-header, starting at 8 p. m., which will feature Hal Steffes, May's sensational pitcher.

Among Bourbon Whiskies It's

KENTUCKY STRAIGHT BOURBON WHISKEY

For Extra Smoothness, Extra Richness—Because It's Still Made the Old-Fashioned "Slow" Way!

MEN who know bourbon know what it takes to achieve the delicious extra-smooth, extra rich taste of our Old Jordan Straight Bourbon Whiskey. We stick to the old methods that take more time, more care—the "slow" way we started 100 years ago. We still buy premium grains. Use more of them to a gallon. Simmer our mash slowly. But we're in no hurry. That's how we get such extra smoothness, extra richness. That's why Old Jordan—straight whiskey every drop—sells best in the "bourbon country." Yes, Old Jordan costs more to make, but not to drink! So treat yourself to the extra pleasure of Old Jordan.

Wins Feature Leads Jockey Title Race

Pennsylvania Boy Has 24; Palumbo 2d With 22; Clay Hill Pays $9 in Feature

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., June 12.—Jockey Willie Kelly, a Pennsylvania boy, rode his way into the lead in the local race for the jockey championship here today. Kelly went to the starting gate with five mounts and he brought four of them back to the winner's circle. The rush of winners sent Kelly two ahead of Jockey Sammy Palumbo who has been setting the pace since the early days of the meeting. The standing of the first three is this way: Kelly, 24; Palumbo, 22, and Root, 21.

Kelly began the day by riding E. A. Nicodemus' Mowmet home four lengths ahead of the nearest opposition. He was out of the money with I. Beaver's Microplay in the second. His next three winners came in consecutive races. In the fifth he scored in a driving finish with V. L. Black's Star Canter. He came back in the sixth to triumph aboard Capt. Ewart Johnston's Clay Hill and then took the seventh with Mrs. Pat Poluch's War Rumor.

Clay Hill, a $9.80 shot, was the winner of the Bridgewater Purse, the day's feature race. In a field of five, Clay Hill was a nose victor in a thrilling photo finish that placed Mrs. Tom Lewis' Purport second. J. Harnett's Indian Sea was third with Jockey Sammy Palumbo drawing boos by finishing last with the favored Glitter Girl, owned by J. B. Royston.

Indian Sea set the early pace while Kelly steadied Clay Hill. On the backstretch, Clay Hill went to Indian Sea and the pair ran head and head toward the stretch. Purport then moved to the outside of Clay Hill and the latter swung out, carrying Purport with him. Clay Hill then opened a lead and Purport, straightened, set out after him. In the final strides it was anybody's race.

Clay Hill ran the Charles Town course of 120 feet more than six furlongs in 1.18 4-5 over a track that was somewhere between slow and muddy as result of rains last night and this morning.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MOWMET, $4.20, $3.20, $2.60; SIR JEROME, $4.60, $3.00; SUN MAKER, $3.00.

MOWMET, first away, opened a good lead, was not threatened and won with speed in reserve. SIR JEROME was well placed from the start, swung out entering the stretch and closed gamely. SUN MAKER moved up boldly at the turn, was forced out by SIR JEROME and weakened at the end. TERRY MAY was hard ridden and had no excuses.

SECOND RACE—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place driving. Went to post at 3:07½. Off at 3:08. Winner, J. E. Simmons' ch. m. (7), by Happy Time—Princess K. Trained by C. A. Cranford. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:51⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—OLIVILO, $11.40, $6.80, $4.20; SOUR CHERRY, $6.60, $5.00; PART ONE, $11.20.

OLIVILO, a forward factor from the start, came through on the inside to reach serious contention and wore down SOUR CHERRY in a long drive. SOUR CHERRY took command on the backstretch, but could not draw clear and fought it out willingly. TIME SCOUT set a good pace and weakened. ACE OF TRUMPS had a very rough trip.

Daily Double, HAPPY HOSTESS and OLIVILO, paid $44.80.

FOURTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 4:04½. Off at 4:08½. Winner, L. M. Torreyson's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—STAR CANTER, $5.20, $2.80, $2.80; MISS FIDGET, $3.20, $2.60; DONABOY, $7.00.

STAR CANTER, rated while closest to the pace of MISS FIDGET, responded when placed to a drive and drew out in the closing test. MISS FIDGET took command going to the first turn, drew clear, but could not stay with the winner. DONABOY showed a good effort, but was not a serious factor.

SIXTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $500; allowance. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:00½. Off at 5:00⅘. Winner, E. Johnston's ch. g. (3), by Mud—Pretty Business. Trained by O. F. Kent. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:18⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CLAY HILL, $9.80, $4.20, $2.80; PURPORT, $4.60, $3.40; INDIAN SEA, $3.40.

CLAY HILL, closest to the pace of INDIAN SEA, moved up on the outside of the leader, alternated in setting and forcing the pace, swung out entering the stretch and barely lasted. PURPORT, not hurried in the early stages, came to the outside for racing room, was carried wide entering the stretch by CLAY HILL and came gamely at the close. INDIAN SEA was hard rushed while racing forwardly and weakened nearing the end. SIR BROADSIDE came willingly through the stretch.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:28½. Off at 5:29. Winner, Mrs. P. Poluch's br. g. AGNES KNIGHT, excellently handled, saved ground when outrun early, found racing room on the inside and came through to win going away. BUFFOON, first away, set a good pace, withstood challenges of TRIXIE LASS and held on with good energy. TRIXIE LASS moved up to force the pace and tired gradually at the close. SUNNY ROSE moved up with a bold rush on the backstretch and weakened suddenly.

Selections at Charles Town.

Dear Al:

There was a horse that won a race here this week with reverse English. J. T. Harris, owner and trainer of Five-O-Four, had to leave his stable the morning of his horse's race and told the stable foreman to shoe the horse for the mud. Some friends came along and the foreman absent-mindedly put the front shoes on the hind legs and the rear plates on the front feet. Harris came back and discovered the mistake in time to change the shoes, but he decided he would let them stay that way for good luck. You would think that Five-O-Four, with shoes reversed, wouldn't know whether he was coming or going. But he did. The gelding came through with a rush entering the stretch and won going away to the tune of a $20.20 mutuel. Now Harris is thinking about reversing the shoes on all horses in his barn. Russell Oakes, publicity director, is on the mend but won't be back to work until the weather clears. Owners and trainers of 2-year-olds here are thinking of forming a "beat Mowmet" club. The son of Mowlee has now won four straight, the only four starts of his racing career. As I wrote before, his mama was a thoroughbred polo pony. Jockey Joe O'Malley, who has been on the injured list with a broken bone in his hand, will swing back into action today. I almost joined in the booing after seeing Palumbo ride Glitter Girl yesterday. He made more mistakes than the French army. And just why Jockey George Napier, on Purport didn't claim a foul will never be known. Clay Hill almost carried him to Martinsburg entering the stretch. Trycook, the dam of Scullery Maid, a local performer, paid the longest price of any Maryland horse. She won at Hagerstown, May 10, 1934, and returned $810—and it wasn't hay either. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—I'm going to give JIMJOFOR another chance. He has shown two good races and will be on his toes for this. HAPPY SLAVE'S last left nothing to be desired. PETE'S GOLD is a threat despite top weight.

Second race—I'm going to take a shot at BRAZEN HUSSY in this field. This one will like an off track and may prove the speed of the party. WAY OUT and MISS WING were recent winners and will battle it out if I have overestimated the top one.

Third race—The chief strength in this field is on the reserve list. CAIDON is dropping down and WALES SIGNAL appears second best. Of the eligibles, STEALING HOME and DON DASH appear to be best suited.

Fourth race—STRUMMING gets my call in this rather open affair. Breaks off the rail and may make every post a winning one. CRUSAND and EMMA H. have taken purses at the meeting and will be in the thick of contention.

Fifth race—TYR will have to be caught in this field. Gets a good post position and has all his speed. HOT MAN met better ones recently and was beaten. Fits well in this field. BROOKIE BOY belongs in the pay circle

Schenker Quits SEC Post in Surprise Move

David Schenker, director of the investment trust division of the Securities and Exchange Commission and prominently mentioned for the commission vacancy recently given to Ganson Purcell, has resigned from the commission staff effective June 30.

Mr. Schenker has been with the commission since its organization and prior to that was counsel for Judge Ferdinand Pecora when the latter was conducting the Senate hearings that led to the passage of the Securities Act of 1933 and the Securities Exchange Act of 1934.

When the SEC began its study of investment trusts looking to passage of the present regulatory act, Mr. Schenker was put in charge as counsel and is credited with having been the most influential of the numerous authors of the Investment Trust Act of 1940.

The resignation of Mr. Schenker came as a surprise to most of his colleagues on the staff of the commission and to the many businessmen who had worked closely with him in drafting the investment trust law and the Investment Advisors Act, which also came under his department. Just before the selection of Mr. Purcell as a member of the commission, Mr. Schenker had requested Stock Exchange members registered under the Advisors Act to select representatives to confer with him on projected regulations under the act to the end that they not be penalized unfairly by rules intended for others.

Mr. Schenker will resume the private practice of law in New York City, where he was located before he went to Washington with Judge Pecora.

Mr. Hollands, assistant director of the investment trust division of the SEC, is expected to succeed Mr. Schenker as director of the division.

Bond Club Outing Today

More than 60 prizes, a mock stock exchange session and election of officers will highlight the annual outing today of the Bond Club of Washington at the Manor Club. More than 200 members and guests are expected to attend.

Frank M. Hall, retiring president, will preside at the dinner. Harvey B. Gram, jr. is in charge of arrangements, assisted by eight special committee heads: T. Baker Robinson, nominating; William C. Coe, tickets; Austin Rohrbaugh, stock exchange Robert Norman, dinner; Marshall Exnicios, prizes; John Hoffman, golf; Cliff Howard, putting, and Monk Ellis, horseshoes.

The nominating committee has announced the following selections (tantamount to election): president, J. Clifford Folger, of Folger, Nolan & Co.; vice president, Myles H. Quail of Y. E. Booker & Co.; secretary and treasurer, Harold C. Patterson of Auchincloss, Parker & Redpath.

The board of governors is composed of the officers and two other members. Nominated for the governing board are G. Fenton Cramer of Waggaman, Brawner & Co., and Harvey B. Gram, jr., of Johnston, Lemon, & Co.

Commodity Index Rises

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported yesterday an increase of 0.8 per cent in the general level of wholesale commodity prices for the week ended June 7.

The bureau said that advancing prices for foods and farm prices contributed chiefly to the change.

The bureau's index of wholesale commodity prices now stands at 85.9 per cent of the 1926 average as compared with 77.4 a year ago.

Merrill Lynch Expands

Announcements by Merrill Lynch, E. A. Pierce & Cassatt and Sutro Bros. Co. state that effective June 23, three of the five offices of Sutro Bros. & Co. will be discontinued and the major part of the personnel of those offices will join the Merrill Lynch firm.

The Detroit, Cleveland and Pittsburgh offices of Sutro Bros. & Co. are being consolidated with those of Merrill Lynch, in those cities. The New York and Chicago offices of Sutro Bros. & Co. will be continued.

The Merrill Lynch firm maintains an office in Washington, under the management of George A. Garrett who is a partner of the firm.

Cottonseed Crushing Heavier in Period

The Census Bureau reported yesterday that cottonseed crushed in the 10-month period, Aug. 1 to May 31, totaled 4,198,791 tons, compared with 4,092,685 tons in the corresponding period a year ago.

Cottonseed on hand at mills May 31 totaled 286,609 tons, compared with 96,728 tons a year ago.

Tribute Is Paid Herron, 40 Years With Union Trust

At a meeting this week of the board of directors of the Union Trust Co., tribute was paid to Vice President Frank D. Herron who this month completed 40 years of consecutive service with the Washington bank. Mr. Herron is in charge of the banking department and is a well-known figure in local financial circles.

MR. HERRON

Before becoming associated with Union Trust, he worked 12 years with the National Capital Bank. He'll soon be 70, likes to wear red neckties, is married, has two daughters and two sons, lives at 1730 Park Road Northwest. His garden at that address, where he has lived for the past 32 years, is the envy of neighbors.

Food Storage Reported Far Above Average

By the Associated Press

Stocks of meats, dairy and poultry products in the Nation's larder —it's cold storage warehouses— were far above average on June 1, the Agriculture Department reported yesterday.

Cold storage holdings of all meats totaled 952,927,000 pounds, compared with 726,415,000 a year ago and 656,381,000 for the 1936-40 average on June 1.

Stocks of pork—a commodity of which the Government has asked farmers to produce more—amounted to 794,572,000 pounds, compared with 592,575,000 a year ago and 533,425,000 for the five-year average.

Lard stocks, from which Great Britain is being supplied, were said to total 353,737,000 pounds, compared with 283,937,000 a year ago and 168,937,000 for the five-year average.

With the into-storage movement of creamery butter during May being much heavier than normal, stocks of this dairy product totaled 56,359,000 pounds, compared with 25,463,000 a year ago, and a five-year average of 41,845,000.

Stocks of cheese—another commodity much in demand for the British—totaled 119,628,000 pounds, compared with 88,102,000 a year ago and a five-year average of 82,864,000.

Egg stocks were slightly above the five-year average of 9,420,000 cases, but supplies of frozen poultry totaled 87,427,000 pounds, compared with a five-year average of 64,004,000 pounds.

Cold storage holdings of apples amounted to 2,316,000 bushels, compared with 1,138,000 bushels a year ago and a five-year average of 1,632,000.

Merger of Seven Eastern Truck Firms Disclosed

Charlotte, N. C., June 12 (AP).—H. D. Horton, president of the Horton Motor Lines, of Charlotte, announced today the merger of seven large motor truck transportation companies of the Atlantic seaboard into Associated Transport, Inc.

Horton said these companies operated about 3,500 vehicles and their combined annual freight revenues amounted to more than $25,000,000.

Companies in the merger, the announcement said, are the Horton Lines, Barnwell Bros. of Burlington, Transportation Inc., of Atlanta, Ga.; Southeastern Motor Lines, of Bristol, Va.; Consolidated Motor Lines, of Hartford, Conn.; McCarthy Freight System, of Taunton, Mass., and Moran Transportation Lines, of Buffalo, N. Y.

Horton was named chairman of the board of directors of the new company.

Auto Assemblies Continue Heavy

Detroit, June 12 (AP).—Passenger car and truck production this week will total 131,267 units, according to the trade paper Automotive News. This compares with last week's estimate by the same source of 126,086 vehicles and 86,502 this week a year ago.

The publication says that with all plants of the industry scheduling full operations for June, the month's total should top 500,000 units.

The survey credits General Motors divisions with 55,201 new cars and trucks this week, compared with last week's 55,169; Chrysler, with 27,503, compared with 27,063 last week, and Ford with 30,200 this week, compared with last week's 25,109.

All other companies, Automotive News said, held the previous week's fast pace.

June Power Output Sets All-Time High

By the Associated Press

New York, June 12.—The Nation's electric power consumption in the first week of June reached the highest level in history, the Edison Electric Institute reported today.

The outturn of 3,059,865,000 kilowatt hours compared with 2,924,460,000 (revised) for the holiday week ended May 31, a gain of 4.6 per cent, and 2,598,812,000 for the like period in 1940, a rise of 17.7 per cent.

Expansion in energy used exceeded the seasonal average and the Associated Press index of electric power production advanced to a new 1941 high at 146.4 against 144.6 the previous week and 128.6 a year ago. The index, adjusted for seasonal and long-term trend, is based on 1929-30 production as 100.

Percentage output gains over last year by major geographic divisions follow: New England, 25.1; Middle Atlantic, 19.2; Central Industrial, 22.2; West Central, 11.5; Southern States, 19.1; Rocky Mountain, 12.3; Pacific Coast, 4.2.

Bank Excess Reserves Up $80,000,000

By the Associated Press

The Federal Reserve Board said yesterday that lendable excess reserves of banks increased $80,000,000 to a total of $5,490,000,000 in the week ended June 11.

The gain was due to Treasury spending and other technical factors.

The board's statement said:

"During the week ended June 11 member bank reserve balances increased $111,000,000. Additions to member bank reserves arose from reductions of $52,000,000 in Treasury deposits with Federal Reserve Banks and $43,000,000 in nonmember deposits and other Federal Reserve accounts, and increases of $9,000,000 in reserve bank credit, $14,000,000 in gold stock and $2,000,000 in Treasury currency, offset in part by an increase of $11,000,000 in Treasury cash. Excess reserves of member banks on June 11 were estimated to be approximately $5,490,000,000, an increase of $80,000,000 for the week."

Changes in member bank reserve balances and related items during the week and the year ended June 11, 1941, were reported as follows:

$100,000 Saving Seen as Maryland Sells Span Bonds

Baltimore, June 12 (AP).—The State of Maryland estimated it would save approximately $100,000 a year on interest payments on the cost of the new Havre de Grace and Morgantown toll bridges under a refunding bond issue sold today.

Roads Commission Chief Auditor William A. Codd said the refunding bonds, bearing a face value of $6,000,000, were purchased by a syndicate headed by Alexander Brown & Sons, of Baltimore, on the bid of $6,010,488.

The new bonds will bear interest at a rate of slightly less than 2.09 per cent, or about 1.66 per cent less than the original bonds, which bore interest at 3.75 per cent.

The State also receives the benefit of a premium of $10,488 on the new issue.

Codd said the refunding bond issue was made possible because the toll bridges across the Susquehanna and Potomac Rivers earned more than was estimated. Receipts on the two bridges up until the end of April were $462,968. The Havre de Grace Bridge was opened last August; the Morgantown Bridge, in December.

Consumer Price Of Gasoline Rises To 3-Year High

New York, June 12 (AP).—A survey by the American Petroleum Institute disclosed that dealer gasoline prices averaged higher in 50 cities in May than in any period since November, 1939. The consumer price in the same cities averaged the highest since August, 1938.

The average price the consumer paid in the 50 cities, before taxes, was 13.69 cents a gallon on June 1, an increase of .59 of a cent over May 1 and 1.03 cents over June 1, 1940.

Adding Federal, State and municipal taxes, the 50-city average consumer prices stood at 19.64 cents a gallon. This compared with 19.03 cents a month earlier and 18.08 cents a year ago.

Steel Industry's Costs Up Sharply

New York, June 12 (AP).—Costs of the country's steelmaking plants, including taxes, last year took 91 cents of each dollar received from sales, compared with 83 cents in the boom year 1929, the American Iron & Steel Institute said today in an analysis of the industry's operations.

Other salient comparisons with 1929 shown in the report were:

1. Nine cents of each sales dollar went for interest to bondholders, dividends to stockholders and for surplus last year, compared with 17 cents in 1929.

2. Pay rolls took 35 cents of each dollar last year, 35½ cents in 1929.

3. Costs of materials, freight charges and other expenses, reflecting indirect labor costs to some extent, took 44½ cents of each dollar in 1940 and 38½ cents in 1929.

4. Taxes took 6½ cents of the sales dollar last year, 4 cents in 1929.

5. Dividends were 4 cents of each dollar in 1940, but 6½ cents in 1929.

Western Union Gets U. S. Agency Contract

New York, June 12 (AP).—The Western Union Telegraph Co. has leased to the Civil Aeronautics Administration a Nationwide telegraph printing network for weather reporting.

Western Union was the successful bidder against the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. for the three-year contract. The company will spend approximately $167,000 to extend and supplement existing facilities to form the network.

Scattered Favorites, Industrial Specialties Continue Strong; General List Moves Narrowly

New York, June 12.—Strength of industrial specialties put further recovery power in today's stock market. While many steels, motors, utilities, rubbers, aircrafts and coppers failed to climb out of a slim groove, scattered favorites shot up 1 to more than 5 points, a number to new highs for the year or longer. Gains, on the whole, were in small fractions and an assortment of declines was in evidence at the close. A few senior stocks were especially buoyant.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues tacked on an advance of .3 a point, at 41.8. It was the ninth out of ten successive sessions in which the composite had finished with a plus sign. Since June 1 it had recovered more than 2 points and was at a peak since early April.

Dealings were lively at intervals but there were slowdowns. Transfers totaled 561,320 shares compared with 536,360 yesterday.

War and labor news, on the whole, was to the liking of Wall Street but the feeling apparently was widespread that the prices of many stocks, in relation to earnings and dividend yields, were exceptionally low. Brokers suggested that idle cash was going into this group. Easy absorption of profit selling was an encouraging factor.

Rails did fairly well most of the day as mounting revenues for the roads attracted attention. A less than seasonal increase in last week's freight loadings had litlte effect on the carriers, being due, it was thought, to a lapover from the Memorial Day holiday.

General Steel Castings preferred was a wide mover, jumping 5¼ points, to 68¼. Heavy back dividends on this stock led to hopes expanding business for the company would bring out a plan to clear up arrearages.

Others up 1 to 4 included Loft, American Oil, Allied Chemical, Johns-Manville, Eastman Kodak, Sears Roebuck, Santa Fe and the preferred of Budd Mfg., Mullins Mfg. and Penn-Dixie Cement.

United States Steel, Bethlehem and General Motors were up ½ each. Jones & Laughlin preferred dropped a point and American Car & Foundry preferred 2. The latter fell in the face of a $1.75 dividend declaration. Lower also were Chrysler, American Smelting and International Harvester.

Gainers of fractions to 2 or so in the Curb included Bell Telephone of Canada, Le Tourneau, National Sugar Refining, N. J. Zinc, Phoenix Securities, Royal Typewriter and Singer Machine. The turnover here was around 76,000 shares versus 85,000 Wednesday.

Specialties and a selected group of rails and foreign issues received main attention in today's bond market as the general list hovered in a narrow area with the trend a bit mixed.

Among the stronger loans with gains of 1 to 3 points were American & Foreign Power 5s, at 56; Commercial Mackay income 4s, at 48; Manati Sugar 4s, at 36; Saguenay Power 4¼s, at 90½; Spokane International 5s, at 31; Japan 5½s, at 60, and Panama 5s, at 56⅝.

On extremely light turnover several Treasury loans moved up ⅛ to ¼ of a point on the stock exchange and a few issues emerged with small net gains over the counter. Trading was light on both markets.

Cotton, Wheat Depressed by New Priorities

By the Associated Press

The June buying rush in commodities lost some momentum yesterday as traders tried to weigh the influence of the latest priorities orders issued by the OPM.

Nw York cotton futures and Chicago wheat, buoyant leaders of the rise since Memorial Day, retreated moderately under speculative profit-taking. Cotton gave up 30 to 50 cents a bale and the cereal closed ½ to 1 cent a bushel lower. Corn was ⅛ to ¼ down.

Cottonseed oil contracts reached new highs for the season and ended with gains of .05 to .10 of a cent a pound. Continued strength in the vegetable oil market prompted new buying. Hides and wool tops scored additional gains, while Straits tin and rubber declined. Sugar prices were steady.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 wholesale spot staples was unchanged from the previous day at 87.05 per cent of the 1926 average.

Revenue Freight Loadings Mount 6.4% in Week

By the Associated Press

The Association of American Railroads reported yesterday that 852,940 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ending last Saturday.

This was an increase of 51,157 cars, or 6.4 per cent, compared with the preceding week; an increase of 150,048 cars, or 21.3 per cent, compared with a year ago, and an increase of 222,880 cars, or 35.4 per cent, compared with 1939.

All classes of loadings except grain and coke showed increases over the previous week which included the Memorial Day holiday. However the rise in total shipments was less than seasonal.

The Associated Press seasonally adjusted index of loadings, based on 1929-30 as 100, declined to 88.2 compared with 90.0 the previous week, and 72.6 a year ago.

Pact Settles Columbia Gas Controversy

By the Associated Press

New York, June 12.—Columbia Gas & Electric Corporation announced today an agreement disposing of its holdings in the Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Co. and termination of various suits in a long-standing controversy involving itself, the Federal Government, Columbia Oil & Gasoline Corporation, and the Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line Co.

The agreement, reached June 7, is subject to the approval of the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Federal District Court in Delaware.

"This settlement," said the company, "includes all of the features involved in the plan for terminating the government antitrust litigation heretofore conditionally approved by the Federal District Court in Delaware and goes farther in that it provides for the distribution of the common stock of Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Co. now held by Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line Co. and Columbia Oil & Gasoline Corporation.

"It further results in Columbia Gas receiving full payment for all of its holding of Columbia Oil debentures, so that it will receive a larger total amount of cash than under the old plan. Consummation of the present settlement will also accomplish termination of the pending antitrust litigation against the two Columbia companies."

Among the features of the agreement is the provision for the election of a new board of directors of Panhandle, one member to be nominated by Columbia Oil, one by Missouri-Kansas and "the other ten members to be independent directors mutually acceptable to these two stockholding corporations."

Columbia Oil and Missouri-Kansas will coincidentally dispose of their Panhandle common stock, and Panhandle "will refund its series A preferred stock and retire its series B preferred stock, now both held by Columbia Oil."

Panhandle will acquire from Columbia Gas the latter's subsidiaries, Michigan Gas Transmission Corporation and Indiana Gas Distribution Corporation, thereby giving Panhandle ownership of the pipeline which transports its gas to Detroit.

Egg Production At Record Level

Chicago, June 12 (AP).—The Nation's hens are doing their part in the national defense program.

The crop reporting board of the Department of Agriculture said egg production in farm flocks reached a record June 1 high this year of 53.5 eggs for each 100 hens.

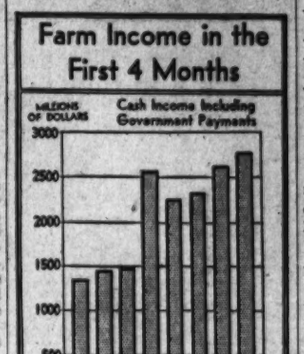
ICC Authorizes $7,880,000 Issue

By the Associated Press

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday authorized the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad to issue $7,880,000 of 2½ per cent equipment trust certificates, to be sold at 100.399 per cent of par and accrued dividends in connection with the purchase of new equipment.



U. S. Exports In Month Rise To 364 Million

By the Associated Press

The Commerce Department said yesterday both exports and imports of American merchandise increased in April.

Exports totaled $364,000,000, the highest for any month since January, 1940, and imports amounted to $288,000,000, the highest for any month since March, 1937.

The export total was 2 per cent higher than March and 13 per cent above April, 1940. The import total was 7 per cent more than March and 35 per cent more than April of last year.

While no information was given as to the types of merchandise involved or the countries, it was understood that exports increased primarily because of increased shipment of war materials to Great Britain and imports were boosted by the acquisition of strategic materials for the American defense industries. For defense reasons, the department has stopped the publication of the destination of trade.

In the first four months of the year, exports aggregated $1,350,000,000 and imports $1,018,000,000. In the similar months last year, exports were $1,391,000,000 and imports $871,000,000. Last year's export figure was higher due to large shipments to France, Italy and other European countries now blockaded.

U. S. Gold Imports In May Shrink To $34,835,431

Gold imports slumped to $34,835,431 in May, the smallest total for any month in recent years.

The Commerce Department said the low figure, which was only about a fifth of the April total, was due to declining shipments from the British Empire. The Treasury told congress a few months ago that the British were running out of their gold reserves and were depending mostly on new gold production.

May imports included $16,309,384 from Canada, $3,505,332 from South Africa, $4,194,078 from Australia, $3,383,667 from the Philippine Islands, and $2,794,203 from Colombia.

Foreign gold deposits under earmark in the Federal Reserve Banks increased $3,864,231 during the month to a total of 11,920,766,174.

Sheet & Tube Plans To Boost Capacity

Youngstown, Ohio, June 12 (AP).—Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. will add 300,000 tons of steel ingot capacity and some pig iron capacity as a result of defense demands, President Frank Purnell announced today.

The increased production will be accomplished through improvement of existing facilities, he said, with construction divided between the Youngstown and Indiana Harbor, Ind., plants.

Cincinnati, June 12 (AP).—K. N. Merritt, of New York, general sales manager for Railway Express Agency, was elected president of the National Federation of Sales Executives today.

May Building Permits Reach Decade's High

The volume of May building permits, supported by the acceleration of defense construction, reached the highest level for that month since 1930, and with the exception of January 1938, was greater than for any month since April, 1931, Dun & Bradstreet reported yesterday.

Regional totals of building permit values for 215 cities reporting to Dun & Bradstreet during April, this year and last, together with percentage changes, were:

Heavy engineering construction awards this week totaled $139,825,000, the third highest volume for any week this year, Engineering News-Record reported. The aggregate was 5 per cent greater than the previous week and 147 per cent larger than a year ago.

Public construction was boosted by the award of a $45,500,000 contract for a shell loading plant at Texarkana, Texas. The total was 11 per cent above last week and four times as great as the same week of 1940.

Private awards were 11 per cent below the previous week but 2 per cent greater than a year ago.

Contracts awarded on current construction projects in the chemical process industries total $5,739,000 compared with $3,725,000 a year ago, according to Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering, trade publication. Current proposed work amounts to $5,315,000, the magazine said.

Breuninger Chosen Head Of Help Unit

L. T. Breuninger was elected president of the board of directors of the Washington Self-Help Exchange yesterday to succeed Hugh V. Keiser, who has headed it since its establishment in 1937.

Breuninger

During the last two months the 688 jobs obtained for participants of the exchange represented the largest number for any similar period in its history, Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, executive director, reported at the meeting at Self-Help House, 3213 Q Street Northwest.

Other officers elected yesterday were Mrs. Charles Goldsmith, first vice president; Robert Woods Bliss, second vice president; Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, jr., third vice president; Frederick P. H. Siddons, treasurer; George B. Galloway, secretary, and Jerome F. Barnard, counsel.

The following new members were elected to the advisory council: Mrs. Emil Hurja, Dr. Carl Wells, Mrs. C. C. Glover, jr., Hugh H. Cobb, Miss Susan Craighill, Mrs. George E. Bigge, Bruce Baird, Miss Belle Sherwin, Mrs. Edward Acheson, Mrs. Ferdinand Kuhn, Hugh Ross, Mrs. John Herrick and J. J. Hasley.

Twenty members were reelected to the advisory council on recommendation of the membership committee, headed by Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, jr. They were Robert E. Bondy, Harold A. Brooks, Walter H. Clarkson, Mrs. Ross Garrett, C. C. Glover, jr., Dr. Ernest S. Griffith, Marion Hedges, H. D. Hynds, Mrs. Gardner Jackson, Mrs. Hennen Jennings, Edna Lonigan, Dr. Daniel Lynch, Mrs. Frances Northcross, the Right Rev. Msgr. John O'Grady, Milo R. Perkins, Harold B. Stabler, Elwood Street, Mrs. Hugh R. Thomas, George A. Warren, Mrs. Herbert Wollner.

After the meeting, the board of directors and advisory council honored the retiring president at tea. A testimonial, presented to him by the board, traced the growth of the exchange under his presidency from 5 departments in one building to 29 departments in four branches. During this period 4,743 individuals have worked at the exchange to earn 1,199,564 pieces of scrip.

Charity Leader Asks Cheap Milk

work, which alone is eligible to buy the 5-cent quarts at 11 milk depots scattered through the Capital.

Mrs. O'Connor expressed gratitude that the dairy which supplies the Ladies of Charity "milk wards" makes a special price of 11½ cents a quart—delivered to the door—instead of the usual 14 cents.

"Yet a lower price would enable us to cover that many more deserving families, besides bringing adequate quantities of milk within the reach of others who, at present market prices, have to limit their children's drinking," she asserted.

At the coming hearing to amend the Washington milk marketing order, expected to be scheduled soon by Secretary Wickard, the whole problem of surplus milk for the needy probably will be investigated. The Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association is asking a cent-a-quart increase on this item, as well as on the same quality milk retailed at rgeular prices.

Henderson's Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply announced last week, following the producers' application for a penny increase, that an economist was being assigned to find out whether 15-cent milk, on a home delivery basis, was justified.

Yesterday, however, an official authorized to speak for Henderson's office said that the inquiry was off. He did not divulge the reason.

1,730 Md. Selects Asked in July Call

Annapolis, Md., June 12 (AP).—A total of 1,730 Maryland men will be inducted into military service in July, Gov. O'Conor announced today.

The fifteenth draft call is for the induction of 1,325 white men and 405 Negroes between July 2 and 21. A breakdown of the latest State quota by local boards will be announced later.

Week's Bank Clearings Far Ahead of 1940

New York, June 12 (AP).—Bank check transactions for the week ended June 11 recorded another big gain over last year but were down from the preceding holiday week's volume, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

Total for 23 leading cities was $8,045,230,000, an increase of 37 per cent over last year's $4,411,823,000. Decrease from the previous week was $837,356,000.

Underpass Completed

Hagerstown, Md., June 12.—The new underpass at the Norfolk & Western Railroad crossing on the Sharpsburg-Shepherdstown highway has been completed and the road will be opened shortly, the State roads commission reported.

British Envoy Free

Cerbere, France, June 12 (AP).—A sealed train bearing Ronald Ian Campbell, former British minister to Yugoslavia, and 105 other Britons crossed into Spain tonight 56 days after they were captured by the Italians in Yugoslavia. They will continue to Portugal en route to England.

Shrine Ends Session

Indianapolis, June 12 (AP).—The Imperial Council of the Ancient Arabic Order of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine ended its three-day, sixty-seventh annual session today after deciding to postpone selection of a 1942 convention city "because of the unsettled world conditions."

Joint U. S. Income Tax Return Viewed as Raising Total

The House Ways and Means Committee yesterday paved the way for a compromise scale of surtaxes on individual incomes by unearthing a new source of revenue—joint income tax returns.

The committee voted to compel husbands and wives who live together to file a single joint return. Under present law they may escape surtax brackets by filing returns separately.

Members said this one change might raise all the way from $250,000,000 to $500,000,000 additional revenue, depending on the rates applied.

Up against the problem of producing $1,500,000,000 asked by the Treasury from individual income taxes, without the drastic surtaxes recommended, the committee may use the joint return revenue to make up the loss from more moderate taxes.

Several compromise schedules of rates have been submitted to the committee. One, starting surtaxes at 7 per cent on the first dollar of taxable income, estimated to yield about $1,250,000,000, reportedly had strong support.

Steeper surtaxes proposed by the Treasury, starting at 11 per cent, apparently are opposed by a majority of the committee. Members said they thought it unlikely the committee would go as low as the $1,100,000,000 plan recommended by staff experts, which start surtaxes at 6 per cent.

Coupled with new revenue from the joint return reform, the compromise plan may be made to yield what the Treasury asked, with possibly some offset against the broad list of currently proposed excises.

The committee's action in asking a single joint return by husband and wife was coupled with a motion that the tax paid by a married couple be pro rated between them in conformance with the individual income of each.

The joint return requirement, it was said, will particularly hit residents of nine States having community property tax laws. In these States, property is divided equally between husbands and wives, and they may now share their income for income tax purposes even though the husband alone is employed.

Marbury to Take Chief Judge's Oath Monday in Md.

Annapolis, Md., June 12 (AP).—Gov. O'Conor will administer the oath of office to Judge Ogle Marbury, of Laurel, recently appointed chief judge of the Seventh Judicial Circuit, at 11 a. m. Monday in the executive office here.

O'Conor named Judge Marbury, an associate judge of the circuit, to succeed Judge Walter J. Mitchell, of La Plata, as chief judge. Judge Marbury also will sit on the Court of Appeals.

Judge Joseph C. Mattingly, of Upper Marlboro, will reach retirement age of 70 next month, leaving Gov. O'Conor with two vacancies to fill in the Seventh Judicial Circuit, composed of Prince Georges, Charles, Calvert and St. Marys Counties.

Area Rail Shipments Expected to Rise 11.3%

Pittsburgh, June 12 (AP).—The Allegheny Regional Advisory Board today forcast a total of 1,029,842 carloadings i the Allegheny district during the third quarter, an increase of 11.3 per cent over the actual figure of 926,254 in the corresponding quarter last year.

Toledo, Ohio June 12 (AP).—A third quarter increase of 21.1 per cent in carloadings was forecast today at the meeting of the great Lakes regional advisory board. Carloadings for the corresponding 1940 quarter totaled 525,822. Because of the defense program, it is estimated 626,894 cars will be required for the third 1941 period.

Barkley Leaves Hospital, Says He's 'Feeling Fine'

Senator Barkley (Democrat), of Kentucky, majority leader, returned to his home yesterday from Walter Reed Hospital, where he had received treatments for a leg infection.

He said that he was "feeling fine" and would leave this week-end for an extended rest. He had not decided whether to go to his Paducah, Ky., home or elsewhere.

Assab, Italy's Last RedSeaStronghold, Falls to British

Aden, June 12 (INS).—British domination of the Red Sea and the Gulf of Aden became complete tonight with announcement of the capture of Assab, last Italian stronghold on the Eritrean coast. Fascist Gens. Varda and Piacentini and naval Capt. Colla were among the prisoners captured.

By this operation, carried out by a naval and land force based upon Aden—across the Gulf of Aden—the 670-mile coastline of Eritrea has been swept clean of Italian opposition. Italian airmen, ground troops and naval forces as well as 39 German seamen were among the hundreds of prisoners.

An imperial army communique also announced capture of the Abyssinian town of Lekemti by patriot forces of Emperor Haile Selassie's army.

Lawyers, Jurists Frolic at Bay Ridge

Five hundred Washington lawyers and District, Municipal and Police Court and Court of Appeals justices forsook court rooms and law books yesterday for a day of festivity at Bay Ridge, Md.

The rain, although forcing cancellation of the outdoor games traditional to the annual outing, failed to dampen the party. The legal lights moved inside to play bridge and poker and indoor sports.

Between a sizable luncheon and a supper featuring Maryland fried chicken, a few of the hardier attorneys braved the rain on the nearby golf course.

29 Zamzam Survivors Leave Lisbon for U. S.

Lisbon, June 12 (AP).—Twenty-nine women and children of missionary families who survived the sinking of the Egyptian steamer Zamzam were among 632 passengers who sailed for New York today.

This left 56 Zamzam survivors here, all of whom the United States consulate hoped to get aboard a liner due to sail Saturday. Originally 119 Zamzam survivors came here from France June 2. The others already have left, four of them by Atlantic clipper plane.

Patricia Ryan was 6 years old when her mother saw a kiddie show one night and boasted that Pat could do better than any of the participants.

The other mothers around saw to it that Mrs. Ryan had to prove her point, and Pat was duly recruited for the show. Fortunately, Mrs. Ryan was right, and the producer, Dan Noble, kept Pat on long after most of the original cast had been let go.

Then, as a result, at the ripe old age of 7, Pat's acting talents came to the attention of the program director of the Columbia Broadcasting System, who was preparing a children's series for the network. She got the job. That radio show was "Let's Pretend," dramatizations of fairy tales, which still is going strong on the network after 12 years.

She's all of 19 years now, with 13 of them spent in the radio acting profession. For after "Let's Pretend" she appeared innumerable times in such shows as "The Aldrich Family," "Big Sister," "Big Town," "Aunt Jenny," "Columbia Workshop," "Amanda of Honeymoon Hill" and CBS's "American School of the Air."

Possibly all of that experience explains why she's now got the star's part in the new "Claudia" series which you hear on the Kate Smith Variety Hour over WJSV every Friday aat 7 p. m. Pat won the role after more than 250 other actresses had been auditioned.

Contract Bridge

You've seen it happen, especially in rubber-bridge games where emotions run high: the bidding will flow placidly to a certain point and then degenerate into an obstinate, awkward calling even duffers would despise.

Something of the sort was responsible for the 800-point set on this hand, submitted by I. B. F. The pair he speaks of embarked on a lunatic contract of four hearts. Without knowing the bidding it would be difficult to see how they arrived there. Here are the cards, with North-South vulnerable and South dealer; rubber bridge:

◇ A Q J 7 5

SOUTH
♠ A K J 6 4

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ◇	Dble
Pass	2 ♣	Pass	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	4 ♡	Dble
Pass	Pass	Pass

Naturally, we went down—three tricks," writes the contributor. "What should the correct bids have been? Should North have passed two spades? Should North have bid four hearts?"

The bidding rode along decently enough until it reached two spades, then both players entered upon a hog-calling contest of which they should have been ashamed. If North must bid over two spades it would be wiser to rebid his suit than to try a no-trump contract when he had no stoppers in the adversaries declared suit, clubs. Of sheerest fancy is South's bid of three hearts, surpassed only by North's bid to game in the suit.

DON'T FORGET THE "FORGOTTEN MAN"
FATHER'S DAY IS THIS SUNDAY, JUNE 15

See ROBERT BENCHLEY

in his Father's Day Short, "The Forgotten Man," presented by Paramount Pictures at the Metropolitan and Ambassador Theaters starting today.

NO matter what you call him, whether it's Dad . . . Father . . . Sire . . . Pater . . . Governor . . . Pop . . . or Papa, this Sunday, June 15th, is HIS day. It's the biggest "Male" day of the year. The day that everybody pays homage to the "bread and butter" of the family. And your opportunity to reciprocate with a gift.

DAD isn't the kind of fellow who expects a costly gift on Father's Day. He's a considerate sort of cuss. But we feel sure that he'll expect his gift, no matter how large or small, to be a practical one. His mind and his actions are sound. That's why he'll appreciate a useful gift from The Hecht Co. MAN'S Store. The store of nationally famous merchandise. The store that caters to his wishes and his needs throughout the year.

OUR Man's store executives are fathers themselves. They know, from every day selling experience, what other Fathers want. They've handpicked every item on this page. Look them over. Then come in this morning or Saturday to select Dad's gift. Hundreds of other nationally famous gifts are ready for you today.

THE Hecht Co. has been every Dad's store for the past 45 years . . . years of pleasant associations.
